Seasonable Planting.

The season is now at hand, and doubly so, as our spring has been backward this year, which makes the gardener jump and fly to get the seed in and attend to the many things that need attention. But let me urge you not to neglect getting your soil in perfect shape; plow, harrow or rake your soil thoroughly until you think it is fine and then go over it again. The particles of soil must be very fine for the tiny rootlets to assimilate the food stored therein. The plants under glass need plenty of air and when they have made their first pair of true leaves they should be transplanted to insure stocky plants to set out in the open ground.

Now is the time to sow your seeds of peppers, egg plant, tomato, etc., and in your hotbed for setting out after all danger of frost is over; set out your rhubarb, asparagus, strawberry and other hardy plants and shrubs, prune and trim your fruit and ornamentals, loosen the soil around them and go at them with a determination to give them a vigorous start.

By latter end of April set out your cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce plants, sow seeds of radish and lettuce for succession and 'tis time now for your early potatoes; get an early variety, cut your tubers into seed pieces each containing two eyes, plant three to four inches deep. The root crops such as beets, parsnips and carrots should be seeded without delay if not already in. If you are not situated so as to irrigate we must take advantage of spring and early summer rains to forward our crops to almost maturity before the dry season is upon them.

By the first of May you can plant some beans (Early Valentine and Golden Wax), corn (Cory) and two weeks later plant some more so that if first crop should be frosted your next will probably escape. Gardens must risk occasionally and if successful it pays handsomely.

A few hills of cucumbers and melons would not be amiss and you can protect them very cheaply—get a small box without bottom or top about one foot square with pane of glass for top and place over hill of cucumbers or melons will forward them very early and when they need more room the season will be advanced sufficient that they will need no protection

In the cucumber some good strain of White Spine is yet the favorite although Long Green is good for family use and Boston Pickling for small pickles. In musk melon the little Emerald Gem is a luscious melon for home use while for market a good strain of nutmeg, probably the comparatively new Rocky-Ford. The season is a little short for successful growing the watermelon, but if you can succeed at all it will be by such early varieties as Kolb's Gem, Phinney's Early. By using boxes with glass top as spoken of above you can lengthen the season a great deal and better yet, if you plant a few seeds in strawberry boxes placed in hotbed until the season is past danger of frost, then set out box and all, you can overcome a great many difficulties experienced in melon growing in this climate.

Remember, for to have succulent and tender vegetables you must plant successively for as soon as they mature, they deteriorate very rapidly.

About Small Orchards.

"It is almost as difficult and expensive to care for five acres of orchard trees as it is for ten, and it is misplaced energy to attempt to plant orchards too small to occupy one's full time," says M. T. Warring, (Connecticut,) in American Cultivator. "As a good deal of modern orcharding expense consists in the labor of spraying and fighting insects, it will pay better to have an orchard large enough to warrant one in purchasing the necessary apparatus to spray properly. A large orchard also tends to protect itself from the winds, and in winter and summer there may be a considerable saving from this, The trees on the outside nearly always produce less than those inside.

"If one is going to have an apple or other fruit orchard, it is just as well to have a fine one as an ordinary kind. The latter will not cost much more in the end, and it will prove profitable, while the former will not. Plant trees of well known marketable varieties and get good specimens from reliable dealers. Spray them every season and protect them from pests of all kinds. Do not let them injure themselves by bearing heavily the first few years. Pluck off the blossoms or fruit, so that no limb or branch will be strained. Over-production at an early age is deadly to a good tree. Each year set out new trees in the place of any that may be injured or killed. Do not have a ragged orchard, but try and make every tree come up to the standard. This can be easily done if one has ordinary intelligence and will give time to the work. Use only hoed crops in the apple orchard. Wheat, oats and timothy are bad for the trees. They take too much from the soil, but hoed crops, seeding the land to clover or cowpeas every few years, will produce excellent results."

Speak Kind Words.

Speak kind words in the morning,
They'll make the toils of day
Seem brighter, and full many
A shadow chase away.
Speak kind words in the evening,
They'll bring, when comes the night
Rest to the sad and weary,
And visions glad and bright,
For naught like words of kindness
Life's thorny pathway cheers;
They bless the one who speaks them,
They bless the one who hears!

Recent Geologic Work in Washington.

The United States Geological Survey has been extending systematic geologic work in the State of Washington.

In 1902 work was carried on in the Snoqualmie quadrangle, by a party under George Otis Smith, geologist, assisted by Frank C. Calkins, E. P. Carey, and D. F. McDonald. The Snoqualmine quadrangle includes the crest of the Cascade Range from Naches Pass northward to Snoqualmie Pass and is crossed by the main line of the Northern Pacific railway. An area of about 800 square miles was mapped in the very heart of the range, and the map will have special value and interest as showing the structure of the central portion of the Cascade Mountains. About twenty different rock formations were distinguished in the field, and their areal extent was determined. Among these are the Roslyn sandstone, which contains the Roslyn coal, the most productive seam in the state; the serpentine, on which are located the mines and prospects of the Fortune Creek and Camp Creek camps; the Snoqualmie granite, which contains the gold and copper veins on Gold Creek; the Miocene slates with the iron ores of the Snoqualmie Pass region; and the Swauk sandstone, at the base of which is the Clealum iron ore. While none of the mines in this area, other than coal, can be termed producers, the region well warrants careful geologic investigation, the results of which will be published as an aid in the future development of the natural resources.

The work of preparing and publishing areal geologic maps was begun in this state in 1896 by Mr. Bailey Willis, and has been continued every season since. In the mountainous portions progress must necessarily be slow, by reason of the rugged topography and the luxuriant forest cover. Another feature that necessitates the expenditure of considerable time by the geologists is the complexity of much of the geology. The extremely eventful history of the Cascade Range has caused the geologic relations to be difficult of determination, so that studies over wide areas are essential to an understanding of the structure of any coal basin or mining district.

Oats and Peas for Summer Feeding.

Oats and peas grown together and harvested when the oats are in the early milk stage make a forage crop very much superior to oats alone. As peas are leguminous they increase the protein of the fodder and also improve the soil by leaving behind, in roots and stubble, a part of the nitrogen whish they take from the air. By growing the mixture both the fodder and soil are improved, whereas if oats are grown alone a rather poor fodder is obtained and the soil is reduced in fertility.

This combination makes one of the best soiling crops for feed in July and August when pastures become short. If the crop is allowed to mature and the two grains are ground together, the result is a most excellent feed for dairy cows. The amount of seed to apply depends somewhat on the condition of the land. The usual amounts sown are one and one-half bushels of oats and one and one-half bushels of peas to the acre. A seeding of one bushel of oats and two bushels of peas to the acre will give better results but it is more expensive and as a rule pea-seed is scarce and high in price every spring.

The seeding is done by broadcasting the oats and drilling the peas with a wheat drill that will not crack the peas. We use the Superior drill for this purpose. Prepare the ground the same as for any other spring crop. The peas should be put down three or four inches deep. By setting the drill hose zigzag the oats are well covered when drilling the peas. In sowing peas alone use two to two and a half bushels of seed per acre.

Raising Little Chicks.

When the first chicks of the year are hatched they are removed from the mother hen just as soon as strong enough to walk, put into a basket lined with paper and littered with straw, while a piece of flannel is warmed and put over them. Soon afterward they are examined for lice, and a little lard is carefully applied to the head and neck of each. Then they are snugly tucked away in their basket again, put in a warm place and allowed to rest as long as they wish.

When about twenty-four hours old, a little hard-boiled egg or a few bread crumbs are given, and as soon as they show a disposition to eat, food and drink are regularly placed before them.

Their basket is now exchanged for a roomy box, the bottom of which is sprinkled with road dust and covered with straw, a little dish of grit and coarse sand is placed in one corner, and they are located in a sunny window.

Drinking fountains are made as follows: A common teacup is filled with water, and covered with an inverted saucer, then, holding tightly to each, they are turned upside down, when one edge of the cup is slightly raised allowing a small quantity of the water to flow into a saucer.

A thin bit of wood is sometimes pushed under the edge of the cup, which causes a perpetual flow until the cup is emptied. These are easily cleaned after use, and there is nothing to rust, as with a tin can.

Until a week or ten days old, the chicks are fed once a day on boiled egg or clabber cheese, and corn bread, made with milk as for the table. Next the egg is substituted for a little fine-cut green bone, sometimes fed alone, at others mixed in a mash with middlings to which is often added some fine bits of dried clover grass. They are especially fond of this mixture, and make more fuss over it than over anything else that can be fed. Wheat either cooked or raw, is now also added to their diet, and a dusting dish furnished.—Lena Fisher in New England Farmer.

Treasure for Somebody.

A curius feature of the fire-works program during the dedication ceremonies at the World's fair, St. Louis, will be the release of a large balloon made of the finest and lightest oil silk, and filled with the best quality of hydrogen. To this balloon will be attached, under proper safeguards to prevent injury, a notice directed to the finder that on return of the notice to the exposition officials a season pass to the fair will be given. It is estimated that the balloon under moderately favorable conditions will travel a thousand miles before returning to earth. It is likely that much interest will be displayed on the night of the balloon's release as to the direction of the wind and that localities in the fortunate direction will be on the lookout for the treasure-laden messenger.

Homes of the Washingtons.

Countless Americans have journeyed to the beautiful estate of Mount Vernon on the Potomac, where the great Washington passed his last days; but not everyone is aware that scattered in Virginia and West Virginia are numerous other homes of the Washingtons, each of which is an architectural achievement of note, and replete with historic associations. In the May Delineator, Waldon Fawcett describes four of these fine old edifices, Kenmore, Harewood, Claymount and Audley. They represent the highest type of colonial architecture, and are characterized by a degree of elaboration seldom attained in that period. The original furnishings are preserved. Excellent illustrations give additional interest to the paper.

Baby.

One little head of golden hair
Two little cheeks so round and fair,
Two little lips with fragrant sighs,
One little nose and two blue eyes,
Two little hands as soft as a peach,
Two little feet with five toes each,
Two little smiles and two little tears,
Two little legs and two little ears,
Two little elbows and two little knees,
One little grunt and one little sneeze,
One little heart, but no little sins,
Plenty of skirts and lots of pins,
One little cloak and plenty of frocks,
One little hood and two little socks,
A big disposition to haul and to pull,
One little stomach that's never full,
One little mouth of the rose's tint,
One little bottle of peppermint,
Plenty to eat and lots to wear—
And yet this baby is as cross as a bear.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000,000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. If you are contemplating a trip to the east, write the undersigned for information regarding rates via the "scenic line of the world." W. C. McBride, General Agent, M. J. The great music publishing house of Hamilton S. Gordon, 139 Fifth avenue, New York, has honored us with three of the latest musical productions for the piano, "The Geisha's Dream," "Water Nymph" and the "Merry Rataplan."

Decoration Day, or more properly speaking Memorial day will soon be here. Everyone who has a spark of patriotism will discountenance the misuse of the day that greedy money grabbers have for horse racing, excursions and general amusement. You can't honor the memory of deceased relatives and friends in that manner.

Alexander & Co., newspaper advertising agents, have a copy of a paper that is quite a curiosity. While it is but 19 years old it illustrates the rapidity of the growth of this section. It is the Coeur d'Alene Nugget printed at Eagle City, Idaho; and bears the date of March 22, 1884. The subscription price is only $12 a year which seems pretty good for a five column weekly. The ads. are largely of Spokane firms. Eagle City was the center of the placer mines of the Coeur d'Alene.

In Eastern Washington Arbor Day was observed May 1. Many schools and individuals planted trees, others let the day go by in useless inactivity. This day should be observed by all who own a foot of real estate.

"Breaking the Day in Two." a beautiful little lullaby poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox has been set to music by Mary Wood-Allen. Both words and music are pretty and will certainly be very popular. The first publicity given the song was at the National Congress of Mothers recently held in Detroit. The song is published by the Wood-Allen Publishing Co., Ann Arbor, Mich.

It is a fatal mistake to interrupt a story, even to correct a date or a fact. Social gatherings are not schools, except for polishing manners, and a good story is bound to be spoiled by useless breaks, As a rule, mathematicians are not popular in society. It is the poet who offers the flower of speech, not its root, who sits at the right hand of the hostess. Another thing, if one would be a successful entertainer, is to avoid cutting short an anecdote by saying you have hear that before. If you have listened to it fifty times, you ought to have the habit strongly enough fixed to be able to listen just once more, and there are probably others in the company who never have heard it. In the interest of popularity, offer yourself again as a sacrificial lamb.—Conkey's Home Journal.

Notes About the World's Fair.

Information has been received by Col. J. A. Ockerson, chief of the department of Liberal Arts at the World's fair, St. Louis, that engineering exhibits from the Argentine Republic have been shipped to the Argentine counsul general at New York City and will be forwarded to St. Louis.

Word has been received from E. C. Green, World's fair commissioner to South Africa, that Rhodesia has accepted the invitation to participate in the World's fair, St. Louis, 1904.

The navy department will detail the Marine Band to participate in the dedication ceremonies at the World's fair, St. Louis, April 30.

Ono of the features of the great military parade at the World's fair, St. Louis, on Dedication day, April 30, will be the battery of mountain artillery whose guns are carried in four sections on the backs of as many Missouri mules.

Another competer for the $100,000 prize offered in the aerial tournament at the World's fair, St, Louis, has been announced. Bradford McGregor, of Covington, Ky., a mechanical expert, has built a model of an airship which he says will be a success. He clalms he will travel through the air from Covington to St. Louis to show that his plan of aerial navigation is correct.

Oklahoma will be well represented at the dedicatory exercises at the World's fair. St. Louis. A special train will bring commissioners, governor and staff, full regimental staff, military band, a battalion of militia, and many distinguished citizens and guests, making five hundred persons in all.

The De Soto Plum.

De Soto, Wisconsin, is one of the most picturesque villages in the Mississippi valley. It is located on the east bank of the Mississippi river. About a mile below the village is located the original grove of the De Soto plum. The unusual size and excellent flavor of these plums attracted the early settlers and wandering trappers over fifty years ago. Those who tasted the plums were anxious to possess some of the trees, and as a result the settlers in that vicinity soon had a supply. In many cases the De Soto plum was the first good fruit that was raised. Soon the fame of the plums grew to such an extent that the nurseries listed them either as the De Soto or Traer plum. The name Traer coming from the man who settled on the land containing the grove. At present during the early spring months orders come into De Soto from all parts of the United States from persons who wish the real De Soto plum. The plum many nurserymen keep are not true to name. F. M. Alexander, a farmer near Waterville, Wash., purchased a few trees and they proved to be a libel, on a common wild plum. H. H. Furman of De Soto recently sent a few trees to his brother, E. D. Furman of this city, who now expects to enjoy a taste of the luscious De Soto plum in a few years.

NOT IN ANY TRUST

had entered a trust or combination; we wish to assure the public that there is no truth in such reports. We have been manufacturing sewing machines for over a quarter of a century, and have established a reputation for ourselves and our machines that is the envy of all others. Our "New Home" machine has never been rivaled as a family machine.—It stands at the head of all High Grade sewing machines, and stands on its own merits.

The "New Home" is the only really HIGH GRADE Sewing Machine on the market.

It is not necessary for us to enter into a trust to save our credit or pay any debts as we have no debts to pay. We have never entered into competition with manufacturers of low grade cheap machines that are made to sell regardless of any intrinsic merits. Do not be deceived, when you want a sewing machine don't send your money away from home; call on a "New Home" Dealer, he can sell you a better machine for less than you can purchase elsewhere. If there is no dealer near you, write direct to us.

Written in 1894.

Some parts of Sullivan county, Pennsylvania, are about as near a wilderness as one would expect to find in any country. It is the fighting ground of many famous bear, painter, dear or snake story that appears in the New York Sun. Newell was the place where my friend and I spent several very happy days with other friends. This village is a collection of seventeen dwellings and a saw mill. There are no wagon roads to the hamlet nor nearer than Lopaz, three and a half miles away. The only method of ingress or egress is by a very crooked and a very rough railroad. When once you are deposited there you must stay until the cars come again unless you prefer to walk. A sidewalk leads from a platform that answers for the depot to the mill company's store. The mill is a modern steam mill with a capacity of 50,000 feet per day of ten hours. Originally there was considerable hemlock timber here but that has about disappeared and the hardwood—beech and maple is fast going, so that in the course of a few years there will be another "deserted village" to be made immortal by a modern Goldsmith.

A school has been established which is presided over by a plump Pennsylvania school ma'am.

The principal amusement seems to be the dance. A dance is given when anyone comes to the place to celebrate the event. When anyone departs from the social charms of the hamlet a dance is given. Marriages are the occasions for a grand ball. I do not know what they do to celebrate a birth or a death as those occasions are very rare. One Saturday night I was invited to a ball and for fear that I was not able to escort two ladies to the hall. two young men who smoked death-dealing cigarettes, came down and acted as honorary body guard. The dance was held in a deserted dwelling house near the railroad track; the main room was large enough for one set to dance all at a time, another room held an immense coal stove and the gallant young men, while a third room was a waiting room for the ladies.

The music was furnished by an odd genius who belabored a crazy violin and and called off the dance changes about as follows:

"A-a-a-ll ready there!" he said with prodigious force. "Everybody get into his place!" then lifting one huge foot he put the fiddle under his chin, the bow touched the strings and the music began. The dancers fell into rhythm and the clatter of the heavy boots seemed to give the fiddler sufficient encouragement to keep the music up to a high state of excellence. He kept time with his No. 10 right foot and his calling off could be plainly heard above all the noise. "Ladies gran' change! Four han's 'roun'! Bal-ance all! Elly-man left! Back to play-ces. First lady lead to the right, gent foller after! Four han's 'roun'! Hon-ers to your partners! Stand up straight an' put on your style! Right and left four.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

The picturesque possibilities in millinery, are well nigh limitless, as limitless is the spreading hat that each week grown circumference. In attonement for such latitude, flatness prevails, and material and straw of the lightest characters is noticeable. In days of outdoor sport, however, the practical must be the chief consideration during fashionable pastimes and ready-to-wear hats of medium size, are trimmed with silk or ribbon and showing one or more quill feathers in finish are the regulation style. On the same order but totally different in reality. Some dress hats having a single, very long ostrich feather traversing the crown from low at the back to the front brim where it gracefully inclines over the brow. In general, however, flowers are the chosen garniture and appear as if accidently thrown on a gossamer like expanse.

The bolero costume with the triple skirt yoke is in very rich mohair sicilliene. The neck of this costume is collarless and the front is trimmed with pearl buttons set in triple style. The low front has the new French curve that is given by the new Rosalind waist adjuster, and excellent contrivance that attached to the corset holds it firmly and comfortably in position.

The central figure is a Wooltex costume with long coat, stole front and triple skirt. The petticoat is a Sorosis demi-yoke of mercerized sateen. The third costume is in spring weight Worrall dyed English velveteen, having likewise the French curve front, and the new extended skirt back, which is produced by a strip of featherbone reaching from the waist line to about a foot above the bottom, where three lines of featherbone hold the skirt gracefully in place. Special note should be taken of the low coiffure in these illustrations and because of it has come an increasing demand for silk hair nets that prevent untidy fluffing. The French curve is produced by the new model C. B. a la spirite corset over which these beautiful gowns are made.

NEW SILKS

shown at Lord & Taylor's, determine that Louisines in checks, have a leading position, not only for entire gowns, but independent waists. Some few stripes are seen, but only for the advantage of stout women, who must do all possible to lengthen out their apparel. Pongees in checks and showing embroidered dots set rather closely or large circular spots at greater intervals are to be very fashionable and as a striling novelty come pongees in gun-metal shades. In the coat is in marked favor, but to comply with opposite tastes and because to some figures it would be disastrous, not a few examples show a short blouse belted in. Mixed cloth is very popular for these utility gowns, but delightfully cool ones, are made in canvas, voile and other open mesh, light weight goods, and it goes without saying, that one or more utility skirts have come to be a recognized necessity. The latter are seen in great variety and complement in excellent fashion, that shirt waist that is an equal necessity. In hemstitching is the favorite finish, and to show it off, plain silk is in marked favor. The use of narrow black velvet ribbon in parasol trimming is also a novelty, sometime placed as a binding, with chenille dots above in keeping or again the ribbon is in lengthwise rows.

TAILOR MADE GOWNS,

PARASOLS,

Tired

After Mental Exertion—No Rest.

Nervous, Irritable and Wretched.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Saved My Life.

There is little joy in living when the disordered nerves prevent sleep and rest; when one wakes from a restless night more tired than the night before; when one is forced to drag through the round of daily duties without energy, ambition or interest. This condition is due to a derangement of the nerves which may be speedily regulated and strengthened by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. This remarkable medicine has a wonderful record of cures. Supplying as it does the exact element needed for the restoration of the nerve force and vitality, its good effects are felt after the first few doses.

"I have used your remedies myself and in my family for the past seven years and it is not too much to say that they saved my life. The tired feeling I used to have after giving a few music lessons has left me entirely and instead of lying in bed three or four hours trying to get sleep and then getting up and walking the floor until morning, I can now go to bed and sleep eight, ten and twelve hours without any trouble. When I think of my former nervous, wretched, irritable state I want to tell everyone what Dr. Miles' Nervine has done for me. I can do as much work now in a day as I used to take a week to accomplish. I think Dr. Miles' Nervine is the best remedy for nervousness and general debility on earth."—L. D. EDWARDS, Prof. of Music, Preston, Idaho.

The Newspaper Trust.

The biggest trust on earth is the newspaper trust. It trusts everybody, gets cussed for trusting, mistrusted for cussing and if it busts for trusting gets cussed for busting.—X.

With the telephone in use on the farm and a daily mail delivered at his door, where he can read the world's markets, political movements and social gossip the same day that the people in the cities read such things, the farmer certainly should consider himself blest of all men, and should he take the trouble to compare his situation with that of his grandfather, he could not fail to be surprised at the vast and rapid advances that have been made in the farmer's mode of life in a comparatively short time.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address.

AN ELEGANT REPRODUCTION OF A CHARMING

REDUCED ILLUSTRATION — "THE VILLAGE WEDDING" — FULL SIZE 25 BY 38 INCHES

FOR several years the publishers of the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION have been searching for something, to give to their subscribers, that would ECLIPSE ANYTHING EVER OFFERED BY ANY PUBLISHING-HOUSE IN THE WORLD. At last, at great expense, they are able to make it possible for every home in America to possess a magnificent and faithful reproduction of one of the most remarkable paintings ever produced by mortal man in this or any other age. It secured for the artist the honor of immediate admission to the ranks of the Royal Academy. The original painting was shown all over Europe, and thousands upon thousands of people gazed upon it with rapture. It was quickly bought up for $75,000.00, and placed in the position of honor in one of the most celebrated galleries in Europe, and no American money yet offered has been able to secure it for this country. The whole picture fascinates one with its absolute accuracy to life. Every figure in itself alone is a study that would make a wonderful picture. Every face is alive with the spirit of action. It is a picture of mirth and merriment; a picture to bring sunshine into every home and the heart of every one who gazes upon it. You cannot tell our engraving from the only other authorized reproduction, which sells in Europe for $18.00 (eighteen dollars). Our exquisite reproduction is 25 by 38 inches, including margin, the exact size of the costly European engraving, and will be a splendid addition to the art collection of any home, whether framed or hung without framing a fashion now so much in vogue.

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION This magazine is edited and made up in the city of New York, the leading literary and art center of America. Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spell which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,
Will benefit the wisest men.
And if dyspepsia is their woe,

BATCHING IN THE WEST.

GREAT NORTHERN PASSENGER STATION AT SPOKANE.

This handsome building recently completed is one of the best passenger stations in the west belonging to any railroad company, It is located on Havermale's island between Howard and Washington streets, only two blocks from the very center of the city. The Great Northern spent what would be a fortune to an individual in preparing the yards and grounds and erecting their building. The interior arrangement of the building is a model of convenience which is duly appreciated by the traveling public. The Great Northern strives in every way to give their customers all conveniences and accommodations and that is the reason the passenger traffic is growing so rapidly.

A Nice Prize.

Miss Aline Gardner of Red Mound, Wis., was the lucky winner of a Wooltex coat from Tate's Big Store having composed the best verse in the famous Wooltex contest. The following is her composition:

Mary sheared her little lamb
And its wool so snowy white,
Was dyed and made into a suit,
That wears and fits all "all right"
So if you'd be strictly "up to date"—
Wear "Wooltex" clothes and buy from "Tate."

The judges were Miss Lucy Dawson, Prof. S. E. Pearson and W. N. Coffiand. The award for second best went to Edith Rhone, Valley, Wis.

"Idle gossip is like a pinch of lampblack—there is apparently no limit to the blacking it may do."

"The more you say, the less people remember."

Tree Planting Hints.

Select thrifty young trees in preference to old or very large ones; the roots are more tender and fibrous and bear transplanting better and are far more apt to live, says Northwest Agriculturist. They can also be more easily trimmed and shaped to any desired form, and in the course of a few years will usually outstrip the old ones in growth. The largest and most successful planters almost invariably select one-year-old trees.

When the trees are received from the nursery bury the roots in well pulverized soil until you are ready to plant them. Never expose the roots to sun or wind, If trees are received in a frozen state, place the package unopened in a cellar, away from the frost and heat, until thawed out, then unpack. If partly dried from long exposure, bury entirely in the ground, or place in water from 12 to 24 hours

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Millinery, Gowns, Skirts and Out-Door Garments.

In view of the wide spreading outlines in millinery, materials used are often very light in weight, chiffon and tulle being prominent and for quite dressy hats, both show gilt interweavings. Straws are most frequently in open weave, ready-to-wear hats being an exception and in ribbons, the beautiful varieties shown, have caused a continuance of those large bows found so effective, while scarfs because of varities in texture, ornamental weaves and also because affording a droop at the back, are favorities in trimmings. Small flowers are much more freely used than large ones and as beautiful introductions may be mentioned honeysuckles and fuchsias. Low dressed hair is taken into consideration in millinery shapes and for the protection of such coiffures, a fine, lace-like net is worn over it at the back. In the

DRESSMAKERS' CONVENTION

now in session, much account has been taken as to the best fit of corsages and to this end, use has made of the Rosalind waist adjuster, which gives the fashionable curve. It can be used with a belt of any material and no alteration of skirt is required. Thought likewise has been given to such dressing as will permit activity. Embroidery now having given way to the golf stick, crochet work to tennis and piazza lounging to out-door exercise in general, feminine dress has undergone corresponding changes and chief among these is an adoption of belted hose supporters, which throwing out the chest and compelling a right attitude of the body, has rendered many a girl or matron Venus like in her carriage. Many have the shoulder capes that are destined ecause of novelty, to become popular, but in their place, dressy corsages show berth a like additions; shirrings, laces, etc. are conspicious, the prettiest introduction, however, being drawn work, which is destined to a great run. Large collars are again in demand and justly so, since nothing has been found so easliy adjusted or so generally becoming. The present time being one pre-eminently of out-door life for women,much thought is given to apparel that will bear hard usuage and thus it is that in ready-made gowns, the Wooltex method of construction increases so rapidly in favor, since the pure wool in which these garments are made, insures adaptibility alike to rain and sunshine. New skirts do not differ materially from those of last season and here again it is noteworthy that the hundsomest on exhibition, show in finish, the new S. H. & M. velvet braid skirt protector, which leaving out of question, its supperior appearance, is also preferred by dressmakers, because it can be attached only by one sewing. Time is saved in consequence and moreover ladies appreciate the fact that with its use, they can avoid defacement of footwear, a neat shoe being of course a prime consideration.

Sometimes we talk about benefactors. Do you know of a greater one than the man who makes grass and grain grow where once was nothing but brush? The world needs more such benefactors

One advantage with poultry farming is, that it does not require much land, while, if properly managed, the income can be derived to a more or less extent daily.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000,000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. If you are contemplating a trip to the east, write the undersigned for information regarding rates via the "scenic line of the world." W. C. McBride, General Agent, M. J. A Good Potato.

In 1889 the writer secured two or three seedling potatoes from Mr. Cordner, who at that time owned the orginal Alexander homestead, on Alexander Hill, Boone county, New York. Mr. Cordner originated the potato, securing them from the seed. F. W. Alexander, secretary of the Vernon county agricultural society, experimented and developed them until that part of Wisconsin was pretty well supplied. People seemed to prefer them to any of the regular varieties. Mr. Alexander sent a few to D. C. Humphrey of Reardan, Lincoln county, Wash. Mr. Humphrey now raises them to the exclusion of all other potatoes.

In appearance they are similar to the burbank but seems to be smoother. They are very firm and hard in the spring when other potatoes have passed their useful season. Mr. Humphrey receives many orders for these potatoes from different sections of the country.

Uncle Hiram on City Life.

There is always somethin' doin' to make city people sad;
If it ain't a sausage famine, why you'll hear the water's bad;
When the strikers stop the street cars then the dickens is to pay
And the people have to foot it, gittin' clubbed along the way,
And the fever epidemics and the the smallpox every year
Keep the city people stewin, and I'm glad to live out here.

Oh, it's quiet in the country and there's few uncommon sights,
And God's moon and stars up yonder have to do for 'lectric lights,
But with 'taters in the cellar and with wood piled in the shed,
When there's hay stacked in the hay-mows fer the stock that must be fed,
They can have their noisy city, with the sights up there to see,
And the kind old quiet country will be good enough for me.

THE WESTERN HOME JOURNAL,
521 First Avenue,
Spokane, Washington.

Entered at the Postoffice, Spokane, Wash., as second class matter.

The governor of Washington has signed a bill making gambling a felony in that state.

The Missouri legislature has passed a bill prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and cigarette papers to children under eighteen years of age.

Senator Allison has broken the record for continuous service in the senate of the United States. He has been sworn in for his sixth term, having been in the senate for thirty years.

The number of milk cows in the United States on January 1, according to the agricultural statician, was 17,105,227, and the aggregate of other cattle was 44,569,000. In swine Iowa leads all the other states with a total of 7,438,655, or more than double the number credited to any other state.

Some light is thrown upon the salaries paid railroad officials, by the report which A. C. Bird, who left the employ of the Milwaukee road to accept the office of traffic manager of the Gould system, is to receive $40,000 per year or $128.20 a day. President Earling of the Milwaukee road is said to receive $50,000 a year, the same salary that is paid the president of the United States, and three or four other railroad presidents are paid an equally large annual salary.

Two Sides to the Question.

There has certainly been too much sentimental sympathy expressed in behalf of strikers. It seems to me before these labor troubles can cease there will have to be a public sentiment backed by law that will protect every man alike. The laboring man should not be injoined from laying down his tools when he has, or thinks he has a grievance, and no man or set of men should be hindered from taking them up if they desire to do so. Laboring men have a right to form a union for their own benefit and protection, but they have no right to hold up the commerce of a state or nation and force men out of employment that are satisfied with their conditions, and by threats or force prevent others from taking their places simply to accomplish their own selfish ends. If corporations should meekly submit to all the demands of labor unions they would soon be in the power of a trust, the most dangerous the world has ever known, and one that would never be satisfied until its own greed had eaten up the life that had nourished it."

Kindness.

"I shall pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness I can show to any human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer it nor neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

"Life is a series of surprises. We do not guess today the mood, the pleasure, the power of tomorrow—when we are building up our being."

The one thing worth living for—yes, worth dying for—is the chance to make somebody useful and happy.

The worst of having inflicted a wrong upon the innocent is that you can never by any means retrieve it. You can repent, and it is probable that your very repentance ensures your forgiveness at a higher tribunal than that of earth's judgment, but the results of wrong cannot be wiped out or done away with in this life; they continue to exist, and, alas! often multiply. Even the harsh and unjust word cannot be recalled, and however much we may regret having uttered it, somehow, it is never forgotton.

—Marie Corelli.

The Standard Incubator.

The Standard incubator that we announced in the last issue is sold, The JOURNAL had just been put in the postoffice when a telephone call came for the incubator. It was taken to the Hazelwood Farm the same night and gave such good satisfaction they kept it. Since then numerous inquiry have come for it. Oklahoma's joint committee on the World's Fair has agreed to appropriate $40,000 for the Oklahoma exhibit.

Herbert W. Bowen. U. S. Minister to Venezuela, reports that President Castro will make an effort to arrange his affairs so that he can visit the World's Fair, St. Louis, in 1904.

The California legislature has decided on $130,000 for a state exhibit at the World's Fair, St. Louis. This will be in addition to the county appropriations which will exceed the state appropriation.

The great military parade is to be one of the most important features of the three days' ceremonials in connection with the centennial celebration of the Louisiana Purchase and the dedication of the World's Fair buildings at St. Louis beginning April 30 next. Adjutant-General Corbin, the grand marshal has selected Gen. Bates to command the 5,000 regulars and Gen. Roe, ranking officer of the New York national guard, to command the militia regiments in the parade, which will number 10,000 to 15,000.

Benedict Perry, aged twenty, of New Haven, Conn., has turned out some wonderful articles with a jack-knife made to represent a modern city. He intends to exhibit his work at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904, and there will be few exhibits which will represent more skill and patience.

Charles Stanley, an inventor, of San Francisco, is building a huge air-ship to enter in the World's Fair aerial tournament at St. Louis in 1904. It is the most gigantic air-ship ever attempted, costing $200,000, and the inventor proposes to fly from San Francisco to St. Louis in his machine.

The Buff Leghorn Catalogue

By James E. Church, Hackensack, N. J.

As your valuable paper seems to be headquarters for Buff Leghorn enthusiasts, I have thought that a brief analysis of the American Buff Leghorn Club Catalogue which has just been published, might be of interest, not alone to members of the club, but also to the many who are not members, but should be.

I find that there are seventeen states represented in the membership (there should be at least twice that number,) as follows: Michigan 14, Pennsylvania 13, Illinois 11, New Jersey 10, Ontario 10, New York 9, Ohio 6, Indiana 4, Wisconsin 3, Missouri 3, Connecticut 3, Nebraska 2, Washington 2, and North Dakota, Massachusetts, Kansas and Virginia each one, ninety-four in all.

In articles contributed, only six states are represented, viz: Michigan 5, New York 4, New Jersey 4, Pennsylvania 2, Ontario 2, and Wisconsin 1. While the advertisers include members from only ten states, 33 in all, and in which honorable body I am pleased to note that New Jersey leads with 6, New York 4, Michigan 4, Ontario 3, Illinois 3, Indiana 2, Ohio 2, and Massachusetts 1; while of the seventeen pages of advertising matter, New York and Pennsylvania each take 3 pages, New Jersey 2¾, Michigan 2¼, Illinois 1¾, Ontario 1½, Nebraska, Indiana and Ohio each ¾ of a page, and Massachuesetts ½ page.

Now I am not throwing stones to hurt any one, but just to call the attention of our members to the fact that all are seemingly not doing all they might do to boom the club, when out of a membership of 94 in 17 states there is found but 33 advertisers from 10 states, and you will please note that I am counting Ontario as one of the states of the Union, as it should be, not alone for geographical reasons, but for their membership and apparent interest in the welfare of the club, as manifested in the advertising space taken.

Now, brother members, if the spirit of active enthusiasm which characterizes our noble secretary, becomes contagious as it should, for the virus is of excellent quality and widely disseminated, this club must, of necessity, become the most numerous and wide-awake aggregation of (specialty) poultry cranks in America.

But it will never be done by leaving all the hustling to the secretary. There is a measure of responsibility attaching to each and every member, and all must bear their share if we are to get to the top of the heap and crow over all the rest of creation as we clearly should do. Now here's to a representation of at least 30 states, and a club cup contest in every last one of them (and that means at least ten members in each one) before our next catalogue is issued in 1903.

And to the large number of Buff Leghorn breeders who are not members, let me say, come with us; we need you and you need us; the cost is small, the gain is large, much larger than you can ever imagine as long as you stay on the outside of the camp. Now, boys, all along the line, remember, every breeder a member, every member an advertiser in our next catalogue, and the American Buff Leghorn Club leads the procession. Talk, write, advertise, is a trinity which is bound to win.

Twenty Years of Heart Disease.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure cures heart disease. It has positively no equal in that regard. The fluttering, palpitation and heart pains readily disappear before its magic influence; the shortness of breath, the frightful smothering spells vanish after a short course of treatment; the pulse beats become strong and regular, the circulation is improved so that the veins are charged with healthy, pure, life-giving blood carrying strength and health to every nerve and muscle and replacing the dead tissue with solid flesh.

"For eighteen years I suffered from heart trouble. The least excitement caused severe fluttering and palpitation and at night smothering spells would frequently cause me to sit up in bed for breath. Beside the frequent physical pains I was constantly in an agony of apprehension lest it might bring about my sudden end. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and experienced almost immediate relief from my former disagreeable symptoms. I believe that my cure is permanent because I have not had occasion to use the Heart Cure for six or seven years, which time has elapsed since I quit taking the Heart Cure. As a household remedy I keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in the house all the time. I consider the Dr. Miles Remedies fully as good as they are recommended to be and I trust that you may live many years for the sake of humanity."—R. T. HEWITT, Chehalis, Wash.

We have been manufacturing sewing machines for over a quarter of a century, and have established a reputation for ourselves and our machines that is the envy of all others. Our "New Home" machine has never been rivaled as a family machine.—It stands at the head of all High Grade sewing machines, and stands on its own merits.

The "New Home" is the only really HIGH GRADE Sewing Machine on the market.

It is not necessary for us to enter into a trust to save our credit or pay any debts as we have no debts to pay. We have never entered into competition with manufacturers of low grade cheap machines that are made to sell regardless of any intrinsic merits. Do not be deceived, when you want a sewing machine don't send your money away from home; call on a "New Home" Dealer, he can sell you a better machine for less than you can purchase elsewhere. If there is no dealer near you, write direct to us.

About Eggs.

The census reports show a very large apparent falling off in the number of chickens in the United States says William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald, but a very large increase in the number of eggs produced. This is explained by the director of the census, who says that in previous enumerations it has been customary to count everything wearing feathers, but this time the enumerators were instructed to include nothing but chickens 3 months old or more. Ducks, geese, turkeys, etc., were counted separately. As the enumeration was made upon June 30, 1900, this barred out many of the chickens that were hatched that spring.

It is interesting to know that on the date named we had the following chickens, ducks and turkeys and other fowls, compared with the census of 1880 and that of 1890:

	1880.	1890.	1900
Chickens	102,222,135	258,871,125	233,598,085
Ducks		7,544,080	4,807,358
Turkeys		10,754,000	6,599,367
Geese		8,440,175	5,676,863
Other fowls	23,235,187	26,738,315	17,083,588

Ducks, geese and turkeys are included in the enumeration of other fowls in 1880 and are not given separately in the census for that year.

Alaska has the smallest number of chickens, only 176 being reported for that year, while Iowa has the largest number, showing a total of 19,907,683.

The following statement will show the number of eggs produced in the United States during the last three census years. Of course this is only an approximation, but the figures are as accurate as could possibly be obtained. Few farmers keep an exact account of the number of eggs laid by their hens, ducks and tnrkeys, and the census enumerators, being instructed to ask the question, made them guess at it—that is, to give as nearly as possible the number of eggs produced on their farms. No account was taken of the barnyard fowls or the eggs produced in cities and villages, and they must number millions scattered over the United States. In many villages nearly every family raises its own chickens and eggs, but it was impossible to make an enumeration. The census office says that probably 5 per cent should be added to the total number of chickens and eggs to cover those that are produced elsewhere than on farms.

	Doz. of eggs produced.
1890	819,722,916
1880	456,910,916

Iowa produced the largest number of eggs, 99,621,920 dozen, and Alaska 1,043 dozen, which was doing pretty well for only 176 hens.

Gardening for Vegetables.

The time is at hand, the location has been settled upon the soil plowed or spaded and of course is rich, especially with nitrogenous manner. A good supply of tested seeds from a reliable house the nearer home the better, whose reputation depends on the quality of his seeds. The hotbed is the first requisite to an early garden. Two hotbed sash 3x6 feet or perhaps you will have some common window sash that will do, of about the same area, which will give you a bed sufficently large to grow plants for a good sized garden and you might also grow some of the earlier vegetables weeks before they could be obtained from the open ground.

Procure sufficient fresh horse manure (that from animals that are fed heavily with grain) liberally mixed with leaves or straw bedding, and after piling once and fermentation is very active place in layers to the depth of 12 to 18 inches on surface of ground one foot wider and longer than size of frame, the frame to be made to accommodate the sash on hand; place your frame which has been made so that the north side is 5 or 6 inches higher elevation than the south side, on manure, and put in your soil which is rich and fine not less than six inches deep; put on your sash, bank around your frame with hot manure and leave for a few days until the heat has subsided to about 90 degrees. Rake and fine the soil, sow seeds of cabbage (Ey. Jersey Wakefield preferably) in rows across the bed; celery, lettuce, parsley, beets, cauliflower, tomatoes, egg plant, and peppers seeded rather thickly and when plants are up large enough to handle they should be transplanted once before their final transplanting to field or garden, excepting beets which can be set directly in the field.

Don't forget to seed some pansies, astors, verbenas and other flower seeds to beautify the odd places. If you have room left in your hotbed you can sow radish, round scarlet turnip or other round early varieties in regular rows, for an early supply for the table or market. Of course you can purchase all of your plants from the regular plant growers very cheaply.

As soon as the ground is in condition for planting, sow onions—Yellow Danvers, Early Red Silver Skin, White Pickling. Peas—Alaska, Nott's Excelsior, American Wonder, Little Gem for early, and Strategem and Telephone for later use although seeded at same time. Make haste to sow radishes—Scarlet Turnip, French Breakfast, Long Scarlet, White Ladyfinger. Lettuce—Early Prizehead, Curled Simpson, Dutch Butter, Big Boston, Hanson. Spinach—Round Leaf. Turnip—Milan, Purple Top. Carrot—Scarlet Horn, Oxheart. Parsnip—Hollow Crown. Beets—Egyptian, Eclipse, Blood Turnip. Salsify—Vegetable Oyster. Plant your potatoes in nice mellow soil about four inches deep—Early Bovee, Early Ohio, Early Rose, and Early Triumph.

During the month of April procure and plant your asparagus bed, rhubarb roots, strawberry, currant, gooseberry and other plants and roots which you will need. Give your hotbed plenty of air by tilting sash on upper side. Cultivate your garden often and do not let a weed appear. Take care to have straight rows, seed liberally, and from one-fourth to one-half inch deep for most seeds is about right.

More Short Stories.

Conkey's Home Journal is another monthly magazine which has discovered an increased demand for short stories, and presents five in its April issue, which also shows an increase of eight pages. In addition to the short stories, there are several special illustrated articles and several departments for the home, as well as a department of music. This magazine has more than kept its promise Made to its readers a year ago to outdo all its competitors in the five-cent magazine field.

The West.

O land of the toiler's hope and prayer,
Away from the helpless, hopeless throng
That struggles for bread the whole day long
And breathes the heavy, fetid air;
Away from the scenes of want and care,
To the freer life and full of song,
Where joy is right and want is wrong,
Where men will another's burden bear.
Forever the star of hope moves west
And those who follow indeed are wise,
For it leads to a land that is ever blest
With the sweetest air and the clearest skies;
Where manhood grows to its very best
And love looks on from the fairest eyes.

AN ELEGANT REPRODUCTION OF A CHARMING

REDUCED ILLUSTRATION — "THE VILLAGE WEDDING" — FULL SIZE 25 BY 38 INCHES

FOR several years the publishers of the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION have been searching for something, to give to their subscribers, that would ECLIPSE ANYTHING EVER OFFERED BY ANY PUBLISHING-HOUSE IN THE WORLD. At last, at great expense, they are able to make it possible for every home in America to possess a magnificent and faithful reproduction of one of the most remarkable paintings ever produced by mortal man in this or any other age. It secured for the artist the honor of immediate admission to the ranks of the Royal Academy. The original painting was shown all over Europe, and thousands upon thousands of people gazed upon it with rapture. It was quickly bought up for $75,000.00, and placed in the position of honor in one of the most celebrated galleries in Europe, and no American money yet offered has been able to secure it for this country. The whole picture fascinates one with its absolute accuracy to life. Every figure in itself alone is a study that would make a wonderful picture. Every face is alive with the spirit of action. It is a picture of mirth and merriment; a picture to bring sunshine into every home and the heart of every one who gazes upon it. You cannot tell our engraving from the only other authorized reproduction, which sells in Europe for $18.00 (eighteen dollars). Our exquisite reproduction is 25 by 38 inches, including margin, the exact size of the costly European engraving, and will be a splendid addition to the art collection of any home, whether framed or hung without framing, a fashion now so much in vogue.

R·I·P·A·N·S

R.I.P.A.N.S Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

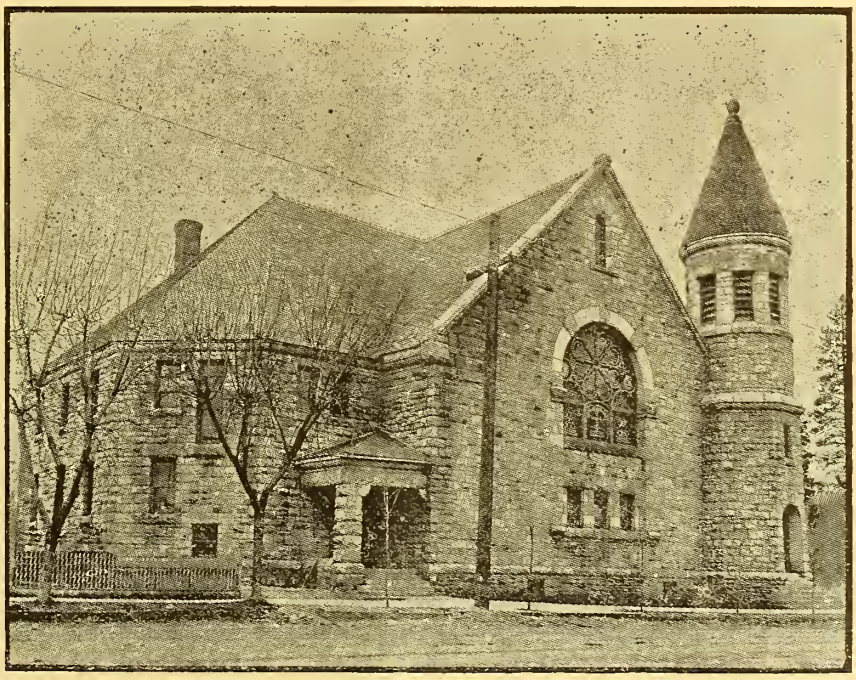
FIFTY CENTS A YEAR--FIVE CENTS A COPY.

Seventh Year. SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, MARCH 1903. No. 10.



WESTMINSTER (FIRST) CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.
Geo. R. Wallace, Pastor.

The work of the poultry yard is not arduous, but it is an everyday business.

Fowls should never be feed all they will eat. They are gluttons by nature, and gluttony should not be encouraged.

The molting season don't come with as much regularity as the 4th of July, but it comes with as much certainty.

Men who become rich raising poultry are not numerous, but we all would be poorer if there was no poultry.

We are informed by a poultry journal that well fertilized eggs are surer to hatch than those not, or partially fertilized. If that is not wisdom, what is it?

The remedy for indigestion in fowls is the same as for men—restricted diet of easily digested food. Starvation in moderate cases is good medicine for fowls or folks.

A poultry exchange says, "Dry bone has but little value as an egg producer." We endorse the proposition. One common hen will produce more eggs than a cart load of dry bones.

When neighboring flocks are permitted to mingle ever so little, the chances of having an infectious disease to deal with it doubled. Isolation is a good thing to fence a poultry yard with.

Aside from any practical superiority there is comfort in handling a flock of uniform and well-bred fowls. We would prefer a well-bred hen to a mongrel that would lay ten per cent. more eggs during the year.

A well-bred flock of chickens is ornamental as well as useful. And if to these are added a flock of fine ducks, the scene is enhanced in beauty. Then geese, guineas and turkeys may be added without detriment to the landscape.

When chicks don't grow satisfactorily, it is owing to one of two causes—improper feeding or improper breeding. Scant or unwholesome diet, or too long inbreeding are either sufficient to dwarf a flock. The best thing to do is to reform in one or the both these particulars.

Those who want good breeding stock, or who want to learn some more about fowls should attend the poultry shows. The best fowls are to be found there, and it is often the case that an exhibitor will sell cheaper at the show than after he has shipped his fowls back home.—Farm and Ranch.

Though it is the busy season it will not pay to skip the advertisements in this paper, for they are very interesting and well worth the attention of every progressive man. So take a day off and read each one.

LITERARY NOTES.

CONKEY'S HOME JOURNAL.

Every girl who likes a beautiful poster design may find one on the cover of Conkey's Home Journal (Chicago) for March. The design is in red and green, and represents a very pretty golf girl. This issue of the Journal contains short stories, special articles and the usual departments for the home. Among the latter are lessons in lace and embroidery-making, home millinery and home dressmaking. Miss Finch contributes an article on "A Wedding Breakfast in March," and Ethel M. Colson on "Beautiful Window Gardens." Frances Robertson is the author of a delightful two-step for the piano.

THE DELINEATOR.

A rich soil is one of the essentials to success. No matter what the extent of the lawn, it should be evenly moist and well drained. The general slope should be away from the residence on all sides. Seeding the lawn yields better results than sodding. Kentucky blue-grass is the most satisfactory known seed for the majority of locations, but in the south, Bermuda grass, St. Lucia and Texas blue-grass are extensively employed. April is a good time in the north, to sow, before the usual light showers. The ground should be raked as nearly perfect as possible before sowing. Best results are obtained by sowing thickly. Four bushels to the acre is the usual allowance, but in small plots double the proportion may be used to advantage. After sowing, work seed in with a rake. No clippings should be done till the grass is above three inches in height, and it should be kept at about this height during the first summer. Avoid clipping at all soon before the frost is expected.—From The Delineator for March.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

The story of Mr. George B. Cortelyou's rapid rise from the position of stenographer in the government service to the secretaryship of the new Department of Commerce and Labor is told in the Review of Reviews for March by Mr. Henry B. F. Macfarland. Mr. Corteiyou, at forty, is one of the youngest men who ever took a cabinet seat. He has served as confidential secretary to the three presidents.

The Spokane Newspaper Union now prints on the average 75 papers each week, the Northern Pacific Union of Portland, 117 papers and the Seattle Union 60 papers. NEW YORK FASHIONS.

New Cottons, Siciliennes, Wooltex, Tailor-made Gowns —Aid to Health and Grace— New Millinery.

New cotton materials are so pretty and come in such range of choice that everyone can find something appropriate, Parkhill fabrics retaining their high position as to beauty in design, fast colorings and excellence in texture. Among these Toele du Nord is attractive in stripes, plaids or checks, being twenty-seven inches wide and selling at 15 cents the yard. Edinborough zephyrs, thirty inches wide and also in stripes, plaids or checks, are rapidly purchased by judicious buyers at 15 cents the yard, and Imperial Chambray in linen finish, thirty inches wide, retails for 15 cents the yard. St. Andrew zephyrs in fancy stripes, are lovely in thirty-two inch widths, selling at 25 cents the yard, and Anatolian Fancies are delightful unitings of lace effects with fancy stripes. Thirty inches wide they are 30 cents the yard. Anglesey beige is beautiful in silky lustre; showing stripes combined with novelty weaves and lace patterns and thirty-seven inches wide, sells for 35 cents the yard. Satsuma embroideries display fine embrcidery in captivating designs and in widths of twenty-seven inches, cost 35 cents the yard. Cotton fabrics steadily increase in favor, and even wealthy buyers set store on dainty gowns in fine cotton.

Mohair Siciliennes are most desirable and extremely stylish, especially in the coarser weave. Mohair Siciliennes furtherwore, are a delightful variety, and in plain, dotted, mixed and fancy effects, these fabrics supplement the voiles, etamines, wool grenadines and loose woven roubaix goods. One cannot mistake in choosing Sicilienne in any grade. These goods are English in crigin and are famous owing to splendid work of the Bradford dyers and finishers.

COSTUME OF BLACK MOHAIR SICILIENNE.

When selecting ready-made garments heed should be paid to the new Wooltex method of construction which insures outer garb at once serviceable and dressy. For these reasons, doubtless, Wooltex has met with immediate appreciation from all classes of women—those who must consider expense and those to whom expense is no consideration. Every Wooltex gown is pure wool and will withstand hardship which would prove the undoing of ordinary ready-to-wear garments. Walking skirts moreover, when well fitting, produce a really aesthetic result, and to these and othes skirts, especially drop skirts an elegant finish is given by the new S. H. & M. velvet braid protector. Among its advantages are the facts that it does not deface the shoes, is extremely light, can be attached by only one sewing and thus can be more quickly put on than any other. In the fit of the however beautifully made, the right adjustment of the corset is all-important, and among women who understand both comfort and grace of bearing belted hose supporters have come into general use. They keep the corset well down in front, thus enforcing a correct position of the body —shoulders down, abdomen in and chest thrown out, and many a belle of Venus-like carriage and proportion, owes such aharms to the powerful aid of this inestimable addition to her wardrobe.

SPRING MILLINERY

shows a continuance of those fancy outlines and that captivating abandon which has done so much to beautify woman. Once again, low, broad shapes left in original contour and turned gracefully to suit the wearer, are prevalent and in finish an extended range of selection from the floral kingdom, goes to complete the various pictures. A wide limit is reached; small, fairy-like blossoms are the prelude through gradual ascension to creations, and the range of buds or flowers exhausted that of fruit is entered upon, and from berries up, even to plums and peaches, all are garnered for feminine adornment. The last named, however, are comparatively small and it is problematic whether or no they may become popular. Grapes, so poetical in appearance, are largely in the ascendency, and their continuance is a fitting tribute to the aesthetic. Mousseline, chiffon or tulle are again freely used and sometimes as hitherto set in close regular folds. Mousseline scarfs showing embroidered ends and edges are prominent and ribbons in satin finish or chene patterns are often very wide.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000,000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. If you are contemplating a trip to the east, write the undersigned for information regarding rates via the "scenic line of the world." W. C. McBride, General Agent, M. J. World's Fair Notes.

The fence around the World's Fair grounds will be six miles long. Steps have been taken to have this built at once.

The special grand stand for the Centennial ceremonies on April 30, May 2 and 3 next, will seat thirty thousand people. It will be 800 feet long.

The demand for World's Fair exhibit space in all departments is such that it will undoubtedly be all taken months before the opening day. Allotments are being made rapidly. The value of the annual product of manufacturing industries in the United States has increased fifty per cent since the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. Notwithstanding the far greater area of exhibit space for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in comparison with the Chicago Fair it is really less in proportion to the probable demands from the manufacturers and producers in the United States and foreign countries.

The pavilion of Belgium at the World's Fair will symbolize Belgian art. The Belgian exhibit will be in art and manufactures. Public works, such as harbors and railroads, will be among the exhibits.

The Bolivian government has issued a handsomely printed pamphlet of instructions to its World's Fair commissioners upon the selection and preparation of Bolivian exhibits. The catalogue of articles includes plants, vegetables, fruits, forest and mine products, textile materials, birds and valuable animals.

The construction of Mexico's building at the World's Fair will begin at an early date.

The concession street at the World's Fair will be over a mile in length. Beginning just north of the center of the grounds, extending southward nearly half a mile, it will sweep to the eastward and terminate near the government and state buildings. It will form a direct avenue also between the Government buildings and the Horticulture building.

Business Notes.

There is a seedsman in Spokane who says he has more advertising that he desires. He gets more orders than he can attend to properly. That is rather a peculiar condition of affairs. Is this seedsman progressive?

Herbert Cheever, Wenatchee, says that he has come to the conclusion that the White Wyandotte is the only breed adapted to that section. Land there is from $100 to $300 per acre so farms are not noted for their size.

We still have some of those free seeds left. Just let us know if you want any and we will send them free. They are government seeds sent us by Senator Foster.

Those wishing GOOD job printing should send their orders direct to the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL, Spokane, Wash.

One advantage with poultry farming is, that it does not require much land, while, if properly managed, the income can be derived to a more or less extent daily.

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant business—if you can stand it. But the everlastingness of the host of chronic kickers is certainly wearing on the nerves. If the paper contains many advertisements, subscribers complain that the ads occupy too much space. If there is a lack of advertising then the paper is unpopular and the people won't have it. If we attend church regularly they say we do it for effect. If we stay away we are said to be monstrously heathenish. If we accept an invitation to a wedding they say we are only invited to write it up. If we go to the opera house they say we go in on comps. If we appear on the streets often it is said that we are neglecting our business. If we avoid going about the streets they say that we do not hustle for news. If we publish a man who has disgraced his family, the members of the family never speak to us again. If we don't publish him his enemies brand us for a white-livered scoundrel. If we puff a show they say we got three dollars for doing it. If we don't puff a show they say we were offered only two seventy-five. If we occasionally express an opinion it is said "that hits somebody," If we express no opinions they say we haven't the courage of our convictions. Verily, ours is not joy unalloyed.

Let Us Have a Garden and Let it be a Good One.

Before we say a word, we offer an apology to the best gardeners and hope they will help to make the garden department a profit and pleasure. We all have learned and gotten a great deal of information from Eastern agricultural papers, but as our season and climatic conditions are different we have got to change our methods accordingly. We old ones in the business have learned them pretty well but there are many who have not, and we should try to say a word and return if we can, advice that we probably got as cheap.

Charity should begin at home and we can do no better than to let our own (Northwest) people know, through our own paper and as its name implies, a WESTERN HOME JOURNAL devoted to the agriculturist, the Gardener, the Poultry-man or woman, the Horticulturist and there are lots of other good reading beneficial to anyone.

The garden is as necessary to the farm home or even to the city home as a store is to a kitchen; it is the source if properly handled, of the largest portion of edibles and certainly healthful, and if we are healthy we are wealthy.

The farmer should by all means have a good sized garden planted with all the varities of vegetables that can be grown in this latitude. (Now some of you will say we don't like this or that kind) but I will venture to say that there is scarcely a family but what some member will have a liking or create one for a vegetable not liked by the others. The farmer should have his garden close to his home and very near to his kitchen, and if soil or other conditions are such that this cannot be done I would most heartily say move the home to the garden. You already know, but if you don't, I can tell you that your acre or acres devoted properly to the growth of vegetables for the home will be the most profitable acreage on the farm. Some will say too much labor for the pay; we can buy cheaper than to raise them, etc., but to answer the first there never was a time when good vegetables can be grown so easily and cheaply as now. You must go about it right, just like anything else to be successful; you must devote a little time to laying off your garden with an idea to convenience as to working, etc., and by investing a few dollars in the late improved tools that lessen labor to so great an extent and by the timely use of such tools the labor is turned into mere play, and second you can buy cheaper than to raise them? That might be if you were close to a place where such business was carried on extensively, and how many of yon are so situated and even if you were so situated how many of you would buy all the vegetables you could use, not saying anything of the freshness of the articles that you would buy, compared with your own fresh from mother earth.

The city and suburban home garden is not usually carried on for the profit, but for the recreation and pleasure it affords to the city man (often encased in brick and mortar) and after a day spent in such a tomb, he or she enjoys being with nature among their growing plants.

There is even profit to these persons financially, as well mentally and physically, besides they always say the vegetables grown in their own garden encouraged by the labor of their own hands are superior to those from the market wgon. Yes, you will say this is all good, but let us get to gardening. Yes, we will, and in our next we will commence.

It is worth 25 cents to any person who is just beginning in the poultry business, but will be mailed free to any person addressing Geo. S. Barnes, Sec., Battle Creek, Mich. If you are looking for some good fowl to add to your yards, the studying of this catalogue may help you wonderfully.

Football and Insanity.

During the year 1902, two men in America were killed in prize-fights; and, in a season of three months just passed, twenty-one men have been killed playing football. Fifteen of these died from broken necks or broken backs. How many men have been ruptured and permanently injured in various other ways no man can say. I know, says Elbert Hubbard, in the March Cosmopolitan, that two young men whom I am personally acquainted are now in lunatic asylums as a result of football. and their ravings are the cries and signals of this game. If you still think that football is manly sport, you might interview the parents of these young men.

Sometimes we talk about benefactors. Do you know of a greater one than the man who makes grass and grain grow where once was nothing but brush? The world needs more such benefactors.

Though it is the busy season it will not pay to skip the advertisements in this paper, for they are very interesting and well worth the attention of every progressive man. So take a day off and read each one.

The happiest man in the world is the common, everyday chap who makes his own living, pays his own board and has the respect of his neighbors. He saves a little money as he goes along, but he doesn't try to get a corner on the local output, and he is a slave to neither ambition nor society. He never expects to wear the seat of his pants in the senate, and when he slides into his pants in the morning he never wastes time trying to pick out the right tint of socks, suspenders and neckties that will blend with the general effect. He wears a "biled" shirt when he feels like it, and when his pet corn begins to jump he whips out his pet jack-knife and cuts a four-inch gash in the side of his boot and nothing is said about it in the papers. He has an appetite like a cyclone, and never has to sit up nights to poultice his conscience. He believes in the doctrine of live and let live. When he encounters one of the needy he doesn't stutter with his pocketbook. The plain plug of a man is happy because he is satisfied and doesn't spend the better part of his life yearning for something about four sizes too big for him.

Of Interest to Farmers.

Keep wood or coal ashes in your hog yards or pens. Bone meat is of course the approved material to give but experiments have shown that wood ashes is nearly as good. In order to grow large frames and strong bones material of this kind is needed.

Farmers who have young orchards should this time of the year look out for rabbits. These animals will not trouble old trees but they do enjoy the bark of a young apple tree. They may ruin an orchard of young trees in a single night. There are several ways of protecting the trees, but the method now generally used is to wrap a piece of fine wire screen about the trunk of the tree. This can be left on from the time the tree is first planted until big enough to be out of danger of the rabbits, if care is taken to give the tree enough room. Paper, tar paper, lath and different marerial is used for this purpose but nursery men agree that the wire netting is the best of all.

White Wyandotte Club.

The officers of the National White Wyandotte Club have just issued a neat circular setting forth the objects of the club and giving much information pertaining to the same: The circular also contains a complete list of the club together with a copy of the by-laws. This circular should be in the hands of every breeder of White Wyandottes and a copy will be mailed free to all who send their name and address to the secretary, Ross C. H. Hallock, St. Louis, Mo.

AN ELEGANT REPRODUCTION OF A CHARMING

REDUCED ILLUSTRATION "THE VILLAGE WEDDING" FULL SIZE 25 BY 38 INCHES

FOR several years the publishers of the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION have been searching for something, to give to their subscribers, that would ECLIPSE ANYTHING EVER OFFERED BY ANY PUBLISHING-HOUSE IN THE WORLD.

At last, at great expense, they are able to make it possible for every home in America to possess a magnificent and faithful reproduction of one of the most remarkable paintings ever produced by mortal man in this or any other age. It secured for the artist the honor of immediate admission to the ranks of the Royal Academy. The original painting was shown all over Europe, and thousands upon thousands of people gazed upon it with rapture. It was quickly bought up for $75,000.00, and placed in the position of honor in one of the most celebrated galleries in Europe, and no American money yet offered has been able to secure it for this country. The whole picture fascinates one with its absolute accuracy to life. Every figure in itself alone is a study that would make a wonderful picture. Every face is alive with the spirit of action. It is a picture of mirth and merriment; a picture to bring sunshine into every home and the heart of every one who gazes upon it. You cannot tell our engraving from the only other authorized reproduction, which sells in Europe for $18.00 (eighteen dollars). Our exquisite reproduction is 25 by 38 inches, including margin, the exact size of the costly European engraving, and will be a splendid addition to the art collection of any home, whether framed or hung without framing, a fashion now so much in vogue.

Bows of a Young Prince.

Prince Edward of York is just 5 years old and straddles his Shetland pony like a little man. An American lady who has been staying with her own little son in the neighborhood of Sandringham says the princelet is a perfect specimen of healthy childhood, and one day when driving they met him with his nurse in an open landau. Every one bowed smilingly to the bright little boy, who immediately jumped up in the seat and returned the salute again and again until he was out of range of their vision. The nurse maintained a dignified expression of countenance, but held on to this future king's sailor blouse to prevent him from tumbling out of the carriage.

No doubt this Edward of York would have very much liked to play with the Edward of New York, who had just waved his hand in independent American fashion at "the other little boy."—Springfield Republican.

Day Dreams.

Day dreams will not do, boys,
Pleasant though they be;
Day dreams fruitless are, boys,
As rain upon the sea.
Vain it is to climb, boys,
Fancy's golden stair
If the climbing ends, boys,
In castles in the air.

Not by stroke of luck, boys,
Can you win a name;
There's no royal road, boys,
Leading on to fame.
Those who gain renown, boys,
Don't with shadows play.
Heed the lesson well, boys—
Cast your dreams away.

Work lies at your hands, boys,
Tasks that must be done;
You must buckle to, boys,
Ere the set of sun.
Swiftly flies the time, boys,
While you aimless stray;
Youth's bright day is short, boys—
Cast your dreams away.

—David Johnstone.

Cruel Fate.

Tommy, aged 4, was very fond of climbing into his mother's lap for the purpose of being petted and caressed. One day his mother found him gazing at some goldfish in a globe, with a sympathetic look on his face. "Why, Tommy," she asked, "what makes you look so solemn?"

"'Cause I'm sorry for them baby fishes," answered the little fellow.

"And why are you sorry for them?" she asked.

"Their mamma hasn't any lap for them to sit in," was the reply.

Verge

Of Insanity Despite Doctor's Care.

Nervous Cramps in Hands and Feet.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Was My Salvation.

Sleeplessness is at once a symptom and a disease. Just as soon as the nerves become deranged the patient suffers from sleeplessness. Deprived of their natural rest the nerves soon lose all force and vitality and while sleeplessness is a symptom in such cases it frequently becomes chronic and remains the chief effect of disordered nerves. Dr. Miles' Nervine quiets the nerves and strengthens them; soothes the tired brain and permits sleep; restores lost energy and vitality and brings sleep, health and strength.

"Previous to our coming to the territory three years ago, we lived in Virginia, and it was there that I got acquainted with the wonderful powers of Dr. Miles' Nervine. I had been under the doctor's care and taking his medicine for over two years, but the nervous trouble that was gnawing my life away grew steadily worse. I had nervous cramps in my hands and legs, which would draw up and pain me so that I could not sleep at night. Often I never closed my eyes for days and nights together. The doctor finally told me he could do nothing more for me and that I was on the verge of insanity. He told me I might try your Nervine as a last resort, and it proved to be my salvation. When I had used four bottles of the remedy together with the Nerve and Liver Pills I had regained my former good health."—Mrs. Martha J. Sheffer, Omer, Oklahoma.

"WHAT SHALL WE EAT?"

Every day the same old question, What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in The Chicago Record-Herald, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by The Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in The Chicago Record-Herald.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

Thoughts on Life.

Our surest prospect of life is death.

Man's riches are to be estimated rather by the fewness of his wants, than the greatness of his possessions.

When you fret and fume at the petty ills of life, remember that the wheels which go round without creaking last the longest.

Friendship improves happiness and abates misery, by the doubling of our joy and the dividing of our grief.

No great characters are formed in this world without suffering and self-denial.

We attract hearts by the qualities we display; we retain them by the qualities we possess.

Kind words are the brightest flowers of earth's existence; they make a very paradise of the humblest home that the world can show.

He that cannot forgive others breaks the bridge over which he must pass himself; for every man has need to be forgiven.

The thought of a possible old age gives all of us moments of anxiety.

The world's marching orders are: "On to the grave," but watch your track and dodge the stumps.

The last day lies hid; therefore watch every day.

Growing Old.

A little more gray in the lessening hair,
Each day as the years go by:
A little more stooping in the form,
A little more dim in the eye.
A little more faltering of the step
As we tread life's pathway o'er,
And a little nearer every day
To the ones who have gone before.

A little more halting of the gait,
And a dullness of the ear;
A growing weariness of the frame
With each swift passing year.
A fading of hopes, and ambitions, too,
A faltering in life's quest,
And a little nearer every day
To the sweet and peaceful rest.

A little more loneliness in life
As the dear ones pass away;
A bigger claim on the heavenly land
With every passing day.
A little further from toil and care,
A little less way to roam;
A drawing near to a peaceful voyage
And a happy welcome home.

—William Todd Helmuth.

LITERARY NOTES.

EVERYBODY'S.

The name of Lawton is synonymous with all that is courageous, brave and gallant. His career was full of daring achievements, and the last year of his life, spent in the Philippines, was especially active. He told me, not long before he was killed, (says O. K. Davis in Everybody's,) that he had been in more danger in the Philippines than in all the rest of his army life. On several occasions I had opportunity to observe his bearing under fire, and it was always the same.

In the February number of Everybody's Magazine is an article by Oscar King Davis, the New York Sun's war correspondent, called "Courage or What?" It relates episodes of service in the Philippines and China, the author commenting on each incident as he saw it, and discussing the elements which make for gallantry in various nationalties. Mr. Davis says that though facing death by bullets is accepted as the highest form of courage, incidents occur in other forms of endeavor where men, who would be frightened to death in battle, face moral crises which would floor the fellows whose gallantry they envy so greatly.

THE DELINEATOR.

Those who exercise supervision over the family board will be interested in the suggestions for the menu appearing in The Delineator for February. Some dainty ways of serving midwinter fruits are described and illustrated, and the suggestions in regard to winter vegetables should be appreciated by those who find it difficult to present stored products attractively. Dishes renowned in Scottish history is a feature and offers some choice recipes. An apparently excellent assortment of recipes for cakes and fillings is also included.

CONKEY'S HOME JOURNAL.

The contents of Conkey's Home Journal (Chicago) for February shows more than any previous issue the policy of tne publishers to make it a thoroughly practical home magazine, as good as the best, for 5 cents a copy, 50 cents a year. The departments for women and girls include, among others things, the following: "A Practical Lesson in Embroidery-Making;" an illustrated lesson in "Home Millinery;" an illustrated article on "Toy Articles that May Be Used for Light Housekeeping;" a splendid description of "A Valentine Social;" a complete illustrated pattern department; "Two Good Palms," by Eben E. Rexford, and "How to Raise Pets, ' by Marguerite B. Arnold. Ella Wheeler Wilcox contributes a pithy editorial, "Fortune Often Near Us," and good short stories are by Eben E. Rexford and E. Carl Litsey. "A Maiden's Dream" is the title of a delightful waltz for the piano,

WATER FOR CENTRAL WASHINGTON.

An examination has recently been made, by F. C. Calkins, of the Hydrographic Branch of the United States Geological Survey, of the possibilities of increasing the water supply of portions of central Washington. Kittitas Valley is one of the areas in which irrigation is already extensively practiced by water drawn from the Yakima river and its tributaries. Plans have matured for the construction of ditches from the Upper Yakima which will materially extend the irrigated area to the east and southeast in the near future.

Attention was also given to a strip of desert land just east of the Columbia river, now used as a stock ranch, and also to a portion of the great wheat growing region adjoining it on the north and east which extends northward into the Big Bend of the Columbia and eastward beyond the Idaho boundary. As the district has an arid climate, and its eastern portion is practically without surface streams, the object of the examination was to determine the practicability of sinking deep wells as a means of obtaining water, and especially to determine whether artesian flows could be found. Irrigation from the Columbia, except to a limited extent on its lowest terraces, appears to be impracticable because of the depth and steepness of the sides of the canyon through which the river flows.

East of the Columbia the investigation included Crab Creek, the only perennial stream traversing the region, but its waters were found to be no more than sufficient for the irrigation of its own bottom.

In the wheat lands, where all crops are raised by dry farming and where water for stock and domestic uses was formerly brought from springs, sometimes at great distances, the possibility of increasing the present number of deep wells was carefully considered.

The information gathered this season indicates that a supply of water sufficient for present needs can be obtained by deep drilling throughout the region examined; at depths of from 40 to 675 feet. While there are no flowing artesian wells, the deep waters are found to be under pressure and it is believed that in certain of the lower wells along the Northern Pacific railroad an artesian flow could be obtained by proper casing.

It does not seem that any considerable portion of the wheat lands can be irrigated from deep wells, or that water from this source for irrigation can be found in sufficent quantities in the uncultivated land east of the Columbia, though it is believed that in this section deep wells for stock watering purposes may be profitably sunk at some points.

Elsewhere will be found the ad. of the new breed of poultry, the Anconas. P. J. Green, 589 East 17th St., Portland, Oregon, is the pioneer in this breed. Write him for circulars or see the December journal.

The Tiger and the Insect.

"The Tiger and the Insect" is the name of one of the most fascinating child stories that we have ever read. It a new book by John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies," and bids fair to rival that popular book. The names Tiger and Insect are the nicknames given to two little girls, about whom the story is written. This does not signify that it is only a child's book for grown people can read it with as much pleasure as the young. The scenes of the story are taken from New York. R. H. Russell of New York is the publisher.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000,000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. YOUR WIFE MAY SEE YOU Throw away your money. She does not seem to enjoy it. You do not seem to care. She does. Then please her by making a dollar or two without any effort on your part.

Here is the Secret.

All intelligent persons take several papers and magazines. If you send, you pay full price for the paper besides the expense of buying money orders and the time consumed in writing letters. Without fear of contradiction we state that the offer below has never been equaled in liberality. It is only by doing a lot of expensive advertising that we can do it.

The Womans' Home Companion, 1 year..	$1.00
The Cosmopolitan Magazine, 1 year.....	1.00
Young People's Weekly, 2 years.....	1.50
Western Home Journal, 2 years.....	1.00
Regular price,	$4.50

We will send the four for only $2.00.

The above list includes publications suited for the whole family. Pearson's, Success, Frank Leslie's or Everybody's magazine may be substituted for the Cosmopolitan.

We are subscription and advertising agents for all publications. Let us handle your business in this line. Address all orders to Repartee.

Mr. Travers, of fragrant memory, was perhaps the readiest man at repartee that America ever produced. But on one occasion he was beaten at his own game. "Wh-wh-wh-what kik-kik-kik-kind of ab-b-bird is that?" said he to the shopman. "That's a parrot." said the other, "K-k-k-can he t-t-t-talk?" inquired Mr. Travers. "If he couldn't talk better than you can," said the shopman, "I'd give him to you for nothing."

The Rev. Sidney Smith was asked for an epitaph for a dog named Spot. Without a moment's hesitation he exclaimed, "Out damned spot!"

"I've written a great number of poems, but I'll not have them published till after my death," said Purrington. "Hurrah," cried Cavendish, "here's long life to you, old man!"

Dr. Stanley sat directly across the table from Major Cerf, quietly smoking his cigar as Cerf abused him, and held him up to ridicule.

Cerf went on and on, glaring at Stanley, and piling on invective.

Stanley looked at the end of his cigar, and seemed to be wondering whether he should let the ash remain or flick it off.

Mortification and distress were written on every other face in the room.

At last Cerf paused. Then Stanley rose slowly, and, with a puzzled expression, said inquiringly, "What is the wild Cerf saying?"

Instantly the table was in a roar.

Cerf stood for a moment in a daze. Then he left the room, and Stanley, flicking the ash from his cigar, went on smoking.

One Week's Credit.

Wednesday, January 14.—Charles Wallace shot and almost instantly killed in a saloon fight on Stevens street.

Thursday, January 15.—Arthur La Brosse shot and instantly killed in a saloon on Front avenue.

Monday, January 19.— Ella Mundt shot and instantly killed in her employer's home. Testimony of her murderer: "I had been drunk for a week."

How's that for the record of saloon work in Spokane for a single week? Add to it the usual amount of thefts, forgeries, lies, frauds, licentiousness, poverty, sickness, filth, disgrace, girls ruined, wives beaten, children neglected and abused, homes destroyed or wretched men brought to drunkard's deathbeds—just the usual amount that can be credited up to whisky in this city for an average week—and it makes a pretty showing for this "industry," doesn't it?—Spokane Chronicle.

IN THE NURSING WORLD.

Nurses Organized Under One Head for Mutual Benfit.

Heretofore, in the city of Spokane and vicinity, it has been almost an impossibility to secure competent nurses at just the time their services were most needed. To correct this undesirable state of affairs "Oakford's Trained Nurse's Staff" has been organized. The headquarters is in McNab s Drug store at the corner of Washington and Riverside avenue, a most central and desirable location. The nurses at present are living in various parts of the city but arrangements are being consumated for a "Nurse's Registry" where quarters will be furnished. Nurses at very moderate rates.

A perfect system of alphabetical and numerical card indices, together with phone and card registering system is maintained. This has been proven to be the best system to expedite labor and to render prompt and efficient service to physician and patient.

Nurses are called in numerical order except when physician or patient requests one nurse in preference to another.

The objects of "Oakford's Trained Nurse's Staff" are: To classify nurses according to their several abilities or specialties, i. e. as mid-wives, sick nurses, masseurs, mental nurses, etc. To secure despatch in furnishing competent nurses to physicians on short notice. To furnish nurses to patients in the country or in small towns on receipt of telephone or telegraphic instruction. To create a fund for the purpose of building a nurses registry and for caring for sick and invalid nurses. To make nursing a remunerative vocation with a professional standing and to maintain a nurses library. To furnish nurse's and nursing supplies to nurse and patient and rent sick room furnishings and invalid appliances.

The need of such an institution has long been felt in this city. Calls were being received and filled whille the advertisements were yet on the press. Nurses from all quarters have written for information and many who could fill the requirements have signed contracts. Thus we judge the appreciation of physician, patient and nurse.

Something for Nothing.

That's what you want. It's what everybody wants. You can get it by paying a year in advance for the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL. Then we'll send you a whole year free the Western Poultry News, which is a big 32-page monthly illustrated magazine published at Lincoln, Neb. It is filled with helpful articles by poultry experts and people of practical experience.

Do Mongrels and Crosses Lay Better than Thoroughbreds?

BY P. J. GREEN.

We have often heard it said, "Cross your thoroughbreds and they will lay better, that is our experience with chickens," A majority of opinions are not always correct, nor is experience a proof that ones experience can always be depended upon.

We are aware that most farmers entertain this opinion, and this is one reason why there is little beautiful thoroughbred poultry to be found among farmers in general. These opinions, however, are not wholly without grounds, but the fact is not due to a cross or mixing of breeds as many suppose. We feel safe in saying that nine out of ten farmers when they get pure stock of some breed, will breed close relatives together for years and years without changing blood for the sake of economy, because it costs to buy a well bred bird occasionaliy by which to introduce fresh blood into his flock and so he breeds brother to sister and son to mother, daughter, granddaughter and so on continuously and the result is he weakens the vitality and vigor of his flock until they lose their egg laying vigor; hence he concludes they are no good and proceeds to cross them with some other breed, this offspring proves to be good layers and so he thinks he has found the idea for success in eggs. The cause of the increased productiveness was due to the fresh blood and not the cross; had he secured a cockrel of the same breed not closely related he would have seen the same effect.

Then again many are careless in selecting their breeders, and some times breed from a cockrel that has a short round body, or pullets of same shape which is not the shape for good layers. If people would not be so careless with their poultry in breeding the profits of poultry raising might be greatly increased. If a dairy man has a good butter or milk cow and wishes to improve these qualities in the offspring he is very careful to select a male whose mother was noted for these qualities, etc.

Farmer's seldom cull their flocks, and when they do it is done blindly. Then instead of marking the pullets that lay early and regularly, they let everything slide till spring, and then they do not know which are their best layers and so they select any and all the eggs for setting; the result is that in the spring all the poor layers are laying and the majority of the eggs set are from the poor layers, hence he breeds poor layers instead of good layers. The next spring he has this type of pullets and cockrel to breed from, and so a man with half an eye can see that degeneration must take place, and that if he starts with the best strain on earth he will soon have the worst on earth.

President Roosevelt's Strength and Weakness.

President Roosevelt invites underestimation because he conceals the prudence and common sense or his Dutch ancestry under a surface of haste and fire inherited probably through the maternal Southern line; says David Graham Phillips, in "Everybody's Magazine," and he also hides, or only by hint reveals, his thorough knowledge of practical politics, gained in twenty years of personal experience and in intimate friendship with such "practicals" as ex-Senator "Ed" Murphy of Troy and Senator "Matt" Quay of Pennsylvania. If his opponents will read with care the public paper in which he settled and settled finally and settled right the Schley controversy at its very worst stage, when even that profound master of political diplomacy, William McKinley, had utterly failed, they may get a clearer notion of the brain that is at work behind those gleaming glasses and those often impulsive utterances. Also they should not overlook Mr. Roosevelt's acute moral sense. That is the most valuable asset a politician can have because, while he may elect not to act upon its indications, it still prevents him from doing those baldly immoral acts which the people do not forget.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

News Item.

Since The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago was founded in 1880, 2388 men and 1286 women have been enrolled as students. Over 200 are in evangelistic work as preachers and singers; 559 in churches as pastors, pastor's assistants, visitors, etc., 155 in city, home and Sunday School missionary work; 44 Christian Association secretaries, and 228 in foreign fields. 290 men and 235 women were enrolled in 1902, being an increase of 18 men and 15 women over 1901. The average attendance was 231. A. P. Fitt was re-elected president for the ensuing year. At the annual meeting held on January 16th it was stated that the institution is not able to meet the demands for competent workers for the home mission fields and evangelistic work. The school is open the year round.

"WHAT SHALL WE EAT?"

Every day the same old question, What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in The Chicago Record-Herald, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by The Record-Herald's household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in The Chicago Record-Herald.

SPECIAL MAGAZINE OFFER

Two of the greatest magazines in the world a short time ago made an offer to the management of this periodical for a special rate to OUR READERS EXCLUSIVELY. That offer is now and hereby announced, to hold good for sixty days from date.

THE OFFER

Woman's Home Companion	One Year,	$1.00
Cosmopolitan, - -	One Year,	1.00
Western Home Journal,	Two Years,	1.00
Young People's Weekly,	Two Years,	1.50
	Total,	$4.50
Special Price for All Four, -		$2.00

The Woman's Home Companion is now the greatest of the magazines intended for the home---for father, for mother, for the children. It has seventy-five to one hundred beautiful illustrations in each issue, three to eight complete stories by famous writers, magnificent reproductions of great paintings, a special department for children, departments for different matters of the home-life, and many pages especially for women. It is a beautiful magazine---attractive, interesting, entertaining, helpful. Three hundred and fifty thousand homes receive it every month.

The Cosmopolitan is without a peer among the magazines of general subject matter. It has more enterprise than any other; it secures and prints more new and original articles. It has a splendid fiction department. It is finely illustrated. Like the Woman's Home Companion, it finds a place in nearly four hundred thousand homes.

SEND ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THIS OFFICE

We are the sole agents for this offer, and subscriptions must come to us. The offer is made by us to give readers of our periodical the best that is to be had in magazine combinations this year.

HIS FRIEND'S SON.

That's Why the Lawyer Was Glad to Oblige His Client.

A young man visits the office of an attorney, says the New York Herald, and gives him a claim of $106 to collect.

"Your name?" asks the disciple of Blackstone.

"Elijah Simpson," is the reply.

"Not the son of my old friend Lige Simpson? Yes? Well, you don't know how glad I am to meet my old friend's son. Give me your hand," and he wrings the young man's hand with the utmost effusion, adding: "I hope you will come in and see me often. It will be a treat for me, I assure you, to have an opportunity of conversing with you about your father."

A week later young Elijah calls again. The lawyer rushed foward to greet him, seizes both his hands and shakes them, repeating his good wishes over and over, and expressing his great pleasure at having had it in his power to serve Lige's son.

"Then you have the money for me?" suggests Simpson.

"Certainly, certainly. Here it is," and he hands an envelope carefully sealed to the young fellow, who tears it open and finds five five-dollar bills.

"Where's the rest?" asks Elijah.

"Oh, my fee is $81," is the reply.

As Simpson edges toward the door he says to his father's friend: "I guess I'm lucky to get $25. I'm awfully glad you didn't know my grandfather."

FARMERS ON THE MOVE.

American farmers in large numbers are moving about. Some are moving to Canada, and many are moving from the older to the newer states in the west and northwest. The farmers who desire to move ought to be directed to the southern states of the Union. These states offer far greater opportunities for Americans than are possible in any part of Canada, and it is a great mistake for intending emigrants to overlook the great possibilities of the south.—Ex.

Anti-Pain Pills are the best of remedies for backache, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatic pains; contain no opiates, non-laxative; never sold in bulk.

"With the greatest pleasure I recommend Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills to everyone who suffers from nervous or sick headache. All my life long I was troubled with headaches of a very severe nature, and have tried many powders and other remedies without success. By chance I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they gave immediate relief. Never since the first dose have I been troubled with headache. Whenever I feel it coming on I take one or two Pain Pills and it all disappears."—WILLIAM BROWN, Genesee, Idaho.

This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for neuralgia and neuralgic headache and have found them to give relief."—E. D. WEED, Ex-Mayor and Ex-U. S. Dist. Atty., Helena, Mont.

All druggists sell and guarantee Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They are non-laxative; contain no opiates, never sold in bulk, 25 doses, 25 cents. Dr. Miles' Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spell which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

FIFTY CENTS A YEAR--FIVE CENTS A COPY.

Seventh Year. SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, JANUARY 1903. No. 8.

STATE UNIVERSITY, MOSCOW, IDAHO.

Ice water is not an egg producer.

Early broilers must be hatched this month.

A happy and prosperous season to our poultry loving friends.

A hen is not to be blamed if she does sometimes get into a stew.

If you have no scratching shed just sweep up the floor and put down a basket of clover heads or a sheaf of oats.

Let the poultry share the turnips and beets with the pigs. Boil with meat scraps and thicken stew with corn meal and bran.

Fowls will gain very little by being permitted to wander about the premises in very cold or stormy weather. They are better confined to a roomy house.

Tell us your experience and way of handling your poultry and we will tell Our Folks about it, and the poultry pages of the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL for 1903 will be better than in any previous year.

Now that the holidays are over good roasters will be in demand and capons will be called for at paying prices. Corn is plentiful and there is no good reason for sending them to market thin in flesh.

For frosted wattles and combs, cuts or bruises of any kind, keep in the poultry house an ointment made by mixing in a pound of vaseline or cosmoline, a teaspoonful each of turpentine, crude petroleum, oil of tar and oil of sassafras.

If you expect to have a liberal supply of eggs look around now and secure a special market for strictly fresh eggs. When you get customers of the class you want, such as appreciate a good article and will pay what it is worth, religiously fulfil your part of the contract.

If you have a bird to ship by express here is a handy coop and one easily made. For a large single fowl the base should be 12x20 inches and the height 20 inches. For bottom and ends use 3-4 inch dressed pine and for sides and top 1-2 inch pine. Place the slats so close that the bird can not stick its head out. For winter use make one side solid.

Bone and Suet and Not Much Meat.

The following incident is strictly true and is by no means an unusual occurrence:

A farmer went into a butcher shop and bought a roast which weighed seven pounds, paying sixteen cents per pound.

After it was weighed the butcher cut out of it a good-sized bone and would have thrown it under the table, but the farmer; remembering his dog, said he would take the bone home with him. When he got home his wife weighed the bone and found it weighed just two pounds. Also, wrapped inside the meat, was nearly a pound of suet. A little suet is good, but when enough is put in to make all the dinner greasy one remembers that although meat is selling at sixteen cents suet is retailing at five cents a pound in country markets.

One is strongly reminded of that old story of the farmer who sold a cow to the butcher. After the sale was made the farmer decided he would take a quarter of the beef for his own use. Several days later he stopped at the meat market to receive the balance of his pay for the cow, when what was his amazement to find that he still owed a dollar and a half on the quarter of beef.

School Children's Manners.

There is one part of education that does not always receive its due attention in our public schools; that is the manners of the children. They pull, push and scratch, they speak to each other and even to the teachers, without respect. It is in the school that respect for the rights of others should be installed. If this principle generally obtained, it would insure each his own rights without difficulty or unpleasantness.

It is a difficult thing for a teacher with from forty to sixty pupils, and sometimes even more than this, under her charge, to maintain any semblance of order. The children are from homes with greatly differing home training. It is only good executive ability that can prevent turbulence. Still something can be done. The example of the teacher will go far. If she is invariably polite, it will have its influence. The teacher who can say "Mind your own busines," "Shut up" and similar remarks in a rough manner must expect to hear her pupils fling similar speeches and worse at each other. Scolding and railing or calling one "stupid" or "idiot" is undignified and is cause of disrespect in children. One can be firm and at the same time controlled.

One common fault of young people—and older people are not free from it—is that of not listening with attention when another is speaking, or interrupting with reply before one has made his meaning clear. When we, ourselves speak it is because we have something to say and wish others to hear it. Let us give the attention to others which we wish shown to us. A training in this matter of children both at home and at school would do much towards reducing the confusion that usually ensues whenever children get together. It will have the tendency to make one more careful of what one says, if one is sure of receiving attention when talking.—Milwaukee Journal.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000.000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. If you are contemplating a trip to the east, write the undersigned for information regarding rates via the "scenic line of the world." W. C. McBride, General Agent, M. J. Roche, Traveling Passenger Agent, 124 Third St., Portland, Oregon.

Something for Nothing.

That's what you want. It's what everybody wants. You can get it by paying a year in advance for the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL. Then we'll send you a whole year free the Western Poultry News, which is a big 32-page monthly illustrated magazine published at Lincoln, Neb. It is filled with helpful articles by poultry experts and people of practical experience.

YOUR WIFE MAY SEE YOU

Throw away your money. She does not seem to enjoy it. You do not seem to care. She does. Then please her by making a dollar or two without any effort on your part.

Here is the Secret.

All intelligent persons take several papers and magazines. If you send, you pay full price for the paper besides the expense of buying money orders and the time consumed in writing letters. Without fear of contradiction we state that the offer below has never been equaled in liberality. It is only by doing a lot of expensive advertising that we can do it.

The Orchard.

Never plant many sorts for market.

The orchard may be manured now; it won't hurt it.

The cows have no business in the orchard in the winter —or any other time.

Get ready to spray now. Send for spraying catalogues and read up carefully.

The tree agent, if he is honest, is all right. Don't set the dog on him unless he lies to you.

Cut off the black knot now from cherry and plum trees. Then tell a few neighbors about the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL.

A sheep will bark an apple tree as quick as a wink if you give it a chance when there is snow on the ground. Be careful.

Cornstalks, straw, plastering lath, muslin or course grade of wrapping hardware paper, tied around the stems of young fruit trees, will protect from rabbits. Then get up a WESTERN HOME JOURNAL club.

Look out for insect eggs on your fruit trees and pick and scrape them off. It is easy to find them when the trees are bare of leaves.

In selecting a small orchard of eight varieties of peaches for family use for planting next spring take our word for it and do not try new varieties to any extent. Here's a list of old reliables which will be found satisfactory. Get your list made up now and get your order in early: Two Mountain Rose, one Old Mixon, two Stump, one Elberta, one Chair's Choice, two Ward's Late, one Ford's Late, one Crawford's Late. These will take you all through the summer.

It would be hard to convince Mr. Burton, living near Mitchell, Ind., that apples are not a paying crop. His apple orchard consists of twenty-five acres. Every acre of this orchard yielded him $200 this last season. He considers the Winesap the most profitable variety because it is the only apple that may be depended on to bear a good crop every year. While the quality of Grimes Golden is the finest it has the fault of not being a good keeper. Mr. Burton is superintendent of the State Horticultural Experiment Station, a short distance from his home, and on which he grows 141 varieties of apples.

Hop Picking on the Pacific Coast.

On this coast, where so large a portion of the beer material of the globe is raised, hop picking is an industry by itself, and a little harvest is reaped by the inhabitants from the fields of graceful vines.

They gather from near and far, by boat, by rail, in wagons and on foot, old and young, poor, or in easy circumstances; some to earn money to eke out the winter's scanty fare, others to earn the means to discharge some obligation or buy some coveted treasure too expensive for the family purse.

They pitch their tents under the firs and oaks, or arrange their belongings in shacks furnished by the owner of the hop field. Vegetables and fruit are usually furnished free by the same party, and from forty to fifty cents a box is paid for the work. The boxes hold nine bushels, and a new hand is usually some time filling the first few boxes, but after a time the star picker strips off five or six boxes a day with ease.

The evenings—nay, even the nights—are filled with noisy, hilarious glee; bonfires, games, songs, dancing, taffy pulling, any and everything that offer a chance for fun, come to be the order of the night.

When two or three weeks picking are over, and the pickers take up the homeward march, it is with light hearts and plump purses, albeit with an alarming amount of dirt in the erstwhile clean bedding and clothing, and too tired to see straight.

But O ye drinkers of beer! (None of our folks, of course.) Ye should see the things besides hops that go into those baskets,—the crawling and creeping things, the bugs and the lice and worms and flies that deliver up their lives in the fire and brimstone of the hop drying house, and are crushed and steeped with the hops later on for the delectation of the beer drinker! And lo! he samples it with great gusto, and praises its flavor, and wots not of the insects and reptiles that have their share in his delicious beverage.

The Duty on Sugar.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, is quoted as follows, on the question of reduction of duty on Cuban sugar:

I oppose the placing of Cuban sugar on the free list or the removal of fifty per cent of the Dingley rates of duty on Cuban sugar, but I have been in favor of the twenty per cent reduction in line with the reciprocity proposition and have told the President so repeatedly.

"Free sugar, or even fifty per cent of the rate on Cuban sugar, would ruin the beet sugar industry of this country, but I believe the twenty per cent reduction proposed would not be injurious.

With this attitude of the cabinet adviser who is at the head of the interests directly concerned, it would seem natural that the Administration may not be so strenuous in sacrificing American sugar-beet interests in behalf of Cuban reciprocity, however desirable a fair reciprocity arrangement with Cuba may be.

Nearly Finished.

A stranger came into a church during a sermon and took a back seat.

He whispered: "How long has he been preaching?"

"I don't know exactly," replied the old member; "about thirty or forty years, I think."

"Well," said the stranger, "I guess I will stay, then, for he must be nearly done."

LITERARY NOTES.

CONKEY'S HOME JOURNAL.

Conkey's Home Journal (Chicago) is rapidly making for itself a reputation as a magazine of thoroughly practical suggestions for the home. In addition to giving its readers the usual quota of fiction and special articles, it contains many departments which are of peculiar interest to women and girls. This is especially true of the "Lessons in Lace-Making," the "Coiffure Ornaments," the "Original Designs for Waists," the "Pattern Department," "Miss Finch's Table Talks" and a series of illustrated articles on "How to Set the Table." It is announced in the January issue that a new series of articles on "How to Raise Pets" will begin in the February issue.

DELINEATOR.

It is only in late years that lecturers and writers have taken it upon themselves to counsel fathers and mothers upon the proper bringing up of their children, and it may be said, incidentally, that since the world began generations have developed into healthy manhood and womanhood without such advice. It is very difficult to advise beneficially on such a subject. Methods that are applicable in the training of one child are not always applicable to his brother. The subject will not admit of universal or even general statements. However, in one point, at least, we do agree with Mrs. Birney, the writer of a paper in the January Delineator entitled Childhood, that "the erroneous sense of proprietorship with which parents are wont to regard their children is a source of many mistakes in their management." If the point of view of privileged guardianship would supersede that of ownership, the little ones, in many cases, would be happier.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Journey to the Unknown Regions of the Wild North and his Exploration of the great Mackenzie River from its sources to the Arctic Ocean may easily rank first among the many daring achievements of our race on this continent. His modest account will be followed very eagerly by all readers who care for the stirring adventures and hair-breadth escapes of the early pioneers in North America.

In his story he included an account of the Early American Fur Trade as it existed in 1789 and 1793. The book was issued a century ago and again in 1814, but has never been reprinted since then.

In view of the fact that the opening of the territory west of the Rocky Mountains followed quickly after Mackenzie's Voyages, and the great Hudson Bay Company immediately started to stud the whole northern country with small trading posts, whence have been drawn since incalcuable riches in the furs of the North, the quiet, unimpassioned story of the sturdy Scotchman's victory over almost incredible privations and obstacles, is invaluable as a contribution to our knowledge of Early American Exploration. It takes your friend and your enemy working together to hurt you to the heart—the one to slander you and the other to get the news to you.—Mark Twain.

"It is wrong to speak ill of anyone; a shrug of the shoulders and a significant glance will answer just as well."

I hate, as the gates of hell, the man who says one thing with his lips and hides another in his heart.—Homer.

The Spokane Newspaper Union now prints on the average 75 papers each week, the Northern Pacific Union of Portland, 117 papers and the Seattle Union 60 papers. These three lists contain a majority of the country papers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho and a large number in Montana and British Columbia. Alexander & Co., Spokane, Wash., are the authorized agents for the lists.

Speaking of the Ben Davis apple, the little worth of which growers are just finding out, the Rural New Yorker recently gave some illustrations showing what the Ben Davis was good for. Among them are apples with handles adjusted for use as hammers; others filled with cloves, so as to make clove apples, that were at one time found on the parlor mantels of a majority of country homes. It was the size and color of the Ben Davis which hoodwinked people into a belief in its value.

Though it is the busy season it will not pay to skip the advertisements in this paper, for they are very interesting and well worth the attention of every progressive man. So take a day off and read each one.

Are Your Potatoes Decaying?

I have been shoveling and sorting my potatoes that are stored for the winter in our cellars and find the work is badly needed because of decaying potatoes in the bins and piles. A leaf blight pervaded all over the potato growing sections of the Northwest which caused the tops to die before the tubers were ripe. This disease always injures the keeping qualities of any variety of potatoes, especially the least vigorous. We find the decaying potatoes a filthy, oppressive, mass of rot that will cause others to break down on account of their being wet and exposed to the rot germs. We advise all our readers to examine their potatoes at once and thus learn their condition.

All That is Needed.

Admiral Schley was strolling around the picturesque Naval Cemetery at Annapolis the other day, when, happening to meet an old sailor, he said, in his kindly way:

"Jack, this is a beautiful spot." Saluting, the weather-beaten salt replied:

"Aye, aye, sir. And it'll be still finer, your Honor, when some more of our good Admirals gets planted here."

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," was educated at Union College, Schenectady, and in Germany. He was a journalist for some years.

—According to Mr. Ruskin's latest criticism there is no genius about the English language. He defines the Welsh language as the language of music, the Scotch of poetry and the Irish of wit.

—The late Prof. Alexander Johnston, of Princeton, left the complete MS. of a second "History of the United States." Its plan somewhat resembles that of his former valuable text book, but it is suited to a shorter course and less mature minds.

—Tolstoi, the Russian novelist, although of noble birth, affects the life of a peasant and the trade of a shoemaker. He dresses like a village artisan; his shirt is soiled with soot, his trousers begrimed with mud, and his whole appearance is that of a working-man.

—The largest private library in Washington is probably George Bancroft's, numbering twelve thousand volumes. He has a copy of "Don Juan" which Lord Byron gave him with an autograph note pasted in it, and he has poems which Wordsworth gave him. He is an old man and reads no more.

—Martin Farquhar Tupper, the once famous author of "Proverbial Philosophy," is still alive. He lives in a handsome country house in England. He bears a striking resemblance to Longfellow in his old age. Tupper does not agree with his old schoolfellow, Gladstone, on the question of home rule.

—Alphonse Daudet had determined to remain a bachelor, because he was afraid should he make a wrong step in matrimony he might dull his imagination; but meeting Mlle Julie Allard, who was a charming writer as well as a lovely woman, all his fears were removed. His marriage has been a very happy one.

—In 1815 an English collector, Sir Thomas Phillips, followed the track of the allied armies in France and bought up all books, manuscripts, etc., that he could lay his hands on, believing that one day these collections would be immensely valuable. The French Government is now offering fabulous sums to his heirs for many of the historical manuscripts in this mass of library material.

To Fatten Cattle.

A Chicago man has recently invented a method for fattening cattle, which, it is declared, will reduce the cost one-half, and thus bring down the price of beef. The invention consists of a large case made of galvanized iron, about three feet wide and deep, and five feet high. The case contains a number of shallow drawers, in which corn can be placed in layers about three inches deep. All around the outside of the case, on the top and four sides, is a layer of common wood moss, such as grows in the woods everywhere. This layer of moss is about three inches thick, and is compressed by wire netting, so that it forms practically a sponge, capable of absorbing a large quantity of water. The corn is placed in the drawers and water poured into the moss. Almost immediately a process of sprouting begins that in three or four days converts the hard grain into a mass of tender young shoots, fed by the softened pulp. It is then ready for feeding, and is taken out of the drawers, fresh corn being substituted, and the process of sprouting repeated. It is declared that the best kind of beef is produced by this system of feed, that it is firm and tender, and fat is distributed throughout the lean, and that all the corn is digestible, instead of one-half, as in ordinary feeding. The moss has to be renewed once a year, and the case will last twenty years. A company has been formed to exploit the invention.—Philadelphia Record.

President Roosevelt's Strength and Weakness.

President Roosevelt invites underestimation because he conceals the prudence and common sense or his Dutch ancestry under a surface of haste and fire inherited probably through the maternal Southern line; says David Graham Phillips, in "Everybody's Magazine," and he also hides, or only by hint reveals, his thorough knowledge of practical politics, gained in twenty years of personal experience and in intimate friendship with such "practicals" as ex-Senator "Ed" Murphy of Troy and Senator "Matt" Quay of Pennsylvania. If his opponents will read with care the public paper in which he settled and settled finally and settled right the Schley controversy at its very worst stage, when even that profound master of political diplomacy, William McKinley, had utterly failed, they may get a clearer notion of the brain that is at work behind those gleaming glasses and those often impulsive utterances. Also they should not overlook Mr. Roosevelt's acute moral sense. That is the most valuable asset a politician can have because, while he may elect not to act upon its indications, it still prevents him from doing those baldly immoral acts which the people do not forget.

Acute

Chest Pains From "Tobacco Heart."

Valvular Heart Disease Threatened.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

The effect of excessive smoking shown by such symptoms as heart pains, heartburn, smothering spells, shortness of breath, fluttering and palpitation, is most serious. If your heart is in any way affected you should at once begin the use of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure which enriches the blood, regulates the heart's action and improves the circulation.

"I am a local newspaper man and have been an inveterate smoker since my boyhood. A little over a year ago I first noticed symptoms of heart trouble, palpitation and acute pains and a peculiar, I might say, indescribable feeling across my chest. Local physicians said I had 'tobacco heart.' I quit smoking for a while and took regular doses of digitalis and belladona with some relief but the same old symptoms were still there. A friend of mine here recently died of what the doctor said was valvular disease of the heart. Knowing that his symptoms were similar to mine I felt that my time too was limited, although I am still a young man, in my thirty-ninth year. In Skillman & Stone's drug store here Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure was recommended. I began taking it and I can positively state that its effect is marvelous. I have just finished my third bottle and feel like a 'kid' and believe I am cured. This letter is the spontaneous utterance of one who wishes to thank you for benefits received."—WM. N. HER MAJESTY VICTORIA.

Madame Albani Writes Entertainingly of Her Home Life.

Mme. Albani in the New York World: A good deal has been said lately in the newspapers concerning Queen Victoria, but so much of it is calculated to give false impressions with regard to the Queen that I am tempted to send you a few notes about her, and, as I have had the honor for a long time past of personally being acquainted with her Majesty, I hope you will believe they are true.

With regard to the Queen's public capacity it is needless for me to speak, as all the world knows how she has fulfilled her numerous and arduous duties, and I shall therefore confine myself to endeavoring to give some idea of her private life, and especially of her in her Scotch highland home, as it is there that I have seen her most and have had the best opportunity of judging.

The Queen rises early in the morning, and after breakfast reads and answers her letters and transacts business. She is fond of the open air, and if the weather be favorable often has her papers taken into a tent or summer-house upon the lawn, which commands an extensive and most lovely view of Lochnagar, its surrounding mountains and the valley of the Dee.

After this comes a walk or a drive in a pony carriage, and then luncheon, at which no one is ever present except members of the royal family.

During the afternoon the Queen takes a long drive, often extending to over thirty miles and always in an open carriage. She dines late, never before 8:30 p. m. An hour spent in the drawing-room talking with the guests who may have been invited finishes the day, and the Queen retires to rest.

The Queen is faithful to her old friends and thoughtful for every body with whom she comes in contact, remembering the smallest details about them, their families, and their occupations, and giving evidence of this at most unexpected moments. A circumstance which happened to me justifies strongly the truth of this. Four years ago I was singing at the Royal Opera at Berlin, and was not even aware that the Queen knew of my engagement there. I, soon after my debut, was at a large dinner party at the English Embassy, and sitting next to me was one of the gentlemen of the Crown Princess' household. During dinner he put into my hand a telegram, telling me to read it. This was from the Queen to her daughter (now the Empress Frederick), recommending me to her and desiring her to do all she could for me. Needless to say that after this I was so excited that I could eat no dinner, and I insisted on keeping the telegram, one of my precious souvenirs.

Her Majesty is fond of music and is a good musician. She studied music with Mendelssohn and singing with Lablache. As a consequence of this teaching she prefers the old Italian music to any other, but at the same time she can appreciate any thing that is good in the modern music. This I know from experience, as I have sung all kinds of music to her, the new and the old. The Queen is much touched by a simple, homely ballad, and after I have sung to her songs like "Robin Adair" or "Old Folks at Home" I have seen tears in her eyes.

She has been in retirement for a great many years, and during that time has not been present at a single operatic performance; yet she remembers well the old artists and the manner in which they rendered the various well-known roles. For instance, when I told her that I was studying the "Huguenots," and was going to sing it in America, she said that was one of her favorite operas; that she thought Mario was superb as Raoul, and that although Grisi sang the music splendidly, she never realized her idea of the character of Valentine.

The Queen herself looks after the welfare of all her tenants and servants, and if any one of them is sick she is the first one to pay them a visit and take them little comforts.

During her stay in Scotland she takes a pleasure during her drives in stopping at various cottages to ask after the welfare of the inmates. When so occupied the Queen is as kind and simple as any ordinary lady could be. When she paid me one of her first visits and took tea with me my little boy was so much struck with this that he said to me after she was gone: "O mamma, what a little woman for such a big Queen!" It is all this that has made the Queen so beloved by all her subjects.

I have endeavored in these few jottings to give a slight idea of Queen Victoria, and if in doing so I have intruded myself too much it is because I can not help it, the above being my personal experience of her Majesty.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

How Can I Keep Up with the Times?

IT is pretty hard to keep well informed on the political news, the scientific news, the literary news, the educational movements, the great business developments, the hundreds of interesting and valuable articles in the hundreds of excellent magazines. About the only way it can be done by the average busy man and woman is to read a magazine like "The Review of Reviews," and, as it is the only magazine of the sort, it is a good thing to send $2.50 for a year's subscription.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT says:
"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND says:
"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."

Newport Rainy Daisies.

The Newport woman is not afraid of rain. She has a long rubber coat and a rubber golf hat, and she drives out in any weather. In the heaviest downpour fashionable women may be seen on Bellevue avenue in rubber driving coats, driving at a good pace in an open runabout. The young contingent among the cottagers have their coats, hats, high rubber shoes, and delight to give rainy day fishing parties. Women who like to walk array themselves in like manner and start out without umbrellas.

Drunkards Paupers and Lunatics.

In a recent treatise on alcoholism by Trull it is stated that in England 75 per cent of all cases of pauperism are due to drink and in Germany 90 per cent. In Germany drink leads to 1,600 cases of suicide a year and supplies the insane asylums with 3,000 victims. —Selected.

A Bamboo Lighthouse In Japan.

The Japanese are always doing something that seems peculiar to Americans but that proves to be very practical, after all. Now what American would ever think of suggesting that a lighthouse be made of bamboo? I dare say some of our wise engineers would say "Pooh!" very disdainfully at such a proposition. But the fact is that a lighthouse of bamboo has been completed by the Japanese.-and it is said to resist the waves better than any kind of wood.

"WHAT SHALL WE EAT?"

Every day the same old question, What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner? assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. There is a daily department in THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD, which is intended to answer this question satisfactorily every day in the year. It is entitled "Meals for a Day," and provides menus for the three meals every day, with the necessary recipes. These menus and recipes are carefully selected by THE RECORD-HERALD'S household editor, and cash prizes are awarded to the best that are received. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the competition. For full particulars, see the "Meals for a Day" department in THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD.

We have been manufacturing sewing machines for over a quarter of a century, and have established a reputation for ourselves and our machines that is the envy of all others. Our "New Home" machine has never been rivaled as a family machine.—It stands at the head of all High Grade sewing machines, and stands on its own merits.

The "New Home" is the only really HIGH GRADE Sewing Machine on the market.

It is not necessary for us to enter into a trust to save our credit or pay any debts as we have no debts to pay. We have never entered into competition with manufacturers of low grade cheap machines that are made to sell regardless of any intrinsic merits. Do not be deceived, when you want a sewing machine don't send your money away from home; call on a "New Home" Dealer, he can sell you a better machine for less than you can purchase elsewhere. If there is no dealer near you, write direct to us.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A SPOKANE FARM.

Victims of Alcohol.

One of the king's physicians touched upon a most important subject, which greatly concerns social conditions in Great Britain, in a recent address upon "Present Day Dangers of Intemperance Among Women and the Best Methods of Meeting Them."

Lack of occupation and childlessness among women whose husbands leave them during the day, worry, bodily weakness, "nagging" and pains which women have to suffer, he mentioned as some of the causes. Cases of heredity were rare, and the encouragement of example in youth was more often the cause. Drink, he said, might become a disease, but it started as an indulgence. Drugs, shampooing and galvanic treatment were all described as of little use as cures. Rest and removal of the cause were the only real remedies.

Even doctors and nurses, he said, were foolish enough to say, why deprive women patients of the thing which gives them comfort? It was necessary to stop that sort of talk. It could be done, provided there were no friends who were such criminal lunatics as to smuggle in alcohol. The iecturer would have teetotal doctors and nurses.

Dr. Barlow having dealt with the medical aspect of the questions, the bishop of London added that he had had case after case of character and life spoiled among the rich by alcohol and morphia. Turning to the East End, which he knows so well, the bishop said that out of 1,000 women in an East End workhouse today 500 were there from alcohol, and that 90 per cent of women with children in the workhouse infirmary were there through alcohol.

Apropos of the drink question, William S. Caine, M. P., who has discovered some startling facts in connection with the drink question in India, will bring them before the house of commons. Within the last few years there has been a 25 per cent increase in the consumption of liquor in India, although the population has increased only 17 1-2 per cent. Mr. Caine will suggest that the government apply the local veto act to India to support the better class of Mohammedans and Hindus in their attempt to prevent the spread of alcoholism.

Liquor is, of course, a government monopoly in India, and temperance people here are agitating against the continuance of these conditions.—Cable to Chicago Record-Herald.

The Mottled Anconas.

BY P. J. GREEN.

Much interest is being manifested in this new and promising breed of fowls. These birds being exhibited for the first time at the Oregon State Poultry Show in Dec. 1902, and the highest scoring female in the show was an Ancona pullet, scoring 95½, atrracted the attention and interest of poultrymen far and near so that we could hardly supply the demand for eggs and we have had to refuse a number of enquiries for stock. They are bound to win the hearts of farmers and pouftrymen, who want chickens that will lay when eggs are at their highest prices and other hens are resting and their owners kicking or doing something worse.

They belong to that great and popular egg class—the Mediterranean, and are closely related to the Leghorns, and sprang from a cross which originated simultaneously the Minorca, also a famous egg breed. Because of these facts we have no reason to doubt or suspicion their merits.

We first learned to admire and prize these noble birds while a resident of the state of Ohio. Leaving there for Oregon in 1900 we sold our stock and supposed we could of course find them in Oregon, but we were surprised and disappointed to learn that there were none here, to the knowledge of poultrymen; so we were compelled to send to Ohio for stock. We found that they did not do well the first season, it being necessary to acclimate them to Oregon. They have the Leghorn single comb, weight and shape, they are good foragers, but are not as nervous as the Leghorns. The legs and beaks are either pure yellow or yellow mottled with black, they have cream as white earlobes, pretty black feathers tipped with snow-white, making them a very pretty plummage bird wherever seen. Their merits are: Prolific layers of white eggs that are large for their size and weight, palatable and juicy meat, hardiness, rapid growth, the pullets laying when 18 and 20 weeks old, non-setters and small eaters. As near as we can learn these fowls originated in one of the central provinces of Italy called Ancona. They are extensively raised in England, both single and Rose comb, and were introduced to America about twelve years ago by Mr. Branthoover, who is now the leading breeder and importer in the east, and who claims that they are unexcelled as winter layers, which has been corroborated by our experience as far as it goes with other breeds. Mr. Branthoover is also the writer of the description of the Ancona in the "Standard of Perfection." The cut of cockrel in this issue of the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL is from a photo of one of his best cockrels which we have secured to head our pen for 1903.

We believe that as surely as that the Leghorns and Minorcas, etc., have come to stay and have won a permanent place in the esteem of the poultry fanciers, so also will the Anconas as they become better known. Of course they have their enemies as well as any other breed in which some persons can see nothing desirable and that because of narrowness and prejudice. If a man wants eggs for market the Ancona will please him, if he wants pounds of meat he had better raise calves and hogs.

Increase the Milk Flow.

Happily we have fed stuffs that are rich in protein and at the same time of low cost, because they are byproducts of the manufacture of other articles of trade. Of these wheat bran, gluten feeds and oil meals, both from cotton and flaxseed, are the most available. Of all feed rich in protein it costs less for a pound of protein when it is bought in gluten feeds than in any other material available for supplying this element. The protein in gluten feeds is not low in price, but is very palatable and highly digestible. Palatability and digestibility should not be lost sight of, as a feed may be rich in the elements of nutrition and still not of the highest value, because it is not as palatable as some feeds of lower nutritive value, but so palatable that it will bring better results.

Clover is the ideal roughage for dairy cows, as it is almost exactly balanced, and if these two feeds are to be had at a low cost we would not need to worry about balanced rations, because nature has in these done her perfect work. When compounding rations, it is sometimes cheapest to feed a wide ration, that is one rich in carbohydrates in order to get enough protein from another source. As a rule, however, it is cheapest to use one of the feeds we get from byproducts than to feed a ration that is very wide.

Corn stover, timothy hay, millet or Hungarian grass, hay and straw are all poor in protein, and when they are fed one or more of the concentrates should be used in sufficient quantities to bring the ration to the proper proportion. Roughly speaking, to ten pounds of any of these rough feeds two pounds of linseed oil meal or gluten meal should be used. In the various experiment stations this question of supplying proper protein has been very thoroughly studied, and the consensus of opinion at this time is that protein is a very important part of the ration.—Dairy and Creamery.

Do Animals Reason.

If animal instinct is not reason it is closely akin to it. The Stamford Recorder relates a clever trick performed by an intelligent "Gem" of a dog. In some way he became possessed of a glass jar partially filled with chipped beef, but how to get the beef out of the jar was a puzzle. He tried in vain with teeth and claws in the grass at the rear of a block and finally discovered the futility of his efforts, he promptly carried it around to the front, where he tossed it up and let it fall upon the stone sidewalk until the glass was shattered and his coveted treasure released.

Apropos of the September Success has an authentic story of a horse by Mr. Warman, who relates this of an uneducated farm horse:

The old horse had pushed the barn door open and walked out. The door being out of plumb at the hinges, swung against the side of the barn. The horse turned about, hooked his feedfiller over the edge of the door, slammed it shut and started to walk away, but he had closed the door with so much force that it bounded open, though not so wide as before. Then he stopped, turned about again, and closed it not quite so hard. This time the rebound threw it open about ten inches. The horse looked at it for five or ten seconds and then nosed it up again very softly. It remained closed and the horse walked off. When midway in the barn lot he stopped, looked in the direction of the barn, and then went to the water trough and took a long drink.

DELINEATOR.

A magazine thirty years old:—The Christmas (December) number of the The Delineator is also the thirtieth anniversary nnmber.

To do justice to this number, which for beauty and utility touches the highest mark, it would be necessary to print the entire list of contents. It is sufficient to state that in it the best modern writers and artists are generously represented. The book contains over 230 pages, with 34 full-page illustrations, of which 20 are in two or more colors. The magnitude of this December number, for which 728 tons of paper and six tons of ink have been used, may be understood from the fact that 91 presses running 14 hours a day, have been required to print it; the binding alone of the edition of 915,000 copies representing over 20,000,000 sections which had to be gathered individully by human hands.

EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE.

"My observation has been that most of the bad men of the border were blue-eyed," says E. C. Little in Everybody's Magazine. A man with a soft blue eye will always be selected by a bully as a victim in preference to these snapping black, brown, or cold gray eyes. On the average, men possess about the same amount of courage, and when the blue-eyed man has been imposed on sufficiently he resents it; one combat precipitates another; till he gets a reputation up to which he feels he must live. There is your fighting man.

The Mormon Temple.

The Mormon temple at Salt Lake City is no doubt the most substantial and well constructed religious edifice in the United States, if not in the world. Corner stone laid April 6, 1853, cap stone April 6, 1892 and dedicated April 6, 1893, over forty years of constant labor being consumed in its construction. This magnificent structure 200 feet long, 100 feet wide is built entirely of Utah white granite, beautifully carved, symbolic of the Mormon faith, surmounted by six towers, the highest being 230 feet from the ground, supporting a bronze statue of the angel Maroni. The cost of this building is about $6,000,000. There are many other attractions at Salt Lake City of interest to the traveler or tourist, where a day can be well spent. The Rio Grande is the only Trans-continental route passing directly through Salt Lake City, where a stop-over is allowed on all classes of tickets. The service of the Rio Grande lines is unexcelled. Three trains daily between Ogden and Denver, carrying all classes of modern equipment. Something for Nothing.

That's what you want. It's what everybody wants. You can get it by paying a year in advance for the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL. Then we'll send you a whole year free the Western Poultry News, which is a big 32-page monthly illustrated magazine published at Lincoln, Neb. It is filled with helpful articles by poultry experts and people of practical experience.

Agriculture is the foundation of all wealth.

Land is the only real, natural, stable property.

The farmer feeds them all, hence the farmer can starve them all.

Close up the speculator's business by removing the uncertainties of prices of farm products.

The farmers produce the original products. From these nearly all other products are evolved.

A profitable business inspires enterprise and expenditure, resulting in improvements, greater intelligence and happiness.

If the farmer would stop marketing for a single week, the effect would be world wide, demoralizing every enterprise.

Impotent, yet possessed of unlimited power, has characterized the farmers as a class in the past. To such the American Society of Equity plan will be a revelation.

The backbone of the country are the farmers. When you weaken the backbone you cripple the whole body. Therefore, be careful how you treat the farmers.

No person in his right mind will dispute that the farmers hold the key to the world's industrial life; yet no other class of people has been so helpless and dependent as they.

Education and agitation will bring the farmers into their true birthright as dictators to the balance of the world. They will do it wisely because it is clearly to their interests to do so.

It is the duty of every farmer, stockman, fruitman and every friend of agriculture in its various branches to help along this campaign of education and agitation until every person interested in agricultural pursuits is a convert.

When farmers co-operate to get profitable prices for their products their farms will double in value at once. To make a $10,000 farm worth $20,000 only requires Twentieth century business methods in farming, and the individual effort on the part of each farmer. Is it worth the effort.

Temperance is indispensable. If you can't bring that into your business, you might as well make up your mind at once that you are destined to ultimate failure.

Tie a string almost a yard long to a common door key and take the string in the right hand, holding it so the key will clear the floor by three or four inches. If you hold the key steadily enough it will begin to swing back and forth in a straight line. Let another person take your left hand, the motion of the key will change from the pendulum like swing to a circular swing. If a third person will place his hand on the shoulder of the second person the key will stop. Try it and then explain it if you can.

Shame is a test of character. The feeling of shame is one which everybody understands, because it is one which everyone has experienced. Probably there is no one so steeped in degredation that he has wholly lost the sense of shame; certainly there is no one so near. perfection as to have no cause for it. No one is too high or too low to be affected by it, and whatever be its cause, the emotion itself is invariably a painful one. In different degrees and for different reasons it affects the heart of the schoolboy at his play and the Judge upon the bench; it brings a blush to the cheek of the maiden in her closet, and dims the pride of the soldier on the battle field. While it seems a specially fitting emotion for the coward or the criminal, it sometimes strikes a far deeper pang on the hero or the saint. It is not the one who most deserves its infliction who most surely suffers from it; a sensitive nature will often be keenly alive to its sting, when an obtuse one will feel not the slightest prick.

Nature is ever experimenting, seemingly, with a view to varying and bettering her fruit and vegetable products. Many of these variations have little to recommend them, and many others escape the observation of man. Some are discovered, however, are valuable and are carried all over the world. The seedless orange is a case in point. A little cutting from a freak tree at Bahia sent to this country is now a good sized tree and the ancestor of the million seedless orange trees of California. A seedless lemon cutting was brought from Corfu, not long ago, and now a cutting has been sent to Washington, from a freak tree found on the shore of the Mediterranean, which yields white oranges. If the oranges prove of fine flavor and otherwise desirable they will be common in a few years.

True Friendship.

Serious friendship cannot be enjoyed except by people of character. Those who, themselves, light and frivolous, choose friends from whim or fancy, or drift into the relation from close proximity, or those who make passionate or extravagant demands, forgetting the other duties of life in a swift transport of feeling, must forever remain ignorant of the depth, the solemity and the sacredness of which friendship is capable. Emerson says: "Our friendships hurry to short and poor conclusions because we have made them a texture, a fibre of the human heart. The laws of friendship are austere and eternal—of one web with the law of nature and of morals. Bnt we have aimed at a swift and petty benefit to such a sudden sweetness. We snatch at the slowest fruit in the whole garden of God, which many summers and many winters must ripen."

A Question Answered.

"Where can I get the latest music." That question so often asked is easily answered if one knows the address of Hamilton S. Baker, 139 Fifth Ave, New York. We have received from this well known music house the following pieces of merit: "The Puritan," a march two-step by Charles J. Rockwell, 50c; "The Dance of the Moonbeams," a gavotte composed by Ed. Silvia, 50c; "'Tis the Song that Fills My Memory," words and music by Burt Woodyatt, 50c; "The Organ's Only Tune," a pathetic song, 50c; "My Own Little Polly," words and music. 50c; "Secrets the Flowers Impart," words and music, 50c. The last three are by Richard R. Hanch.

Learn How to Vote.

The first duty of every young man is to take an interest in politics. Not the kind of interest that shouts and shoots rockets at election rallies—though even that may have its uses—but the interest that leads one to study the principles of government as practiced in republics first, and then as compared with other forms of government. Inasmuch as it is the duty of every man to vote, so it is his duty to vote for well understood principles and beliefs, and not merely for party name and high-sounding phrases shouted by perspiring orators who receive pay in proportion to their ability to shout convincingly. In nine cases out of ten the young man casting his first ballot does so on lines learned from long association with his father's political beliefs and expressions. It is rarely the case that the young man's first vote differs from that of his father's, and while this may speak volumes for his filial confidence and sense of filial duty, it speaks not at all of his independence of thought and action. A study of the science of economic government is well worthy the attention of any qualified voter.—Fairfield Standard.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Brooklyn, New York.

Does it Pay?

A man came into a certain town one evening on the train, registered at the hotel and went to bed. In the morning he announced the line of business he would follow in that place. "But I am engaged in that business," observed a bystander, "and there is hardly enough patronage to make a living for two." "You are?" replied the newcomer, "well, I am sorry about that, but I got a copy of your town paper; didn't see the business advertised, and, naturally concluded this was the place for me. My goods are shipped to this point and I reckon I'll have to open up." So the newcomer stayed and by judicious and attractive advertising built up a fine and lucrative trade. The man who through carelessness had invited a ruinous competion drifted out of the business and became a sheepherder in Montana. He was bound to follow something that didn't need advertising.

MARSYAS.

To hear Apollo play upon his lyre;
To struggle bravely, and, not least, to know
It was a god that caused our overthrow;
To feel within us the immortal fire;
What more, forsooth, might earth born bard desire,
What more has life, the niggard, to bestow,
What fate diviner waits us here below
Than this—to live, to strive and to expire?

Thrice happy Marsyas! In the cruel death
The god, ungenerous in his triumph, gave;
Didst thou not smile within thy heart to know
That since he hushed thy music laden breath
And hid thy gold voiced lute within the grave,
Apollo knew thee for no paltry foe?

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

A STRANGE PAIR.

A Cat and a Parrot Dwell In Friendship Together.

Fur and feathers do not agree very well as a rule, even in a woman's toilet. In real life, of course, you all know they are deadly enemies. If you have a bird, do not keep a cat, and if you have a cat, do not keep a bird. Above all things, do not keep a parrot and a cat, for the two can stir up more trouble than anything else known outside of a Kansas cyclone.

It is rarely indeed that the two can be found living in peaceful amity. The accompanying picture represents such a couple. It was taken by Albert English, in Waterford, Conn., who maintains that he possesses in the pair the most remarkable couple he has ever heard of.

The parrot is never caged. The door stands wide open for it to enter its house when it pleases, but it rarely, if ever, goes inside. It sleeps at night perched on the back of a great rocking chair, in which the cat takes its naps. Never during the day does the cat lie down that the bird does not sit beside it and keep watch as a guardian angel for the approach of danger in the shape of stray dogs that may happen along. Should one approach Pussy has timely warning in the Polly's simulation of a dog's barking. When the cat has made its position safe, Poll proceeds to berate the offending canine which has disturbed the domestic felicity of the pair in the strongest English that tongue can command.

The friendship grew out of the cat saving the bird's life when the latter was very young. Before that time Poll had no use for Puss. In an unguarded moment he allowed a strange cat to approach near enough to seize him and pinion him beneath a paw. But before the cat could fasten his teeth in the bird Pussy had attacked the stranger. The latter got the worst licking it had ever experienced and ever after gave the bird and cat a wide berth.

From that day the friendship between the two began, and it has since been sealed by continual manifestations of good feeling.

Women and the Civil Service.

Chief Examiner Servin of the civil service commission, confirms the statement of Commissioner Harlow. "It is claimed," he says, "that women cannot adapt themselves to as great a variety of work as can men. They may be all right in a certain line, but when they are put on something else it is very hard for them to get the hang of it. They are also inclined not only to insist on having all the privileges in the way of vacations and sick leave to which they are entitled, but they often expect special consideration and special favors." Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderlip, who has general supervision of the clerical force of the treasury department, indorsed practically all that the officials of the civil service commission had said.

The discovery of these feminine disabilities has only recently been made. Ever since the experiment of appointing women was first tried, nearly 40 years ago, successive heads of departments have testified to the satisfactory work of their women employees. They have even in some cases given women credit for greater punctuality, industry and efficiency than men. We must, therefore, be permitted to question the correctness of these novel assertions. The real reason why women are being displaced is political. More and more the offices are used as perquisites and are given in payment of political services. Women have no votes and are not wanted.—Boston Woman's Journal.

One More Field For Women.

To an energetic woman may be given the credit for originating a new occupation for women. She went to one of the most popular summer hotel proprietors last summer and proposed to him that for her board and a certain remuneration she would act as an "introducer" during the summer. When the plan was explained to him, he simply jumped at it.

The woman, of course, was well dressed, says the New York Herald, and accustomed to the usages of the best society. She was to become acquainted with the patrons as they arrived, and then, in an easy, social way, she was to introduce them to each other, using tact, bringing them together through mutual acquaintances and friends, and bringing about in this way a friendly intercourse among the patrons.

"LAUGH AND GROW FAT."

Life is such a serious business to the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous short story on the editorial page as well as "Out of the Ginger Jar," noted for its snappy qualities, and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorists in the country. In addition to all these the Sunday issue always includes a comic section guaranteed to produce laughter from the most lugubrious of mortals. Then the inimitable "Bob" Burdette, one of the most noted of American humorists, is a regular contributor to THE SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD, and every issue contains, in addition, other special articles of a delightfully humorous character.

FOLLY OF FERRIS

By Amos Dunning.

Copyright by Amos Dunning.

A dash of crimson, a flash of amber, a glint of snow—were there ever such lips, eyes and shoulders?

"Clever, you say? Most pretty women"—

"Are not?—decidedly—law of compensation, of course. Dea has too much—quite unfair—beauty, brain, blood."

"Brain for what—art?"

Ganning tilted his head; the light searched his keen, tired face; two ugly, curving wrinkles that bracketed his nose deepened into furrows as he laughed.

"Art—bah—men! It takes brain to bag birds. That's Gayns dancing with her. He's the latest and got money. She'll give him a week at least."

A waltz wave had swept her close to them. A swish of foamy skirt, a waft from a rose, a laugh like a flute, and the gorgeous, writhing current drew her in.

Ferris got upon his feet quickly, looking after her. He did not know that he had moved till he heard Ganning's laugh. He sat down and tried to copy it, but failed.

"See here," said Ganning.

Ferris looked down. A tiny fluff of lace lay at his feet.

"One of her tricks," sneered Ganning.

Ferris picked it up. A morsel of lawn and lace, with a quaint little crest in the corner, and a fragrance as fresh as a shower.

"Not a ballroom breath," mused Ferris. Ganning was right—it took brain.

"I've this two step with her," said Ganning. "I'll return the thing if you like."

Ferris' hand closed over it. The other saw it and smiled. His smile was more unpleasant than his laugh, and Ferris tossed the handkerchief toward him awkwardly—so awkwardly that it fell to the floor. Ganning smiled again and picked it up.

"Pull yourself together, man," he said.

He touched her hand an hour later in the cotillon. Ganning was her partner again. His pale, close lips curved slightly as Ferris colored warmly at the touch. Her heavily scored card offered nothing, but he took her to a draft for three minutes and talked about himself. He generally talked about the women.

She was gowned in some French creation that changed tint like a cloud at sunset. A big topaz at the waist line blazed like an evening star. Tiny swirls of hair were matted upon her moist forehead. He had seen just such on the damp brows of children when they were asleep. Her eyes he found bewildering. They were younger than he had expected, with a certain dawn-like look, but the mouth was that of a woman, with the haughty upper lip of the well born English girl.

They were guests at the same hotel. He saw her every day for awhile; then every hour. Blessed or cursed with a nature of romance and fire, he loved her as such men love. As unreasonable as vehement, he claimed her very breath. He winced when Ganning spoke to her. He suffered horribly when he saw them in the waltz. Gayns made him jealous; Ganning drove him mad.

"Why do you dance with him?" he said to her one evening, crushing her warm fingers in a cold, unyielding grasp.

She laughed; her amber colored eyes sparkled like drops of champagne. "Othello, you hurt my hands!"

"I believe you used to care for that fellow," he said sullenly. "Swear to me, Dea, you did not."

She tore her hands away and raised one tragically. "I swear," she cried, "Hamlet, this time!"

"So she's giving you a fortnight," said Ganning one morning.

Ferris faced him quickly; he was a trifle pale about the mouth. "I don't understand you," he said.

"If you understand Dea it's sufficient." He smiled his inscrutable smile. "My room's at your service," he added. "I'm off for more royal sport. It's cooler, I believe, than your quarters; better snap it up while you can."

He left the next evening. Ferris drew a long, free breath. Absurd, too, his jealousy of Ganning! What had he ever done? Danced with Dea as much as many others, loved her not as well. He began to have a sort of friendly feeling for the fellow as he entered the room just made vacant by his departure and hastily dropped his traps.

The night was intensely warm, the place stifling. He crossed to an open window and pulled back a gaping blind. A flood of silvery flame streamed in as from a searchlight—heated to white heat, it seemed to him, for the very moon was hot. He turned, as if from sunlight, then all at once stopped. Midway in the shining path across the carpet a small, snowy object like a tiny drift of moonlight caught his eye. For one dizzy, numbing moment he stood dully gazing at it; still, as if the magic of the moonlight had turned him to blanching stone. The next instant, with fatal acuteness, his eye had devoured each proof; the quaint curve of the wavy lace border, the curious little crest.

He took a rigid step or two forward and picked the handkerchief up. It was hours to him till he reached her. She was peering over the balcony, alone and gowned for a ball. The light that had darkened him wholly was making of her a dream. Never before had she looked to him so beautiful; never before had he wanted to kill. She smiled like lost angels, it seemed to him. The white roses on her breast were red as wine.

"I've waited so long!" she said.

He halted where the moonlight cut keenest. He looked at her, but did not speak. She slowly approached, as if drawn by him, her eyes searching his face.

"What is it?" she cried in a shrill whisper. "Why do you look like that?"

He thrust the handkerchief toward her. It fell limply at her feet. Death wounds make men brutal. He stopped for no delicate sheath.

"You dropped this in Ganning's quarters. He warned me, but I was mad." He turned upon his heel.

Two years later, in southern Europe, he met Ganning. Half mad, half skeleton, he found him, with a grip on fleeing life like death itself.

"I'm not going to die," he said to Ferris. "I've half a lung left yet and mean to live on it ten years. This isn't deathbed talk, mind you. You can use me as you like. I don't say it for your sake, either. It's the woman I'm thinking about. I played you a trick once, Ferris. It hurt her, too, however. I didn't think of that. You remember she dropped her handkerchief the night you saw her first. Well, I didn't give it back to her. I fancied the thing myself. An idea occurred to me later. I'm a student of Shakespeare, you know. I dropped it in my room on leaving. I knew most likely you'd find it, and I knew well how you'd rage. The trick would have failed if you'd deserved her, but she picked you from all the sound ones—a stupid way women have." A raucous cough stopped him. He went on with scanty breath.

"Go to her, Ferris. It's only two years. Women like that can't forget. Make it up, I say. It did little harm. It only put it off awhile. It only gave spice to the thing." He reached for the railing with a clutch.

Ferris turned slowly. The cigar within his grasp was a rag; his eyes were hollowed out like graves; he was gray to the neck.

"She married Gayns," he said.—New York Press.

Bows of a Young Prince.

Prince Edward of York is just 5 years old and straddles his Shetland pony like a little man. An American lady who has been staying with her own little son in the neighborhood of Sandringham says the princelet is a perfect specimen of healthy childhood, and one day when driving they met him with his nurse in an open landau. Every one bowed smilingly to the bright little boy, who immediately jumped up in the seat and returned the salute again and again until he was out of range of their vision. The nurse maintained a dignified expression of countenance, but held on to this future king's sailor blouse to prevent him from tumbling out of the carriage.

No doubt this Edward of York would have very much liked to play with the Edward of New York, who had just waved his hand in independent American fashion at "the other little boy."—Springfield Republican.

Day Dreams.

Day dreams will not do, boys,
Pleasant though they be;
Day dreams fruitless are, boys,
As rain upon the sea.
Vain it is to climb, boys,
Fancy's golden stair
If the climbing ends, boys,
In castles in the air.

Not by stroke of luck, boys,
Can you win a name;
There's no royal road, boys,
Leading on to fame.
Those who gain renown, boys,
Don't with shadows play.
Heed the lesson well, boys—
Cast your dreams away.

Work lies at your hands, boys,
Tasks that must be done;
You must buckle to, boys,
Ere the set of sun.
Swiftly flies the time, boys,
While you aimless stray;
Youth's bright day is short, boys—
Cast your dreams away.

—David Johnstone.

Cruel Fate.

Tommy, aged 4, was very fond of climbing into his mother's lap for the purpose of being petted and caressed. One day his mother found him gazing at some goldfish in a globe, with a sympathetic look on his face. "Why, Tommy," she asked, "what makes you look so solemn?"

"'Cause I'm sorry for them baby fishes," answered the little fellow.

"And why are you sorry for them?" she asked.

"Their mamma hasn't any lap for them to sit in," was the reply.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,
Will benefit the wisest men,
And if dyspepsia is their woe,

The Breakfast Food Family.

John Sprat will eat no fat,
Nor will he touch the lean;
He scorns to eat of any meat—
He lives upon Foodine.

But Mrs, Spratt will none of that
Foodine she can not eat.
Her special wish is for a dish
Of Expurgated Wheat.

To William Spratt that food is flat
On which his mater dotes.
His favorite feed—his special need—
Is Eata Heapa Oats.

But sister Lil can't see how Will
Can touch such tasteless food.
As breakfast fare it can't compare
She says, with Shredded Wood.

Now, none of these Leander please;
He feeds upon Bath Mitts,
While sister Jane improves her brain
With Cero-Grapo-Grits.

Lycergus votes for Father's Oats,
Proggine appeals to May;
The junior John subsists upon
Uneeda Bayla Hay.

Corrected Wheat for little Pete,
Flaked Pine for Dot; while "Bub,"
The infant Spratt, is waxing fat
On Battle Creek Near-Grub.

MAPPING OF CHELAN COUNTRY, WASHINGTON.

A Lake with Surroundings Which Rival Swiss Scenery.

Lake Chelan and the surrounding mountain region in central Washington is being topographically mapped by the engineers of the United States Geological Survey. This region is in the heart of the Washington Forest Reserve, and is noted as one of the wildest and most picturesque sections of the West. It is still little known to the country at large, but in the estimation of some its scenery compares favorably with that of Switzerland. Mr. R. A. Farmer, topographer in charge, has recently made a report of the government topographic work of the season in that section. Considerable difficulty was experienced in penetrating the country on account of its extremely rough character and the large amount of snow and ice which, although the summer was well advanced, was encountered upon the high mountain ranges. The party was divided early in the season for work in separate parts of the allotted section, but united on the shores of Lake Chelan in August for the completion of the survey of that region. The lake is 47½ miles long, with an average width of about a mile. It lies at an elevation of 1079 feet above tide, and for almost its entire length is confined by precipitous mountains which rise from 3000 to 7000 feet from its waters. Much of the surrounding region is heavily timbered, and a number of prospectors for precious metals were found in the mountains working their claims.

Learn How to Vote.

The first duty of every young man is to take an interest in politics. Not the kind of interest that shouts and shoots rockets at election rallies—though even that may have its uses - but the interest that leads one to study the principle of government as practiced in republics first, and then as compared with other forms of government. Inasmuch as it is the duty of every man to vote, so it is his duty to vote for well understood principles and beliefs, and not merely for party name and high-sounding phrases shouted by perspiring orators who receive pay in proportion to their ability to shout convincingly. In nine cases out of ten the young man casting his first ballot does so on lines learned from long association with his father's political beliefs and expressions. It is rarely the case that the young man's first vote differs from that of his father's and while this may speak volumes for his filial confidence and sense of filial duty, it speaks not at all of his independence of thought and action. A study of the science of economic government is well worthy the attention of any qualified voter.—Fairfield Standard.

New Music.

The latest musical productions are always in demand. The largest publishers of sheet music is undoubtedly Hamilton S. Gordon, 139 Fifth avenue, New York. Two of the latest productions deserve notice. "Love and Live," words by Madeline Shirley and music by James Arthur Preston; the other is a coon song "You Can Search Me."

LITERARY NOTES.

TABLE TALKS.

The September number of the Table Talk, (Philadelphia) gives considerable space to the subject of "canning," written by women of practical experience. This information is timely, as the season is now at hand for that kind of work in the home. The illustrated dishes are an attractive feature of this housekeeping magazine. Each month it gives a number of them to show just how the dish will look when the receipe is carried out. Table Talk is the exponent of good living, it teaches exhaustively the art of good cooking and gives the newest table fashions and decorations. Its imformation is reliable. Our readers can secure free sample on request or send one dollar to the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL office and get it one year and the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL a year.

DELINEATOR.

Writing for children, in the November Delineator, Charles McIlvaine, author of a well known work on mushrooms, gives this concise description of the edible and the poisonous fungi. "Never eat any toadstools found growing in the woods or shady places, thinking it to be the common mushroom, because the latter does not grow in the woods but in the open fields and pastures. If you look at a mushroom's gills or plaits you will see that they are a light pink, growing darker, as it ripens, until they are almost black; it also has a veil, and the cap is rough, scaly-looking on top, but there is no sheath at the bottom of the stem."

REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

The department of "Current Politics in Cartoons" in the October Review of Reviews admirably supplements the editorial pages as an exposition of this year's campaign issues. It constitutes an apt and pointed setting forth of American politics and policies in 1902.

Holland Must Watch Out.

The state of Washington may become in time a formidable competitor of Holland in the raising of bulbs. The people of Whatcom have found the land and climate well suited to this form of floriculture. Elmer E. Johnson, the Washington commissioner to the World's Fair of 1904 reports that George Gibbs ot Whatcom has conducted experiments with flowering bulbs such as crocus, hyacinth, narcissus, tulip, iris, jonquil and the like for several years and claims that the climate of western Washington is peculiarly adapted to the growth and culture of such plants. For over one hundred years our florists have imported their bulbs from Holland. Millions of dollars leave the country annually for this purpose. It is the boast of Holland that such bulbs can be grown in no other climate in the world. Mr. Gibbs claims that the climate of the United States outside of western Washington is unsuited to their growth, but that he has fully demonstrated the product of the Puget Sound region fully equals that of Holland. Bulbs from Whatcom will be a part of the Washington exhibit.

Let Something Good be Said.

When over the fair fame of friend or foe
The shadow of disgrace shall fall, instead
Of words of blame or proof of thus and so,
Let something good be said.

Forget not that no fellow being yet
May fall so low but love may lift his head;
Even the cheek of shame with fears is wet
If something good be said.

No generous heart may vainly turn aside
In ways of sympathy, no soul so dead
But may awaken strong and glorified
If something good be said.

And so I charge thee by the thorny crown,
And by the cross on which the Savior bled,
And by your own soul's hope of fair renown,
Let something good be said.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

A Parent's Duty.

Nowhere in the world, perhaps, is so much attention or greater value placed on education than in the United States; and yet in some cases there is not enough attention paid to this important phase in the up-bringing of a family. In the great majority of cases the parents have little or nothing in the way of financial assistance to offer children when they arrive at the age to face the world for themselves. But an education is within the reach of all, and the parent who neglects his duty in this respect shows himself careless almost to the verge of being criminal, and cannot be censured too severely. Our school system is of the best and offers opportunity in this line unknown in an earlier day. It shows an utter lack of judgment when we neglect to take advantage of the opportunities within our reach.

It has been said that each day's attendance at schcol is worth to a child at least two dollars in cash. At first thought this may appear a high estimate but at the age of 21 who would barter his education for twice the number of dollars that he has spent days in school? No one. So when children voluntarily stay or are kept out of school, each day represents an actual monetary loss, instead of a small gain, as may appear on the surface. Of course, the loss is to the child and the gain to the parent, which might make difference in some cases. Keep the children at school while young. When they are old enough to realize what they have lost it will be too late to rectify the mistake.—Fairfield Standard.

Opinions of Experts.

Alexander & Furman, of the Union Printing Co., 521 First avenue, Spokane, Wash,, thirteen years ago originated a design showing Spokane as the center star and the different lines of railroad radiating from this star. It met with so much favor that the different printing offices hired an unscrupulous electrotyper to make duplicates of it. In order to protect themselves the firm has originated and copyrighted an improved design. The design shows a large five pointed star which contains a view of the lower falls as a center. This view also shows the Post street bridge and some of the manufacturing establishments. As the water power is the basis of Spokane's growth so the view is the basis of the design. From the points and angles of the star are given eleven lines of railways which center here. No medium has yet been made that gives as clear an idea of Spokane's importance as this. The Union Printing Company will use this design on their customer's stationery without extra charge,

The opinion of the general agents of the three leading railways of the northwest is given below.

From J. W. Hill, general agent Northern Pacific Ry: "This a very attractive cut and shows very clearly the different railway lines out of Spokane.

From Mr. Craig, Gen. Pass. Agt. O. R. & N. Ry: "It strikes me as being a very good idea."

From Harry Brandt, C. P. & T. A., Great Northern Ry: "I think the idea conveyed in your design for the purpose which it is to be usod is a very good one.

After all the fuss some of your candidates will be defeated and the sun will shine the same as usual.

The fall season has been dry making plowing difficult and the grain sown has not had much of a growth. While it has been dry the farmers have taken advantage of it by preparing for winter.

Does it pay for a town to keep its streets and sidewalks neat and in good repair? It certainly does. Damage suits are a natural result of poor walks, but there is another side, The writer met a well-to-do gentleman on a Great Northern train while coming from Wenatchee. During a conversation he said he had been attracted to Wenatchee by reading a Great Northern bulletin, as a proper place for investment. He arrived during the night and left on the first train in the afternoon. He said he had not been far from the village but from the appearance of the streets and walks and even the buildings he concluded that it could not be a very prosperous community. He also mentioned that the charge for the transfer of a passenger from the depot to the boat landing only a short distance was 50 cents. Trunks were charged at the same rate. He was going to Lewiston, Idaho, to look the field over there, and if that place echoed the prosperty of the community in the same manner would go back to Illinois without investing.

When you have a good friend stick to him. Good, true, honest, faithful friends are valuable. Their are too many people who are easily led by new faces. They are easily attracted by newcomers. There is more or less danger in the acquaintanceship of strangers. Not that all strangers are rogues, but that all rogues are strangers.

Now while this is all true from human standpoint, it has also a strong bearing in the newspaper world. Note the number of acquaintances you have who for years back have taken a certain publication in the house, and who could not be persuaded to make a change. The writer remembers such staid publications as the American Agriculturist, Rural New Yorker and the Practical Farmer, in his father's family ever since a mere boy, and those same papers continue to come. Would we change them for any other? No. They are old family friends, and will remain with us. But we have added to the list. We have increased our circle of friends rather than to get rid of the old ones.

That is exacly the line THE WESTERN HOME JOURNAL works upon. It does not ask you to give up your old acquaintances, but simply wants to show that it will be profitable to you to invest an extra fifty cents in this publication. Try us for a year. See if we are to be trusted. See if we are true. See if we are of any value. You cannot tell the valne of a publication merely by a sample copy. Very often samples are better than the goods—that is, where people are inclined to be tricky. The WESTERN HOME JOURNAL don't do business that way. It aims to make each issue better than the last, There is more honor in that method.

If you are a subscriber, won't you kindly call your neighbor's attention to our plan as outlined above? Or, what is better still, won't you write us and get our cash premium terms for securing subscribers? We can start you into a profitable business.

MRS. ROSE RICE TURNER.

Democratic Nominee for County School Superintendent.

From the Spokesman-Review: "Mrs. Rose Rice Turner, candidate for county school superintendent is the daughter of the late Judge Milton L. Rice, and was born in Kentucky. She came to Spokane with her father in the early 80's and taught in the public schools of the city a number of years. She was then called to the head of the teachers' training school of the State Normal School at Ellensburg when it was opened, and remained there two years. She was re-elected, but accepted a similar position with the State Normal School at Cheney, where she remained three years. In these State Normal School positions her work was largely supervision of student teachers, a valuable experience for school superintendency. She is the wife of Prof. W. B. Turner, county superintendent of schools from 1890 to 1894, and for several years since that time principal of the State Normal School at Cheney. They have one child, a daughter, aged 9. Professor Turner has been for the last two years in the insurance business in this city, and expects to continue therein. Mrs. Turner will have the benefit of his experience and counsel, but expects to do the work of the office, including school visiting, herself. Mrs. Turner holds a teacher's life diploma, the highest educational credential granted by the state."

The only logical candidate for sheriff is W. J. Doust. Mr. Doust has served two years in that capacity and proven his fitness for the place. He has long been a resident of the vicinity of Hillyard. Of course all of those who know him will vote for him regardless of politics. It is to the new residents of the county that do not know him that we wish to call attention to his good qualities, for he has no bad ones. If you want Spokane county to have a sheriff vote for W. J. Doust.

One of the delegates to the recent republican county convention wishes to have it published that the Hillyard delegation did not vote to nominate D. H. Stewart for assessor. They voted for a man—A. P. Wolverton. We do not blame the delegation for wishing to have it known that they were not instrumental in putting the name of D. H. Stewart on the republican ticket.

Theodore Roosevelt on "The Presidency."

Before his nomination for the vice-presidency Theodore Roosevelt wrote expressly for The Youth's Companion an article on "The Presidency." It will be published in the number for November 6th, this being one of the remaining weekly issues of 1902 sent free from the time of every new subscriber who at once sends $1.75 for The Companion's 1903 volume. When this article on "The Presidency" was written no one could have foreseen or dreamed even that its author would so soon be called upon to take up the duties of the great office. For this reason alone wnat Mr. Roosevelt has to say possesses extraordinary interest, and will be eagerly awaited by persons of all shades of political opinion.

Presbyterian Creed Revision.

The "elect" are not the "Bride" yet, but only the chaste virgin espoused to Christ and waiting on the Heavenly Bridegroom to make her, at his second coming, his bride and joint-heir. Neither is there a "river of water of life" now flowing; but merely "wells of water springing up" in the "elect." Neither is there this general invitation to "whosoever wills;" for now the God of this world still blinds the eyes and closes the ears of all but the comparatively few;—deceiving nearly the whole world. It will be after Satan shall be bound for the thousand years, that he should deceive the nations no more, that the promised blessings upon the non-elect, who are now being "passed by," shall be fulfilled. Then all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped.—Isa. 35:5.

The Apostle Paul clearly shows that the "elect" are the "seed of Abraham" —Christ the head; his church the body. He declares also what is most obvious; namely, that the fulfilment of the promise to Abraham of which his "seed" "the elect" are heirs, is still future; and that promise is, "In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The "elect" are "the holy nation, the peculiar people, the royal priesthood," called now to offer sacrifices that thereby they may specially attest their loyalty to God and his righteousness and crystalize their character-likeness to their Redeemer, and thus be qualified to be the kings, priests and judges of the world during the Millennium—the world's judgment day or trial day. Speaking of the "elect" the Apostle asks, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?"—1 Cor. 6:2.

The "Elect" are tried, tested, judged along a very "narrow way"—of opposition from the world, the flesh and the devil; the world's way of the Millennial age is designated a "highway" of holiness, free from stumbling stones so that the wayfarer though unsophisticated need not err therein. (Isa. 35:8, 9; 5:27.) The path of the "elect" is a dark way, a night-time, in which they need constantly the Word of their Lord as a "lamp to their feet;" the path of the non-elect in the Millennium will be radiant because of the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in his beams and drive away completely the darkness which now covers the earth, and the gross darkness which covers the people—drive away the miasma of sin, error, ignorance, prejudice, selfishness, etc. Ah yes! the elect may rejoice with the Prophet saying,— "Weeping may endure for the night —joy cometh in the morning!"—Psa. 30:5.

"The elect" who now during this Gospel night of sin and ignorance are to be "burning and shining lights," and are exhorted not to hide their lights under a bushel, but to set them upon candlesticks—to let the light shine out to the extent of their ability and thus to glorify their Father in heaven—are all to come together by and by, are all to be changed from human to spirit beings, like the Redeemer, and then they with him shall constitute the great Sun of Righteousness whose shining is to bring so great blessings to the world. See the Lord's own statement of this: The wheat are the children of God—"children of the Kingdom;" . . . During this Gospel age wheat and tares—true saints, the "elect," and mere professors, the tares—are to grow together until the end, or harvest of the age.... Then the wheat are to be garnered and "shine forth as the Sun in the Kingdom of their Father."—Matt. 13:43.

If all who pray "Thy Kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven," could see that God's great plan for the world's salvation is as yet only beginning, that it will not properly begin until the Millennial Kingdom of Christ comes, then they would be prepared to see clearly that during this Gospel age God is merely selecting or electing from among men the Kingdom class, and fitting and preparing them for their grand and glorious service as the world's missionaries—prophets or teachers; priests, or helpers; kings, or rulers; judges, or disciplinarians. From this standpoint the doctrine of election is grand indeed, but from no other standpoint.]

Article VIII.—Of Our Lord Jesus Christ.

We believe in and confess the Lord Jesus Christ, the only Mediator between God and man, who, being the Eternal Son of God, for us men and for our salvation, became truly man, being conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary, without sin; unto us He has revealed the Father, by His Word and spirit making known the perfect will of God; for us He fulfilled all righteousness and satisfied eternal justice, offering Himself a perfect sacrifice upon the cross to take away the sin of the world; for us He rose from the dead and ascended into heaven, where He ever intercedes for us, in our hearts, joined to him by faith, He ever abides forever as the indwelling Christ, over us, and over all for us, He rules; wherefore, unto Him we render love, obedience and adoration as our Prophet, Priest and King, forever.

[This is a splendid confession of the truth whose Scripturalness rejoices us. We would have preferred a little clearer and fuller expression than "He ever intercedes for us in our hearts." It is true in an indirect sense that the spirit of Christ in our hearts intercedes for holiness as against the wickedness of the flesh: we prefer to suppose that the comma after hearts is a typographical error and should be omitted, thus expressing the Scriptural thought that our Redeemer "maketh intercession for us" with the Father. This omits the old and erroneous thought of intercession expressed by the hymn:—

"... bleeding wounds he bears
Received on Calvary;
They pour effectual prayers,
They intercede for me;
Forgive him, oh forgive! they cry,
Nor let the ransomed sinner die."

No; the thought is that having paid to Justice the ransom price for the sins of the whole world he has ascended to the Father and is there ready to apply of his merit to the covering of our share in Adamic condemnation, and also for our unwilled sins present and future, the results of Adamic weaknesses and depravity. His entire work is one of intercession, —now, for his church, the household of faith, the anti-typical Levites; and by and by, for all the people—all who when the knowledge and opportunity are granted will desire to come unto the Father by Him. Intercede signifies go-between: our Lord Jesus became the Mediator of the New Covenant, and thus the "go-between" who took the responsibilities of the sinner Adam (and his race) and paid to Justice the price and now stands ready to apply the benefit of his sacrifice to all who will accept it upon New Covenant terms.]

Article IX.—Of Faith and Repentance.

We believe that God pardons our sins and accepts us as righteous solely on the ground of the perfect obedience and sacrifice of Christ, received by faith alone; and that this saving faith is always accompanied by repentance, wherein we confess and forsake our sins with full purpose of and endeavor after, a new obedience to God.

[Another excellent statement to which we can give our heartiest assent.]

Article X.—Of the Holy Spirit.

We believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord and Giver of life, who moves everywhere upon the hearts of men, to restrain them from evil and to incite them unto good, and whom the Father is ever willing to give unto all who ask Him. We believe that He has spoken by holy men of God in making known His truth to men for their salvation; that through our exalted Saviour, He has sent forth in power to convict the world of sin, to enlighten men's minds in the knowledge of Christ, and to persuade and enable them to obey the call of the gospel; and that He abides with the church, dwelling in every believer as the spirit of truth, of holiness and of comfort.

[This is a most peculiar statement and quite unscriptural. The Scriptures do mention the holy spirit or power of God moving or acting upon the waters during the creative period (Gen. 1:2); and they also speak of its moving holy men of old to speak and to write divine messages (2 Pet. 1:21); and they also speak of its operation upon the Church, the elect, but nowhere is it said to be imparted to any other than God's consecrated children. It shall be in you, the Church, as God's power, witness and anointing, and through its operation in you, through your words and conduct, it shall convince or convict the world of sin, of righteousness and of a coming of judgment or judicial recompense. Space here does not permit of a full discussion of this great theme; we refer our readers to "The At-one-ment Between God and Man."—Vol. V., of Millennial Dawn, chapters VIII—XI.]

Article XI.—Of the New Birth and the New Life.

We believe that the Holy Spirit only is the author and source of new birth; we rejoice in the new life, wherein He is given unto us as the seal of sonship in Christ, and keeps loving fellowship with us, helps us in our infirmities, purges us from our faults and ever continues His transforming work in us until we are perfected in the likeness of Christ, in the glory of the life to come.

[This peculiar statement is confussing however it be read. There is no Spiritual declaration that the Holy Spirit is our Father; but rather that the Father begot us by his holy spirit to newness of life—to be new creatures in Christ Jesus, perfected in the First Resurrection. If this is the thought of the first sentence it is Biblical, otherwise not. With the remainder we must be in hearty agreement.]

Article XII.—Of the Resurrection and the Life to Come.

We believe that in the life to come the spirits of the just, at death made free from sin, enjoy immediate communion with God and the vision of His glory; and we confidently look for the general resurrection in the last day, when the bodies of those who sleep in Christ shall be fashioned in the likeness of the glorious body of their Lord, with whom they shall live and reign forever.

[This statement emphasizes the general confusion of thought on this subject prevalent in all denominations. Our fleshly bodies are continually changing—science declares that a complete change is effected about every seven years. It seems very absurd to think that the last atoms of matter were any better than those previously sloughed off, or than any other "dust" for resurrection purposes, when it must be confessed that divine power is the all-essential of resurrection, anyway. It is peculiar reasoning, too, that urges that Adam and Abraham and David and Paul have been in heaven for centuries in perfect bliss without bodies, and even to claim that death set them free, and then to speak of "the hope of the resurrection" of their bodies, at the last day. If they were imprisoned while in them, and if they are supremely happy without them, the doctrine of resurrection as a hope is absurd. And if they needed the molecules of dust to make them still happier than they are why should God delay the matter until the last day?

The fact is that all this absurdity belongs to a misunderstanding of the grand doctrine of resurrection taught in the Bible. The Bible does not teach a resurrection of the body, but of the soul. It declares, "The soul [being] that sinneth it shall die." (Ezek. 18:4, 20.) It declares that because of sin all souls die, and that to redeem our souls our Lord became a man, a human soul, or being, and "poured out his soul unto death," "made his soul an offering of sin." (Isa. 53:10, 12.) The Bible further shows that it was our Lord's soul that was resurrected on the third day. "His soul was not left in hades"—the death-state. (Acts 2:27.) So, also the Apostle treats the subject, declaring, "It [the soul or being] is sown [in death] in weakness; it [the soul] is raised in power." In the resurrection God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him.—1 Cor. 15:43,38.

Our word soul signifies "sentient being," a cessation of which we call death. The Adamic sentence was death, which would have been the final end of us all but for the redemptive work of Christ. That redemptive work is not yet completed—the price has been paid, but the recovery of man out of death awaits the time appointed of the Father. Meantime the dead are no longer thought of nor spoken of as dead (extinct) by God who purposes their resurrection, the resuscitation of their beings, or souls; hence the frequent use in the Scriptures of the very word used by the creed-revisers in the above article; namely, "sleep" when referring to the dead.—"Them also which sleep in Jesus." (1 Thes. 4:14.) "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." (1 Cor. 15:51.) "Whether we wake or sleep." (1 Thes. 5:10.) "He saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of sleep. . . . Then said Jesus unto them plainly [coming down to their comprehension] Lazarus is dead." (John 11:11, 14.) "The maid is not dead, but sleepeth." (Mat. 9:24.) "David after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep." "David is not ascended into the heavens." (Acts 2:34; 13:36.) Martyr Stephen "cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this he fell asleep." Acts 7:60.) Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, etc., good and bad "slept with their fathers."

The Revision Committee's statement is in harmony with the above when it speaks, not of the bodies sleeping and being awakened at the last day, but refers to "the bodies of those who sleep in Christ." But if they sleep in Christ waiting for their bodies, how can it be also true that "they enjoy immediate communion with God and the vision of his glory"? Do the Revisers wish us to understand that the holy dead dream or that they are somnambulists?

The Scripture proposition is clearly stated. "The dead know not anything." "His sons come to honor and they know it not, to dishonor and they perceive it not of them;" "for there is no work nor device nor knowledge nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest." (Eccl. 9:5, 10; Joh 14:21.) From this standpoint the importance attached to the resurrection in the Bible is reasonable and our Lord's words respecting the resurrection have fresh meaning,—"All that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth"—the approved the "elect" to the life-resurrection, and the unapproved world in general to the judgment-resurrection.—John 5:28, 29.

Article XIII.—Of the Law of God.

We believe that the law of God revealed in the Ten Commandments, and more clearly disclosed in the words of Christ, is forever established in truth and equity, so that no human work shall abide except it be built on this foundation. We believe that God requires of every man to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with his God; and that only through this harmony with the will of God shall be fulfilled that brotherhood of man wherein the kingdom of God is to be made manifest.

[An excellent statement; but it might have been improved, in our judgment, by a declaration showing that the Law Covenant made with Israel of which the Ten Commandments was the basis, has given place to the New Covenant, mediated by Christ and based upon an ability-obedience to its basic law of love.]

Article XIV.—Of the Church and the Sacraments.

We believe in the holy catholic church of which Christ is the only head. We believe that the church invisible consists of all the redeemed, and that the church visible embraces all who profess the true religion together with their children. We receive to our communion all who confess and obey Christ, as their divine Lord and Saviour, and we hold fellowship with all believers in Him.

We believe the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's supper, alone divinely established and committed to the church, together with the Word as means of grace; made effectual only by the Holy Spirit, and always to be used by Christians with prayer and praise to God.

[Here we have another excellent statement seemingly full of breadth and liberty in Christ; but it can be interpreted narrowly enough; and past experiences and our general knowledge of human nature lead us to fear that it will generally be given this narrow interpretation; viz., to make the words "our communion,' i. e. our fellowship, to mean those only who will heartily and honestly accept the Westminster Confession of Faith and accept these articles, foregoing, as a later statement of the same meaning. Any who by thus joining our Church and who by thus coming behind our creedal fence separates himself from all other Christians we will fellowship.

We agree that there is but one Church, invisible, and one Church visible; but why then have different brands, different "communions;"—professedly different "bodies" of Christ? Were our Lord or his Apostles Presbyterian or other sectarians? And if not, have we any Scriptural authority for such divisions which separate the members of the body of Christ? Why not come out of all sects and creeds and stand together as at first on the one foundation, that Christ died for our sins and rose again for our justification, and that all so accepting his work and fully consecrating themselves to him to do his will constitute his elect Church?

Article XV.—Of the Last Judgment.

We believe that the Lord Jesus Christ will come again in glorious majesty to judge the world and to make a final separation between the righteous and the wicked. The wicked shall receive the eternal award of their sins and the Lord will manifest the glory of His mercy in the salvation of His people and their entrance upon the full enjoyment of eternal life.

[We are glad to note this acknowledgement of faith in our Lord's second coming, so prominently taught throughout the Bible. Could these dear friends get a more correct view of the resurrection they would see that our Lord's coming is as the Life-giver; and that none of his redeemed can enter into life eternal until he comes to receive them unto himself, from the prison-house of death in which they sleep. "Your life is hid with Christ in God [in divine power and promise]; when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory."—Col. 3:3, 4.

The glad welcome of the Lord's second advent, so noticeable in the New Testament, is not found generally among Christians of today for two reasons; one, we have just mentioned; the other is because of false views respecting the judgment our Lord comes to perform. When father Adam was in Eden he experienced his first trial or judgment, and for disobedience he was condemned to death —a sentence which his posterity has shared, dying mentally, morally and physically—a groaning creation under divine sentence or curse. What would Adam and all of his children specially desire of the Lord?

Their prayer would surely be: Lord, that we might have another trial, another judgment;—peradventure our experiences with sin may have taught us such lessons that we would be fully obedient hereafter and abide forever in thy favor. But the Lord's Word assures that we could not succeed if granted another trial under similar conditions; because we, although experienced now, are fallen and imperfect, and cannot do the things which we would wish to do. Furthermore, he shows us that Justice is the foundation of his throne, and that having declared us sentenced to death he cannot justly revoke his own sentence.

Then, while we wonder and despair, the Lord reveals to us his plan for our salvation, wonderful in its completeness. (1) He provided for our redemption by the death of his Son who took Adam's place, and by redeeming him redeemed all of his race who lost in his failure. Thus God shows us his law and justice inviolate. Nor was this effected by an injustice to his Son, whose full consent was first secured by "the joy that was set before him." (Heb. 12:2.) The obedient Son has been abundantly rewarded—"God also hath highly exalted and given him a name above every name." —Phil. 2:9.

But why this redemption of Adam and his race? What is its ultimate object? We answer that it is God's response to the 6000 years' prayer of our race: Lord that we might have another trial or judgment. God proposes to answer that prayer in a better way than any except himself could have devised,—as he declares: "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord; for as the heavens are higher than the earth so are my ways higher than your ways and my plans higher than your plans."—Isa. 55:8, 9.

Foreseeing that fallen man could not obey the divine law, which requires the full measure of a perfect man's ability, God has not only redeemed our race, but proposes also in "due time" to establish the Redeemer as the King over all the earth, to rule and judge and regulate the world, and bring order out of present confusion and darkness and sin, and by corrections in righteousness gradually to raise men up, up, up, to perfection and the divine likeness in heart. This time of resurrection, also called the "times of restitution," is to be the world's "day of judgment," in which each member of Adam's fallen race, redeemed by the precious blood, shall taste of divine mercy and have the fullest opportunity that could be reasonably asked for re-attaining all that was lost in Adam; and meantime for developing such characters as would be fully approved by God as fit for the gift of God—everlasting life through Jesus Christ our Lord;—all others, failing under those favorable conditons being re-condemned,—judged worthy of the Second Death from which there will be no recovery.

This is the Lord's declaration: "God hath appointed a day ["One day with the Lord is as a 1000 years."—11 Pet. 3:8] in the which he will judge [grant trial to] the world in righteousness [equity] by that man whom he hath [afore] ordained [the Christ]; whereof he hath given assurance [ground for hope] unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." (Acts 17:31.) This is the "resurrection by judgment" to which our Lord refers. (John 5:29.) No wonder then that the prophet David rejoiced so in the prospect of the world's coming judgment day; saying (1 Chron. 16:31-34):—

"Let the heavens be glad,
And let the earth rejoice;
And let men say among the nations,
Jehovah, reigneth.
Let the sea roar, and the fullness thereof;
Let the fields rejoice, and all that is therein.
Then shall the trees of the wood sing out
At the presence of Jehovah,
Because He Cometh
To Judge the Earth!
O give thanks unto Jehovah; for he is good;
For his mercy endureth forever!"

Does someone inquire why the Day of Judgment should be put off—why it did not begin at once, as soon as the sacrifice of Cavalry was finished? We answer, that God hath appointed a day—the seventh or last day of the week for this judgment—the world's great Sabbath of rest after the 6000 years of sin and death, and that is sufficient. But we are glad to see just why our Father so "appointed"; viz., because in the interim he designed the calling and perfecting of the Church, the saints, the "elect," to be joint-heirs with the Redeemer and share his glory and work—his ruling, judging and blessing of all the families of the earth.

For further discussion of this subject we must refer our readers to Millennial Dawn, Vol. 1., Chap 8.]

Article XVI.—Of Christian Service, and the Final Triumph.

We believe that it is our duty, as servants and friends of Christ, to do good unto all men, to maintain the public and private worship of God, to hallow the Lord's day, to preserve the sanctity of the family, to uphold the just authority of the state, and so to live in all honesty, purity and charity that our lives shall testify of Christ. We joyfully receive the Word of Christ, bidding His people go into all the world and make disciples of all nations, and declare unto them that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself" and that He "will have all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth." We confidently trust that by His power and grace all His enemies and ours shall be finally overcome, and the kingdoms of this world shall be made the kingdom of our God and of His Christ. In this faith we abide; in this service we labor, and in this hope we pray. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

[We are specially glad that the two Scripture citations we have quoted have been made prominent in the Revised Confession. These may assist some to see that the election of the Church is for the purpose of bringing the whole world to a knowledge of the truth in order to their everlasting salvation. If it was the thought of the Revisers that the Church in her present condition can accomplish this, let them reflect that nineteen centuries have accomplished little for the world in general in the matter of knowledge of the Lord. Let them reflect, too, that even in the day of missionary effort, statistics show that the whole annual Church increase, including all even nominally Christians, is less proportionately than the natural increase of the human family; so that if the hope expressed, that the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of our Lord, means a hope of converting the world, it is a blind and baseless one. The Scriptural thought, as shown by old MSS. is quite a different one; namely, that the dominion of this world [is to] become the dominion of God and of his Christ. If the entire world were brought into the condition of earth's best kingdoms it would still leave much, oh! so much, to be desired and prayed for—"Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." Hence we pray this prayer, and expect and patiently wait for that Kingdom which will now speedily be introduced by "a time of trouble such as was not since there was a nation." "Even so, Come, Lord Jesus."]

The preceding article originated with the Bible and Tract Society, of Allegheny, Pa. The reading of it so impressed a Christian gentleman that he volunteered $3,000.00 to be divided as premiums amongst the leading journals first publishing it to their readers. It is from the pen of the widely-known author of Millennial Dawn, of which over a million copies are in circulation, and the demand still growing. This Society has issued another timely tract, entitled, "Calamities—Why God Permits Them." It offers free samples to our readers, on postal card application to above address.

NOT IN ANY TRUST

had entered a trust or combination; we wish to assure the public that there is no truth in such reports. We have been manufacturing sewing machines for over a quarter of a century, and have established a reputation for ourselves and our machines that is the envy of all others. Our "New Home" machine has never been rivaled as a family machine.—It stands at the head of all High Grade sewing machines, and stands on its own merits.

The "New Home" is the only really HIGH GRADE Sewing Machine on the market.

It is not necessary for us to enter into a trust to save our credit or pay any debts as we have no debts to pay. We have never entered into competition with manufacturers of low grade cheap machines that are made to sell regardless of any intrinsic merits. Do not be deceived, when you want a sewing machine don't send your money away from home; call on a "New Home" Dealer, he can sell you a better machine for less than you can purchase elsewhere. If there is no dealer near you, write direct to us.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

OLD MISSION, COEUR D'ALENE.

Some Poultry Don'ts.

When looking over the lists of breeding stock for the introduction of new blood don't forget the feathered flock.

Buy a pure blooded male for grading up the mongrels; don't allow a cross bred fowl in the flock if you expect a marked improvement.

See to it that the poultry house is more comfortable than last winter; don't wait until snow flies before making it so.

Don't expect eggs in winter if the fowls are compelled to roost in the trees.

A good dust bath is essential to good health in poultry; don't neglect to store some dry light soil for this purpose and change frequently during the confinement in cold weather.

Don't let the hens be consumed by mites; the Standard Oil Company has not yet put the price of coal at the impossible mark.

Read everything in this department; don't skip it and say it is only chickens. They are worth more to the average farmer than he will admit.

Don't be too busy to lend a hand occasionally in care of the poultry; remember the ladies are as a rule poor carpenters and appreciate a little help from some one who can hit the right nail.

Old hens are unprofitable; don't keep them after their second year.

You paid a good price for your thoroughbred bull or stallion last year; don't expect a good cock bird for a dollar.

Don't get mad at the writer, but think up another list of don'ts and act on them.

Value of Apples.

A malic acid of ripe apples, either raw or cooked, will neutralize any excess of chalky matter engendered by eating too much meat.

The ancient practice of taking apple sauce with roast pork, rich goose and like dishes is based on scientific reasons.

A good, ripe, raw apple is one of the easiest of vegetable substances for the stomach to deal with, the whole process of its digestion being completed in 85 minutes.

In France a common remedy for inflammed eyes is an apple poultice, the apple being roasted and its pulp applied over the eyes without any intervening substance.

The old Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the gods, who, when they felt themselves to be growing old and feeble and infirm, resorted to this fruit for renewing their powers of mind and body.

The apple contains a larger percentage of phosphorous than any other fruit or vegetable. This phosphorous is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter, lethicin of the brain and spinal cord.

Besides the medicinal qualities of the apple, it has great virtue for local applications. The paring of an apple cut somewhat thick is an ancient remedy for inflamed eyes, being tied on at night when the patient goes to bed.

Fresh fruits, such as an apple, the pear and the plum, when taken ripe, and without sugar, diminish acidity in the stomach rather than provoke it. Their vegetable salts and juices are converted into alkaline carbonates, which tend to counteract acidity.

The acids of the apple are also of signal use for men of sedentary habits, whose livers are sluggish in action. These acids serve to eliminate from the body noxious matters, which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about the jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles.

Hold on to the Cow.

Perhaps it is not altogether to be regretted that, when prosperity comes and nature smiles, man is apt to forget the times of adversity. At the same time it is ungrateful, to say the least, to forget the instrumentality that pulled him through, and it is foolish to suppose that adversity is banished for good and prosperity will continue forever. It is not many years since the dairy cow stood between the western farmer and very hard times indeed. Money was scarce. Prices of grain, of beef cattle and other stock were low. Prospects did not seem very bright to the farmer. In this emergency the dairy cow stood between many a farmer and hardship. She brought in cash every week or every month. She bought shoes for the children, dresses for the women folks and—well in some cases, perhaps, tobacco for the men. She enabled some farmers to float over the period of depression comfortably, and many to swim where without her they would have sunk.

The hard times have gone. The pig, the horse, steer, grain, are all bringing good prices. Money is plentiful and cheap. Bank accounts are carrying a comfortable surplus. Under these conditions many a farmer is forgetting the good old cow that pulled him through. He is allowing the calf to run with her. He is forgetting, and his children are not learning how to milk. The usefulness of the cow for the dairy is being destroyed. When the turn of the tide comes and the farmer must turn to the cow again she will not be able to serve him as she did before, not through any fault of hers, but because of his neglect.

Men can not farm high-priced land on horseback. Neither can they always afford to sit on the fence and watch the calf do the milking.—Wallace's Farmer.

LITERARY NOTES.

COSMOPOLITAN.

Perhaps the most interesting character in the story of the American Revelution is Alexander Hamilton. A study of the man, his characteristics and guiding motives, was prepared by John Fiske before his death, and appears as the leading article in the October Cosmopolitan. No paper could illustrate more clearly the difficulties through which the American Union had to pass on its way to the excellence already attained and the perfection which it must ultimately reach.

In almost every married life there comes a time when a readjustment of earlier ideas is necessary. It may come suddenly with the first quarrel or it may gradually dawn on the husband or the wife, and on the resulting adjustment the entire future happiness of the family often depends. Lavinia Hart discusses in a brief essay in The Cosmopoltan for October the shattering of immature ideals evolved from the haze of romantic dreams and the building of new ideals on the firmer foundation of common sense.

EVERYBODY'S.

In the October Everybody's there begins a series of articles on "Steamboat Days on the Mississippi and the Missouri Rivers." Life on the great waterways in America was full of dramatic incident and adventure, and these articles abound in episodes of intense human interest. The first article tells of the pilots who navigated the vessels which plied the rivers and of their extraordinary skill in locating channels. There is a remarkable story of a race for a wife between the helmsmen of the rival steamers.

PILOTS HEROES OF THE RIVERS.

The pilots were the dandies of the river towns. They wore fine ruffled shirts, tight fitting boots, long black coats and plug hats. Every river boy hoped some day to become a pilot. Even the young planters and merchants emulated their costumes and the belles of the river cities set their caps for them. The pilots were the great matrimonial catches of the territory. When the inhabitants of the country for miles round a landing place would travel to the river on Sundays to see the steamboat, the pilot, conscious of the important position accorded him in society by the backwoods people, would swagger up and down the hurricane deck, a glorious figure, hat tilted, smoking a great cigar and fitting his fingers into his magenta kid gloves. Magenta was the pilot's color in gloves.—Everybody's Magazine.

HISTORY OF LEWIS AND CLARK EXPEDITION.

In an article on the Lewis and Clark Expedition, published recently in The Literary Collector, Wm. H. Miner says: "Remarkable as is our country for its bold spirits of adventure, few names can lay higher claim to distinction in this regard than those of Captains Meriwether Lewis and William Clark. Associated as they were in the first exploration of our country beyond the Great Continental Divide, their achievement will ever serve as a connecting link between the Atlantic and the Pacific."

Their orders from congress to explore in a most careful manner, to study the Indian tribes they met, to make a careful record of everything they witnessed, were carried out with painstaking fidelity and their records united make a valuable addition to the long list of American achievements. The edition of 1814 published in Philadelphia was the first complete history of the expedition. This contributed to by all the members of the expedition and contained the appendix and the life of Lewis by President Jefferson. The previous editions and those issued later were incomplete in one way or another with the exception of Dr. Coues' work, published by Francis P. Harper in 1893 as a limited edition at a high price and now out of print. The importance of the work, the extreme rarity of copies of the 1814 edition, together with the fact that the Centennial of the Louisiana Purchase will soon be celebrated, have induced the New Amsterdam Book Company to publish an unabridged reprint of the 1814 edition at a popular price.

In addition to the maps there are portraits in photogravure of both Lewis and Clark, from plates specially made for the present edition. The work is printed on a specially made paper from clear, easily read type. Three volumes, cloth, gilt tops, price is $1.00 net per volume. New Amsterdam Book Company, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

DEFECTIVE SIGHT IN CHILDREN.

The handicap of imperfect vision naturally interferes with the progress of the child in his studies, says Dr. Grace Peckham Murray, in an article in the October Delineator on backward children. A well-known oculist of New York states that defective vision is a very common cause of apparent mental dulness in young children. A child's eyes should be examined when he is old enough to attend school, in order to be sure that he does not suffer from lack of good eyesight. One writer has said that he never met with a case of chronic bad spelling that he did not also find some visual defect. It must be remembered that trouble from imperfect seeing comes not only from seeing words and figures wrongly but also from fatigue of the brain caused by eye strain.

TWENTY-FIVE HOUSE PLANS FOR TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

We have just received from the publishers a copy of their new book containing plans and specifications, with perspective and sectional views, for twenty-five houses of various sizes from two rooms up This handy, compact and very useful volume contains, in addition to the foregoing, valuable information relative to building, such as the number of shingles required in a roof, amount of plaster for a house, quantity of materials required for building a house, and many other facts of permanent and practical value.

Any one of the plans is worth much more than the price asked for the whole book. It is useful to every architect, builder, mason and carpenter, and particularly do we urge all who anticipate erecting a new or remodeling an old dwelling to send for a copy, as its fortunate posessor may save hundreds of dollars by following the suggestions it contains. It must prove of great value to any person who is interested in securing a new home. With the assistance of this handy little volume, an architect's services may be dispensed with, as any contractor can erect a building from the plans and specifications it contains.

A copy of the book will be mailed, postpaid, by the publishers, Geo. W. Ogilvie & Co., 166 to 174 South Clinton street, Chicago, Ill., upon receipt of twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

A Little Mountain Village.

Elkatawa, Ky., is a little village in the canyon says Gen. O. O. Howard in the Christian Herald. Facing east, there are mountains wtthin a stone's throw to the right of you, and mountains to the left of you. All along, you have a grand sandstone formation, often as beautiful as near Manitou, Colorado. A dozen frame houses of one story, averaging two rooms, lined up in a row like a company of soldiers, look toward the railway embankment. A pretty new depot, just being finished, stands nearer the railroad, and looks like a captain commanding his company.

The beeches all over the divide are luxuriant, and they are intermixed with the usual variety, oaks, elms, ash and the "wahoo," which is sometimes called the cucumber tree. The corn grows to ten and twelve feet, and vegetables just here are in abundance. The soil is so rich that everything that you find in the gardens of the "Blue Grass region" is easily produced here. The school house is at the west end of the line of frame buildings, and encloses, on week days, a teacher and an average of sixty scholars.

OVER THE MOUNTAIN ROADS

This building was used for a church for the people of the village and of the surrounding valleys and mountains. They flock in from every direction, coming down the steep paths and trails on horses and mules. Lately Dr. Guerrant has had a large tent put up for religious services, and a small church is under construction.

Elkatawa is a centre for all sorts of operations, besides the agriculture essential for support. A little girl said to me just now, "Over on yon creek, some miles away, they saw the ties." "Have you been there?" "Oh, no, I never; 'tis on Mill Creek, over yon hill."

We sat today at the table with the missionary workers. South Carolina, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky were represented at the table. Rev. Dr. Saunders, in whose house we are, is away on missionary duty. His cheerful wife and Mrs. Gordon welcomed us; that is, Dr. Guerrant and daughter, General Howard and two young ministers, one from Canoe (Mr. Stormont) and one from Ridgewood Junction (Mr. Henrey.)

FEUDS DYING OUT

The happy union of these good people in their hard field is delightful to witness. Children and grown people are coming to them and their teaching from every direction. Feuds and quarrels diminish and in many places disappear altogether, as the direct result of their good missionary work. We hope that the 120 children who are here part of the time are getting rid of that belief in revenge, which must be conquered before this splendid mountain people can live as Christians ought to live—that is, in love and fellowship.

We ride to Canoe on mule and horse back, this afternoon.

O. O. Howard.

It's Animal Nature.

The following has come to our notice, and while it may overdraw the facts as to humans, it is very true in what it says about pet animals:

"If you take the average man who is in hard luck, and buy him clothes, and put food in his mouth, and furnish him employment, and trust him, and bestow kindness upon him, the chances are he will do you some mean trick and violate the confidence you put in him. That's human nature.

"But take a dog or a cat or any other animal in the street—an animal which is half starved and has been terribly abused—and give it something to eat and a warm place to sleep. You will find in this dumb brute the fastest friend you ever had in your life. The animal will love you and greet you with all the enthusiasm and delight that it knows how to express. It will be your true friend as long as you live. That is animal nature. You can never know what real affection is until you befriend a homeless, forsaken animal, and you will never know until then what true pleasure comes from being kind to dumb creation."

An ancient statute ascribed to Howel the Good, a Welsh prince who ruled in 948, regulated the price of cats. A penny was a price of a kitten before its eyes were open, twopence until it had caught its first mouse, fourpence when it was old encugh for combat. He who stole a cat from the royal granaries forfeited either a milch ewe with its fleece and lamb or as much wheat as would cover the cat suspended by its tail, with its nose touching the ground. A penny was a coin of great purchasing power in the tenth century.

Woman Poultry Breeders.

Women make the best poultrymen for the reason that they are more careful as to the little details. For the same reason women are the best writers for beginners, as they go more into detail when writing. We wish more of our lady readers would write. The young poultryman needs your experience,

We take the following from the American Stock Keeper regarding women as breeders of poultry:

"A woman's qualifications for poultry keeping are evidently of the right kind. She has an instinctive fitness for caring for young animals, and a gentleness and evenness of temperament equally valuable among helpless creatures. The Danbury man's humorous description of the different ways in which a woman and a man attempt to get a hen into a coop and the superiority of the former's method is as funny as it is true. After the hennery or coop is built there is no department of the work that a woman cannot perform without exhausting labor or too heavy demands upon her time. 'Down South' poultry raising is woman's special department, and one need not go farther south than Baltimore or Washington to find markets thronged with the female venders of their own feathered products. That the business is profitable the experience of hundreds testifies, and that it is healthful and may be attractive is susceptible of demonstration."

When to Plant Trees.

E. F. BABCOCK, WAITSBURG, WASH.

In this climate it is no longer a doubt to consider the late fall the best time. As soon after two or three severe frosts have defoliated the trees. Vegetation though inactive in the winter for the formation of wood and leaves, never ceases its development at the root, until it dies. A tree transplanted in November or December will have formed new roots of various lengths. Those will be sufficient to give a firm hold in the grouud, and it will grow off rapidly when vegetation starts. You are not compelled to use water so early, and secure a much larger growth in the young trees. We refer to the hardy trees such as apples, pears, plums, prunes, etc. The peaches and other trees and plants should be carefully "heeled in, to secure them from freezing and standing water, until planted which should be as early as possible after severe cold is over.

After planting while the labels are on make a register of the orchard in a convenient memorandum book and take off all labels, as they will cut the tree and the label is of no use after a couple years, as the weather will obliterate the pencil marks.

Not So Big, After All.

"I had plowed 'round a rock in one of my fields for five years," said a farmer, "and I had broken a mowing machine knife against it, besides losing the use of the ground in which it lay, all because I supposed that it was such a large rock that it would take too much time and labor to remove it. But today when I began to plow for corn I thought that by and by I might break my cultivator against that rock; so I took a crow bar, intending to poke around it and find out its size once and for all, and it was one of the surprises of my life to find that it was little more than two feet long. It was standing on its edge, and so light that I could lift it into the wagon without help."

Many temperance people have been desperately afraid of the saloon for years, only to find that when they tackled it in a good, strong effort for its overthrow it was not so big, after all. Its largeness in many a town consists chiefly in bluster and bullying. It lives by the timidity or indifference of the churches and temperance forces. It is misnamed "the liquor power," when every fair test shows that those who stand for righteousness are much more a power, if they are only aroused and get together.

Success.

Some people seem to think that the only success is that which can be measured by dollars and cents. A person of this kind is not very happy in this world. Money is useful only for the comforts it brings. When a man or woman loves money better than they do their fellow beings there is something wrong with their makeup. So many are constantly trying to get the better of a each other. The poultry business is not one where you can make a fortune; anyone who goes into the raising of chickens just to get money out of the business is of few days and full of dissappointments. Poultry will pay well on a small investment; you can make more from a few fowls than you could make in proportion with a larger number. Let one go to raising chickens for the love of the fancy, and ten chances to one he will make more money than the man who went in for profit alone. A man who loves the fancy because he loves the beautiful will take better care of his fowls than one who is interested only from a money standpoint.

War Among the Clouds.

One of the biggest attractions at the fair this year, and one of which the least has been said, is the balloon ascensions which will be held daily. Manager Martin, in this, as everything else, would not engage anything but the very best. The aeronaut, Sergeant Baldwin, during the late war, had charge of one of the government war balloons and his entertainment is thrilling in the extreme. His ascension is made each day to a height said to be 8000 feet. Going up he explodes mighty bombs which can be heard for the astonishing distance of 25 miles. His trapeze acts are hazardous. During the ascent he drops overboard live cats, dogs and rabbitts, which come sailing gracefully down attached to parachutes. He also gives a very pretty snowstorm from cloudland. Finally he leaps with his parachute from an elevation of 8000 feet.

Attend the farmer institutes.

Do you belong to the complaining class?

In voting this fall cull out all drinking and therefore unreliable candidates.

Failures are more due to the farmer than to the farm. Are you fitted for the work?

Farm Journal says: Plows in the fence corners are a sign of farm for sale within ten years,

Millions of acres of farm land are awaiting the up-to-date farmer to double or tripple their yielding capacity.

Wisconsin Agriculturist says there is no surer way to to spoil a good farmer than to make a politician of him.

The person who has a hard row to hoe can usually account for it by the fact that he selected a hard way to do the hoeing.

The WESTERN HOME JOURNAL alway has special offers in newspaper combinations. By subscribing through us for two or three magazines you can get one free.

The backbone of the country are the farmers. When you weaken the backbone you cripple the whole body. Therefore, be careful how you treat the farmers.

If the complaining farmer will compare notes with the city fellow who gets $2,000 a year, but has to buy everything he needs, he may be surprised at the amount of salary he is actually getting.

The soil is the stomach of plants. In the soil the food is received and digested. On the quantity and quality of food put in the plant's stomach depends its welfare just as much as you depend upon the food in your stomach.

Farmer's guide says that 5,000 of the 17,000 farmers in Kansas are women. The young women, particularly, are taking great interest in these matters, and are regular attendants at the dairy and other agricultural meetings.

The ladies of Spokane are endeavoring to have the public library moved to a respectable part of the city. The library is located in the city hall. The city hall is the hub for the various saloons, brothels and gambling houses of the city.

The object of all efforts should be the home. Live always within you means, but realize that nothing is too good for the home and home folks. Let your ambition be to make your farm an ideal farm, your home an ideal home, say J. L. Irwin, in Farm and Fireside.

The American Buff Plymouth Rock Club's new catalogue will be ready for mailing about September 1st. Every one interested in this popular variety should have one of these books, which promise to be finer and more interesting than anything yet published by the workers of this successful organization. Send a stamp to the Secretary, W. C. Denny, Buffalo, N. Y., who will mail a copy on request.

The Chicago Show.

The Seventh Annual Chicago Exhibition of Poultry, Pigeons, Cats, Dogs and Pet Stock will be held January 19 to 24 inclusive, 1903, in the Coliseum, Wabash Avenue and Fifteenth Street, Chicago. A number of Specialty Clubs —enough to make this a most notable meeting—have voted to hold their annual meetings in Chicago during the show week.

SPOKANE, WASH.

THE PRESBYTERIAN General Assembly recently convened, in New York City, and has received and adopted the report of its Creed Revision Committee. All broad-minded thinkers will sympathize with our Presbyterian friends in their endeavor to hold to their Westminster Confession of Faith as an infallible document, and yet to adopt an explanation of it as a supplement, that will be more reasonable and that they confess with less twinging of conscience. We rejoice with those who have some conscience left that can be twinged; the wonder is that after years of stultification conscience is not so toughened as to be beyond twinging. Our best wish for them would have been that they had been still more noble—that they had possessed consciences whose twingings would not have allowed them even to "enjoy the peasures of sin for a season"—the sin of misrepresenting the Divine character and plan and of misrepresenting their own hearts—for the sake of name and place and emoluments.

Anyway, we are glad to note some of the changes now made, though we regret the dishonesty attaching to the whole matter in the claim that the new creed is exactly the same as the old one, only differently stated. Ex-President Lincoln's words should be remembered by the Assembly; viz., "You can fool all the people sometimes, and some of the people all the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

THE TEXT OF THE NEW CREED.

We give below the text of the revised creed with brief comments on each division of it in brackets. Italics are ours.

Article I.—Of God.

We believe in the ever-living God, who is a Spirit, and the Father of our spirits; infinite, eternal and unchangeable in His Being and perfections; the Lord Almighty, most just in all His ways, most glorious in holiness, unsearchable in wisdom and plenteous in mercy, full of love and compassion, and abundant in goodness and truth. We worship Him, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, three persons in one Godhead, one in substance and equal in power and glory.

[We can assent to this fully except the last sentence, which space forbids us to reply to here; our showing of the Scriptural teaching upon the subject of the Trinity is to be found in Millennial Dawn, Vol. V.]

Article II.—Of Revelation.

We believe that God is revealed in nature, in history, and in the heart of man; that he has made gracious and clearer revelations of Himself to men of God who spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit; and that Jesus Christ, the Word made flesh, is the brightness of the Father's glory and the express image of His person. We gratefully receive the Holy Scriptures, given by inspiration to be the faithful record of God's gracious revelations and the sure witness to Christ, as the Word of God, the only infallible rule of faith and life.

[We can endorse this statement heartily.]

Article III.—Of the Eternal Purpose.

We believe that the eternal, wise, holy and loving purpose of God embraces all events, so that while the freedom of man is not taken away nor is God the author of sin, yet in His providence He makes all things work together in the fulfilment of His sovereign design and the manifestation of His glory; wherefore, humbly acknowledging the mystery of this truth, we trust in His protecting care and set our hearts to do His will.

[This surely is a wise statement which it would be difficult to improve upon.]

Article IV.—Of the Creation.

We believe that God is the Creator, Upholder, and Governor of all things; that He is above all His works and in them all; and that He made man in His own image, meet for fellowship with Him, free and able to choose between good and evil, and forever responsible to his Maker and Lord.

[We can endorse this statement too; but wonder how the large and growing number of evolutionists in the Presbyterian denomination can endorse it without mental reservations and twinges of conscience. If Adam was created in God's image, was meet for companionship with him, and free, and capable of deciding his destiny by his actions, he surely was far removed from being a monkey-man;—and surely, too, far superior to his posterity today, all of whom are sadly deficient in the divine image and qualifications for companionship with their Creator. Even the saints, with their much advantage every way, are still lacking in these respects, and are accepted of God only on a basis of faith in their Redeemer.]

Article V.—Of the Sin of Man.

We believe that our first parents, being tempted, chose evil, and so fell away from God and came under the power of sin, the penalty of which is eternal death; and we confess that, by reason of this disobedience, we and all men are born with a sinful nature, that we have broken God's law, and that no man can be saved but by His grace.

[This important truth is also well expressed. Eternal death [cessation of life], not eternal dying, nor eternal life in torment, is "the wages of sin." (Rom. 6:23.) Hence Jesus Christ "by the grace of God tasted death for every man"—"poured out his soul unto death" for us.—Heb. 2:9; Isa. 53:12.]

Article VI.—Of the Grace of God.

We believe that God, out of his great love for the world, has given His only begotten Son to be the Saviour of sinners, and in the gospel freely offers His all-sufficient Salvation to all men. And we praise Him for the unspeakable grace wherein He has provided a way of eternal life for all mankind.

[We are glad for this statement, that God's love is for the whole world and not merely for the "elect" Church; and that "all men" are provided an "all-sufficient salvation." Good! very good! It only remains to remember the Apostle's word, "How shall they believe on him of whom they have not heard?" to prove that the "due time" for the majority of our race to be saved, by acceptance of the only name given under heaven or amongst men, must be in the Millennium.—Acts 4:12; 1 Tim. 2:6; Rom. 10:14.]

Article VII.—Of Election.

We believe that God, from the beginning, in His own good pleasure, gave to His Son a people, an innumerable multitude, chosen in Christ unto holiness, service and salvation; we believe that all who come to years of discretion can receive this salvation only through faith and repentance; and we believe that all who die in infancy, and all others given by the Father to the Son, who are beyond the reach of the outward means of grace, are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases.

[This statement is the blindest and least satisfactory of all the Articles. It is God's election, not man's that is discussed; hence the word "innumerable" here must be understood to mean that to God the "elect" are either not numbered or beyond numeration or both. Surely this is inconsistent with divine fore-knowledge and predestination—without which the word "elect" would be meaningless. On the contrary, the Scriptures represent the elect as being, not only numerable, but, numbered and limited;—in all a "little flock," the very reverse of innumerable. In Revelations (14:1-5) the number of these "very elect" "over-comers" is given as 144,000; and in chap. 7:1-4 the same ones are shown as filling up the special election first opened to Fleshy Israel (Rom. 11:7, 17-19), and the same number is given. It is another class altogether, not the "elect" "little flock" who shall inherit the Kingdom, that is subsequently described as "a great multitude which no man could number," or whose number is known to no man. (Rev. 7:9.) These latter never sit with the Lord in his throne as "joint-heirs," but are "before the throne;" neither are they the Temple of "living stones," but are honored in permission to serve God in his temple.—Rev. 7:9-15.

The difficulty with the theory of our dear Presbyterian friends is that they misapply the election to salvation. True, the elect will all be saved, but they are not elected to salvation. There is but one ground, or condition on which any can now be saved; namely, by faith attested by obedience to the extent of ability. God is not unjust that he should make some short cut, or easier condition for the "elect." Rather, indeed, though the standard of salvation now and forever must be the same—perfect love—the holy spirit or disposition of the Redeemer—the non-elect, the world in general, will in their time of trial (the Millennium) have easier conditions of attaining to the divine standard than have the elect during this Gospel age.

Our dear friends need to see that the divine plan has heights and depths, lengths and breadths which Brother Calvin and his associates never dreamed of; namely, that favor of God which they obscurely refer to by saying that those "beyond the reach of outward means of grace, are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit who works when and where and how he pleases." The world as a whole is now "beyond the reach of outward means of grace" and there are no other; "for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." But when we begin to seek for "when" and "where" and "how" the spirit of God will work for the world's reclamation we find it all clearly stated in the Scriptures.

The Apostle says that God's grace in Christ for all shall be "testified in due time." (1 Tim. 2:6.) The Prophet points us to the Millennium as that due time, and assures us that then the knowledge of the Lord shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the great deep;—and then there shall be no longer need to "teach every man his neighbor and every man his brother, saying Know thou the Lord! for all shall know me from the least of them unto the greatest of them saith the Lord." (Isa. 11:9; Jer. 31:34.) The Apostle Peter declares that this grand and universal "refreshing from the presence of the Lord," shall come at our Lord's second advent which shall be followed by "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." St. Peter tells us just "how" humanity is then to be blessed; saying, "For Moses truly said unto the fathers [not fulfilled in Peter's day nor since, but as sure as God's Word], 'A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that every soul which will not hear [heed, obey] that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people" —Second Death—Acts 3:19-23.

Our Lord himself tells "how" his grace will work, or operate by and by, at his second advent. His words are, "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth; they that have done good [the faithful, the "elect"] unto the resurrection of life [the First Resurrection—"they shall be priests of God and of Christ and shall reign on the earth"—Rev. 20:6]; and they that have done evil [shall come forth] unto resurrection by judgments." (See Revised Version.) Jno. 2:28, 29. This [illegible] is the hope of all except the saints, the elect. When they come forth from the tomb during the Millennium they will not be fully alive, for full life means perfection. None will live again in that proper sense of perfect life, complete freedom from death, until the Millennium is finished. It will be an age of uplifting, or restitution, in which the revivifying influences of the "trees of life" and the "river of the water of life clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne," shall be for the non-elect; for the world of mankind in general—all of these who will may take of the water of life freely and live forever; while those who refuse those life opportunities will, as the Apostle declares, "be destroyed from among the people."

Garfield Remembered.

"When I was 16 years old," said W. B. Fasig, "I ran away from school and enlisted in Garfield's regiment, the Forty-second Ohio. Down in eastern Kentucky, Garfield, who, although only a colonel, was brigade commander, organized a raid on Pound Gap, a strong position, and personally selected a detachment from each company in the regiment to take part in the attack. I wasn't lucky enough to be selected for the work, but I was crazy to go, and when the cavalry started out I borrowed a mule from the quartermaster when he wasn't looking and went with the mounted troops, who hid me.

"In due season I found my regiment, tied my mule and joined the ranks. Well, we took the place. Then I went back to my mule and made tracks for the camp. It was dark, and I lost my way and remained missing five days. After I returned I was marched up to Garfield, who examined me, listened to what I had to say and then sent me to my tent under arrest, telling me I would be court martialed. Five minutes later a boat came down the river carrying Garfield's commission as a brigadier general and ordering him to join Thomas with his command, and in the flurry my case was forgotten.

"Years after the war I attended a reunion of my regiment in Ashland, and the first thing Garfield said when he saw me was, 'Look here, Fasig, you never had that court martial I promised you.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MRS. ROSE RICE TURNER.

Democratic Nominee for County School Superintendent.

From the Spokesman-Review: "Mrs. Rose Rice Turner, candidate for county school superintendent is the daughter of the late Judge Milton L. Rice, and was born in Kentucky. She came to Spokane with her father in the early 80's and taught in the public schools of the city a number of years. She was then called to the head of the teachers' training school of the State Normal School at Ellensburg when it was opened, and remained there two years. She was re-elected, but accepted a similar position with the State Normal School at Cheney, where she remained three years. In these State Normal School positions her work was largely supervision of student teachers, a valuable experience for school superintendency. She is the wife of Prof. W. B. Turner, county superintendent of schools from 1890 to 1894, and for several years since that time principal of the State Normal School at Cheney. They have one child, a daughter, aged 9. Professor Turner has been for the last two years in the insurance business in this city, and expects to continue therein. Mrs. Turner will have the benefit of his experience and counsel, but expects to do the work of the office, including school visiting, herself. Mrs. Turner holds a teacher's life diploma, the highest educational credential granted by the state."

In voting this fall select your man. Parties do not cut much figure after all. An excuse of a man like a gambler, is an injury to any party, and to benefit that party such a candidate must be voted down at the polls.

Read THE WESTERN HOME JOURNAL.

Those who wish to have a good reliable man to serve them as county auditor will make no mistake in working for the election of Zach. Stewart. Mr. Z. Stewart is at the head of the list of honest, upright, competent men in Spokane county. Whatever your politics you will make no mistake in supporting Zach. Stewart for auditor.

Unless the symptoms belie the disease, one of the candidates on the republican county ticket is a semi-professional gambler. No man who gambles should be elected to any position by the people. Our officers should be a law abiding citizens. A gambler is not and cannot be. By the act alone he is a violator of the laws of the state. A man who takes money from another without giving value received is a dangerous one to tell what property is worth. You don't want him fixing values of your land. Vote against any such and sustain the laws we have.

A SPOKANE HOME.

Facts About Eggs.

Contentment is an egg tonic.

Make the hens "feel at home."

Refuse the trade of the cold storage man.

Gather eggs several times a day, and thus avoid broken eggs in the nest.

Iowa Homestead says producing eggs is an art, and the man will make the most of it who understands the art best.

The yoke of an egg is very nourishing, containing a large percentage of albuminoids, fatty organic matters and mineral salts.

The cold storage man gives you money today for your product, and next winter he takes it from you with compound interest.

Mr. Collingwood says there is no animal mixture under the sun so intricate, so compact, so full of power and force as the egg.

France, after meeting its own requirements, it is said, supplies the British market with $13,000,000 worth of poultry and eggs.

The egg shell consists chiefly of carbonate of lime and a little phosphate of lime, and is cemented together by a small amount of gluten.

The yellow color of the yolk of an egg is due chiefly to sulphur, which, on decomposition, is given off as sulphurretted hydrogen, causing an unpleasant smell.

Imports of eggs for nine months ending March 31, 1902, were 166,515 dozen, against 97,342 same time a year ago. Exports were 2,311,182 dozen and 2,897,598 dozen respectively for the same periods.

The "white" of the egg consists of albumen, coagulable on beating. It is in three layers, and through it runs a hardened spiral band of albumenous material, called the chalaza, which supports the yolk.

Between the white of the egg and the shell are two delicate membranes, one adhering closely to the shell, the other to the albumen. These two skins are joined except at the large end of the egg, where they separate and form the air cavity.

The American Stock Keeper says the color of eggs for sale in the markets of the country being now darker than twenty years ago, simply proves that Asiatic blood has been largely introduced throughout the country, and that it has its effect on the egg.—Farm-Garden and Poultry.

Why Young Men Go Wrong.

Too much spending money in boyhood starts more young men on the wrong road than any other cause—perhaps than all other causes combined—is the opinion of William Sutherland, a noted detective. This conclusion is the result of years devoted to the professional probing of hundreds of cases of commercial dishonesty. Such an experience compels the conviction that parents are generally more responsible for the dishonesty of their boys than are the boys themselves, says Grocers' Criterion.

It is not the young man who has a hard boyhood who goes wrong. More embezzlers and defaulters come from the kindergartens of luxury and extravagance than from poverty—ten times over!

Many a sober and naturally honest young man has gone wrong by assuming early in life responsibilities beyond his powers. Our great metropolitan commercial houses are filled with young men who receive $10 or $12 per week. They marry with this meagre income on the hope that two can live in a home of their own as cheaply as one without a home. If the young wife is in the least inclined to extravagance or is a "poor manager," the one who earns the living finds himself hard pressed. He cannot get more salary and he is tempted to take what will not be given as his due. Many state prison cells have been filled from this cause.

Envy of an employer's success in the field of speculation is another prolific source of commercial dishonesty. The employe learns that the man who pays him his salary has made several thousand dollars by a lucky turn of the stock or grain market. Why cannot he do the same? He tries and perhaps makes a little profit on the first deal. Then he goes in deeper and sooner or later finds that he is caught for margins which he can put up only by stealing from his employer. He promises to replace the money as soon as the deal is carried through—and awakens to find himself in the hands of the law.

In much the same way he is lead into playing the races and other forms the same disastrous results.

Making expensive presents and carousing with gay companions is another common pitfall, although very many go down in the race before this stage is reached.

The Chicken Market.

Aim to please.

Pack carefully.

Attract the eye.

Market regularly.

Take pride in your shipments.

Keep the fattening coop clean.

Let "Gilt-Edge" be your motto.

Are you trying summer broilers?

A satisfied customer invariably returns.

Never pack the poultry until thoroughly cooled.

The crop must be empty when shipping dressed poultry to market.

See that the fowl is properly bled that the carcass may be well drained of blood.

The floor of the fattening coop should be so arranged that the manure will drop through.

In France they mix spices and herbs with the feed given to fattening poultry, and they are said to impart a delicious flavor to the meat.

It is imperative in preparing poultry for market that the birds should be confined in a clean coop with absolutely no feed for 24 hours or more before killing; they should have plenty of water to drink, which aids in cleansing the intestines.

Sugar Beet Pulp in Fattening Cattle.

This question is becoming one of no little importance in certain areas of this country. In the Northwest it is not a question of very great importance as yet, but there are some factories in the area named. The value of the pulp therefore should be known for feeding uses. There is, of course, much yet to be learned about it, but the following statements would seem to be reasonable and correct: First, when the pulp is fed to cattle that are being fattened not more than 20 to 25 pounds should be given at first, to each animal per day, as more than that would probably disturb digestion too much. Second, this amount may be increased until 50 pounds a day are fed. Third, that when 80 to 90 pounds are fed the results are not altogether satisfactory, as the consumption of grain is too much reduced, and more or less of laxness of the bowels is induced. Fourth, that after about 100 days of feeding, the amount of pulp fed should be reduced and the grain increased to firm the meat sufficiently. In other words, for several weeks before shipping the stock, the animals should have less pulp and more grain to ripen the meat properly. And fifth, when pulp is fed in fattening, it should always be in conjunction with more or less grain or meal, whatever may be the nature of the fodder food.

The Government's Whitewash.

Very frequently we are asked for a good recipe for making whitewash. Below we give the formula used by the government in making whitewash, which will be found very good for poultry houses, fences and outbuildings generally:

Take half a bushel of unslaked lime, slake it with boiling water, cover during the process to keep in steam, strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it a peck of salt previously dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting and one pound clean glue previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over a slow fire in a small pot hung within a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons hot water to the mixture, stir well and let it stand a few days, covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a kettle or a portable furnace. Coloring matter may be added as desired. For cream color add yellow ochre; pearl or lead, add lamp or ivory black; fawn, add proportionately four pounds of umber to one pound Indian red and one pound common lamp-black; common stone color, add proportionately four pounds raw umber to two pounds lamp-black. For interior work: Slack a peck of lime till it is thick and creamy. While it is hot, mix with a pint of linseed oil and one quarter pound of glue dissolved in water. Let the mixture stand several hours before applying it. A little lamp-black dissolved in vinegar and mixed with whitewash gives a grayish tint, which may be preferable to pure white; a little umber gives a fawn color, and yellow a cream tint. Very little coloring matter should be used, or the shade will be too dark.

If this is made somewhat thinner than indicated above and strained through a flannel cloth it may rapidly be applied with a sprayer such as is used in spraying trees. When strained through cotton cloth the lint from the cotton often interferes with the work.

Things to Remember.

After the second year the hens will lay fewer egg.

Cull out all the poor layers and give the good hens a chance.

Never keep ducks, geese or turkeys with the chickens.

Never crowd too many fowls into one house or yard. Overcrowded flocks are always failures.

Male birds should be kept in separate pens during the winter months.

Keep the hens busy. If they will not work for their food they will not lay.

Sheaf oats make splendid litter for the scratching shed, and the hens will enjoy working over the straw.

Correct feeding means much toward successful keeping.

Ten weeks' care should bring a chick to marketable size —a longer time means actual loss.—Farm and Home.

IS THE PLAN PRACTICABLE?

Don't conclude that this plan to control prices of farm products is impracticable. Many things that have not been accomplished in the past have only waited for the twentieth century advanced thought to find a way for accomplishment. With control of farm products and prices, farming will be on an equality with the most preferred of other enterprises, and the farmer will no longer need to produce his crops and let the other fellow put the price on them. He can just as well, and has just as good a right, to know what he is spending his money, time, energy and brains for, as has the manufacturer who never makes up a lot of his goods expecting the man who buys them to put his own value on them. The plan is entirely original, unique and practical, and can be put in operation almost immediately, with effects startling, but beneficial to the entire commercial interests of the world.

Agriculture is the foundation of all wealth.

Land is the only real, natural, stable property.

The farmer feeds them all, hence the farmer can starve them all.

Close up the speculator's business by removing the uncertainties of prices of farm products.

The farmers produce the original products. From these nearly all other products are evolved.

A profitable business inspires enterprise and expenditure, resulting in improvements, greater intelligence and happiness.

If the farmer would stop marketing for a single week, the effect would be world wide, demoralizing every enterprise.

Impotent, yet possessed with unlimited power, has characterized the farmers as a class in the past. To such the American Society of Equity plan will be a revelation.

No person in his right mind will dispute that the farmers hold the key to the world's industrial life, yet no other class of people has been so helpless and dependent as they.

Education and agitation will bring the farmers into their true birthright as dictators to the balance of the world. They will do it wisely for it is to their interests to do so.

It is the duty of every farmer, stockman, fruitman and every friend to agriculture in its various branches to help along this campaign of education and agitation until every person interested in agricultural pursuits is a convert.

When farmers co-operate to get profitable prices for their products their farms will double in value at once. To make a $10,000 farm worth $20,000 only requires twentieth century business methods in farming, and the individual effort on the part of the farmer. Is it worth the effort?

LITERARY NOTES.

COMOPOLITAN

If you were to ask the average man to tell you offhand just what qualities he likes in other men he would probably boggle a good deal over his answer, but he would end by giving you a list of abstract virtues closely resembling the list of "the hundred best books" which is, as a rule, what people feel they ought to enjoy reading rather than what they do read with pleasure. Rafford Pyke, several of whose clever and discerning essays have been found in The Cosmopolitan during the last year, makes "What Men Like in Men," the subject of an entertaining essay in the August number of that periodical.

DELINEATOR

The first installment of Mrs. Barr's new love story, Thyra Varrick, appears in The Delineator for September, and judging from this first chapter it will hold the reader's attention to the end by its fine characterizations, beauty of thought and language and spirited action; it is superbly illustrated. The second section of The House that Jack and Jill Built tells about the old-fashioned garden and how it was made, and the pictures are delightful. The influence of the noble Vittoria Colonna on the life of Michael Angelo furnishes material for a notable addition to the series of Authors' Loves by Clara E. Laughlin. An interesting paper on Julia Ward Howe, lovingly called the grand old woman of America, also appears in this number. There are two spirited short stories by well known writers, innumerable articles on fancy work and domestic interests; stories and pastimes for children, window gardening, home entertainment, etc., etc.

AN ANECDOTE OF MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE

In an interesting illustrated article on Julia Ward Howe, in the Delineator for September, Helen M. Winslow tells of the home life of the aged author of the Battle Hymn of the Republic and describes the traits that have made her generally beloved. Mrs. Howe is fond of a joke, and it was when presiding over the dinner of the Boston Authors' Club last winter that she introduced the first speaker, Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, in the following way: "I will now call upon my much respected and highly valued vice." "Mrs. Howe's virtues speak for themselves," was Colonel Higginson's ready response, "it is only on rare occasions that she parades a vice."

Government Mapping of Central and Western Washington.

Announcement is made that the topographic branch of the United States Geological Survey will continue this season the mapping of the forested regions of Washington in the Cascades, under the general oversight of Mr. Richard W. Goode, geographer. The section will be covered by parties operating in three districts.

The party in the north district will be in charge of Mr. R. A. Farmer, and will outfit at Wenatchee. The area selected to be surveyed will be that known as the Stehekin quadrangle, in the Washington Forest Reserve, and will include portion of Lake Chelan and a portion of the crest line of the Cascade Range. In this general locality will also be a party under Mr. E. M. Fry, whose duties it will be to determine by spirit leveling elevations above sea level of various points in the Cascade Mountains along the Skagit and Methow rivers and in the mountains between Republic and the Colville river.

The party in the central district of the western section will be in charge of Mr. A. E. Murlin and will survey the Skykomish quadrangle, which includes an area of about 800 square miles north and south of the Great Northern Railroad in the vicinity of Skykomish, within which are many mines and much valued timber. A portion of this quadrangle is in the Washington Forest Reserve. Mr. Murlin will have as his principal assistants Messrs. W. C. Guerin and C. W. Sutton.

Mr. A. H. Sylvester will have charge of the third party in the western section, or that operating in the southern district, and will outfit at North Yakima. The work will be a continuation of that done during the preceding field season in the Mount Aix quadrangle. The greater portion of this quadrangle is in the Mount Rainier Forest Reserve. It includes a number of the passes along the summit of the Cascades and the headquarters of the White and Cowlitz rivers flowing to the west, and of the American, Bumping, and Tieton rivers, tributaries of the Natches and Yakima rivers. Mr. Sylvester's principal assistant will be Mr. Ralph Cowgill.

All of the work in the western section is a continuation of the systematic survey, begun several years ago, of the forested areas of the Cascade Mountains.

World's Fair News and Notes.

The Intra-mural Railway at the World's Fair will be eight miles long.

The Louisiana Purchase states contain 63,000 miles of railway, nearly one-third the total of the United States. These figures do not include second tracks and sidings.

Representatives of the Smith family have applied for space for a building at the World's Fair to be the headquarters of the members of that great family when visiting the exposition. Some genius has figured out that there are 14,000,000 Smiths in the world, but the number who may visit the World's Fair is undetermined.

The United States Government building at the World's Fair will be the largest ever erected by the government for such a purpose.

President David R. Francis of the World's Fair was the guest of President Roosevelt at luncheon at Oyster Bay a few days ago and obtained from the President the promise that he will attend the dedication ceremonies of the World's Fair April 30, 1903.

Official news have been received at St. Louis from Guadeloupe, announcing the intention of that island of the French republic to participate in the World's Fair.

Michael Keenan of Springer, New Mexico, offers a 30-pound meteorite for exhibition at the World's Fair. Its condition shows it to have become plastic from friction while passing through the air on its way to the earth.

Wisconsin manufacturers, under the leadership of the Milwaukee Manufacturers' Association, will hold a meeting to perfect plans for an extensive exhibit of Wisconsin factory products at the World's Fair in St. Louis. The principal market for the products of Wisconsin factories is in the Louisiana Purchase Territory.

About Wenatchee Valley.

A. Harvey writes an interesting account of Wenatchee valley as he sees it after a residence of about a year. He wants our readers to know about it, so here it is:

"I think this valley is the worst place I have got into yet, and the others think less of it than I do.

I just built a smudge to smoke the mosquitoes out of the tent. We have to do that every night before we go to bed and then again, "lots of nights" in the middle of the night. The flies wake us up at daylight, BUT Wenatchee has no flies, mosquitoes or bed-bugs according to the literature they send out.

Fruit is higher here than in Spokane and if you want any to eat you have to steal it for the orchard owners are too stingy to give an apple away. Cherries were five cents a pound and you have to pick them yourself. Is it any reason there is so much made on orchards here?

The American Buff Plymouth Rock club's new catalogue will be ready for mailing about Sept. 1. Every one interested in this popular variety should have one of these books, which promises to be finer and more interesting than anything yet published by the workers of this successful organization. Send a stamp to the secretary, W. C. Denny, Buffalo, N. Y., who will mail a copy on request.

Spokane. Washington.

The Spokane Newspaper Union now prints on the average 75 papers each week, the Northern Pacific Union of Portland, 117 papers and the Seattle Union 60 papers. These three lists contain a majority of the country papers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho and a large number in Montana and British Columbia. Alexander & Co., Spokane, Wash., are the authorized agents for the lists.

The dates of the Spokane Interstate Fair are Oct. 6 to 14 inclusive. The ideal season of Washington and the time of the year when the farmer, fruit grower, stock raiser and ranchman is through his labor and in position to attend the fair and enjoy himself with his family and neighbors. The management promise big times this fall in all departments and are expecting a big attendance, as the railroads are going to give greatly reduced rates during the fair.

An Ideal Outing Trip.

The writer recently spent a few days at Lake Wenatchee on the Great Northern railway about 206 miles west of Spokane. This is by far the most ideal spot for an outing that I have found. The lake is large and full of trout as are the many mountain streams, the Wenatchee and Chiwaukum rivers. There is a stopping place at the lake where one can get good meals at 25 cents each and a good bed for 50 cents,

The mountains are full of bears and deer. One old trapper showed me 13 bear skins which he took this spring.

Lack of space forbids my describing this as I wish, but if any reader wishes to take an outing where he can get all the trout, big and small game and see some magnificent scenery, take the Great Northern train and get off at Chiwaukum, and then take the stage for a 15-mile ride to beautiful Lake Wenatchee.

Spokane Interstate Fair.

There will be music galore this year when the biggest and best bands in the United States will play an engagement at the theatres in Spokane during the Spokane Interstate Fair this fall. This with the band music at the fair will give the people who attend the fair ample opportunity to hear all the good music they desire. In addition to the musical feature many other high class attractions will be seen at the fair grounds. Baloon ascension will be seen at the fair grounds each day by Prof. Baldwin, the acknowledged aerial king of the world, who performs many wonderful and startling features. The amusement program alone this fall will be worth the price of admission to say nothing of the fine fruit exhibit, stock exhibit, fine art exhibit and the racing. The management propose this year to excel all previous efforts in giving the people a great fair and a big lot of amusement for the money.

That's what you want. It's what everybody wants. You can get it by paying a year in advance for the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL. Then we'll send you a whole year free the Western Poultry News, which is a big 32-page monthly illustrated magazine published at Lincoln, Neb. It is filled with helpful articles by poultry experts and people of practical experience.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE MASONIC FAIR.

They are Going Forward Rapidly. Building to be Fashioned into a Japanese Village. Special Railroad Rates.

The Masonic Fair to be held from October 6 to 18 is the one overshadowing event that absorbs the attention and arouses the keenest anticipations of Spokane and all the region about. The preparations which have been on foot and maintained with admirable system and marked activity, have assumed the most elaborate shape.

That the fair will be an immense success can be foretold without even scrutinizing the horoscope for the eventful twelve days covering the period in October when the fair is to be held.

The interior of the fair building will present a magnificent appearance during the fair. The corps of decorators will be put to work under the supervision of Colonel Noble F. Martin, the manager, and he promises that the building will be a gorgeous place when it is finished. It will be decorated in the style of a Japanese village. The booths will be built and trimmed so as to present a most attractive appearance. The ladies who are to have charge of the different booths are working day and night for the success of the fair, and when that is stated it is idle to say that the affair is predestined to be a royal success. The epicureans will be rejoiced to learn that a delicious meal will be provided every night of the fair, the refreshment hours to be from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. Supper tickets will be sold at the fair at the low price of 25 cents.

The privilege and pleasure of taking in the fair will be vouchsafed not alone to the people of Spokane, but to people in the surrounding country and distant towns. There will be special passenger rates on all railroads.

The various committees are hard at work securing all sorts of donations which will be placed on sale in the various booths at bargain prices.

Some Important Dairy Notes.

Salt should be always accessible.

Do not change the food suddenly.

Clean and thoroughly air stable before milking.

Do not allow dogs, cats or loafers to be around at milking time.

Never mix fresh warm milk with that which has been cooled.

All persons who milk the cows should have the finger nails cut closely.

Keep the stable and dairy room in good condition, fresh air and clean.

Milk with dry hands. Never allow the hands to come in contact with the milk.

Use no dry, dusty feed just previous to milking: if fodder is dusty sprinkle it before it is fed.

Whitewash the stable once or twice a year. Use land plaster in the manure gutters daily.

If cover is left off the can a piece of cloth or mosquito netting should be used to keep out insects.

Do not move cows faster than a comfortable walk while on the way to place of milking or feeding.

The milker should wear a clean outer garment, used only when milking, and kept in a clean place at other times.

Observe and enforce the uttermost cleanliness about the cattle, their attendants, the stable, the dairy and all utensils.

The Chicago Show.

The Seventh Annual Chicago Exhibition of Poultry, Pigeons, Cats, Dogs and Pet Stock will be held January 19 to 24 inclusive, 1903, in the Coliseum, Wabash Avenue and Fifteenth Street, Chicago. A number of Specialty Clubs —enough to make this a most notable meeting—have voted to hold their annual meetings in Chicago during the show week.

"THEY SAY."

BY NIXON WATERMAN.

Who are the vague, mysterious "they"
That always have so much to "say"
Of you and me and every one,
And everything that's said and done?
Wherever human hearts abound
There "they" are certain to be found;
And, be as careful as you may,
There's no escaping their "they say."

"They say"—they really do not know—
"'Tis rumored Mr. So-and-So
Or Miss or Mrs. What's-her-name"—
"They" care not whence the rumor came,
But slyly whisper this and that;
Of your and my affairs "they" chat,
And keep folks busy night and day,
Refuting all the things "they say."

"They say" that nearly every one
Has something wrought or left undone;
"That's really shocking, don't you know,
But please don't say I told you so."
"They" intimate such awful things
And give to lies such airy wings
That truth itself is led astray
By all the gauzy words "they say."

"They say"—who says it? Let them dare
Their personality declare,
Nor in some subtle manner seek
To hide from words they dare to speak.
Why should they parentage refuse
To put words which they have put to use?
With whispered rumors let's away,
Nor lend an ear to what "they say."

"LAUGH AND GROW FAT."

Life is such a serious business to the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous short story on the editorial page as well as "Out of the Ginger Jar," noted for its snappy qualities, and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorists in the country. In addition to all these the Sunday issue always includes a comic section guaranteed to produce laughter from the most lugubrious of mortals. Then the inimitable "Bob" Burdette, one of the most noted of American humorists, is a regular contributor to THE SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD, and every issue contains, in addition, other special articles of a delightfully humorous character.

Marriages of the Deaf.

It seems somewhat strange that in marriages where one partner is deaf and the other has hearing the proportion of deaf children is as great as in cases where both the father and mother are deaf.

Dr. Fay's statistics show this condition to exist. He explains its seeming opposition to the laws of heredity by saying that deafness is merely a result or symptom of some disease or pathological condition, and as there are a great variety of these conditions which produce deafness it is only rarely that they are the same in both partners to a marriage, and that therefore there is not, in most instances where both are deaf, the union of "like to like," after all.

Another conclusion drawn from a study of the statistics is that persons who are born deaf are more likely to transmit deafness to their offspring than those who become deaf through disease or accident, although the latter are more liable to have deaf children than those whose hearing is unimpaired. There are far more marriages in which the man and woman are both deaf than in which only one is deaf, and the farmer are apt to be the happier, the proportion of divorce being only 2½ per cent, while in the latter it is 6½ per cent.—Leslie's Weekly.

FARM AND GARDEN

FOREST TREE PLANTING.

An Effort to Promote It Among Farmers and Landowners.

The division of forestry of the United States department of agriculture through a recent circular offers practical and personal assistance to farmers and others in establishing forest plantations, wood lots, shelter belts and wind breaks. Applications for the conditions of such assistance should be made to Gifford Pinchot, forester, Washington, D. C. The design of this undertakiug is to aid farmers and other landowuers in the treeless region of the west and wherever it is desirable to establish forest plantation. In the very interesting explanatory circular, No 22, Mr. Pinchot touches upon various aspects of forestry. Tree culture in regions formerly treeless, he says, is dependent largely upon agriculture. Wherever large areas of land have been brought under cultivation the growing of trees is yearly becoming more successful.

Nearly every state of the plains region has, among many failures, some admirable examples of plantations of all ages, from 1 to 25 or more years, which have been in every way successful. The success of these plantations, when compared with the more numerous failures, proves the great need for practical experience, combined with wide and accurate knowledge, in growing forest trees in the west.

The forest plantation at the Agricultural college, Brookings, S. D., of which an interior view is given in the first cut, illustrates what may be accomplished in a few years on the open prairies of that state. This is a mixed plantation, 12 years old, of birch, black cherry, green ash and white elm.

The second cut shows a typical view of a young forest plantation two years after planting. The plot on the left is a mixed planting of box elder, oak, white elm, green ash and black locust. The plot on the right is set to Russian mulberry, oak, white elm, black locust, honey locust, green ash and box elder. This plantation is at Logau, Utah.

It is not reasonable to suppose that forest tree culture can be made a direct source of great financial profit in the arid regions, but if it cannot bring in important sums it can save the farmer very considerable expenditures by supplying material which he would otherwise have to buy. The indirect value, too, of well established groves, wood lots, shelter belts and wind breaks in the protection which they afford is of the first importance. Such plantations, in addition to being of direct use for fuel, fence posts and material for many miscellaneous farm uses, are invaluable in providing protection for crops, orchards, stock and farm buildings.

One of the most important indirect services of forest plantations, and one rarely taken into consideration, is the increased market value of a well wooded farm on the prairie lands of the west over one without timber. Conservative estimates made on the ground indicate that the farms of eastern and central Kansas and Nebraska that have well developed plantations of forest trees upon them, either in the form of wood lots, shelter belts or wind breaks, are worth more per acre than farms without them.

In nearly the whole of the broad prairie belt extending from the wooded regions to longitude 100 degrees west and reaching from North Dakota to Texas trees may be grown with varying success. In the western border of the wooded area nearly all the species may be grown which are indigenous to the adjacent woodlands. Farther west the range in selection becomes more and more restricted until the western limit of successful tree culture on nonirrigated lands is reached.

Many of the wornout farms in humid regions may be brought back to their original fertility by growing forest trees upon them for a series of years, and very many of them contain land better suited to the production of wood than to any other purpose. Such land should never have been cleared. It is fortunately true that throughout the regions once wooded wornout farm lands will usually revert to their previous condition if protected from fire and stock.

Useful In the Orchard.

One useful article in an apple picking outfit described by a writer in the Ohio Farmer is the stool represented in the cut. It is all made of basswood, except the front leg, upon which the basket hangs. This is made of a buggy or cart shaft. The platform is 4 feet long, 15 inches broad and 1 3-8 inches thick.

The ends are made double thickness to allow two screws on each leg and are thoroughly braced. The small brace on the under side is iron, with two screws at each end. A small iron hook is put on the under side of the "crane's bill" to hang the basket on. The spread of the hind legs is 4 feet and 4 inches, and from the hind to the front leg is 5 feet 9 inches. The stool is 3 feet high and will not fall over, as three legs always adjust themselves to the ground, even if on a slope. Place either end of the stool up or down, and you and it are all right. It is the best thing, the writer says, that he has ever seen to pick apples from up to 9 or 11 feet high.

APPLE PICKING STOOL.

A small piece of leather is tacked on the underside of the basket bail, through which the hook is passed to prevent the bail from slipping either way.

Single White Hyacinths.

"Single white hyacinths should be boxed early in September. If Roman and wanted for Christmas, they may be put under benches the same as freeslas and treated similarly, but if of the Dutch variety and not wanted to flower until next February or March then the boxes should be placed outdoors and covered with six or eight inches of soil, and there they may remain until about three weeks before wanted for flowering," advises The Florists' Exchange.

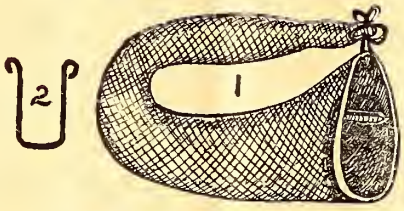
Convenient In Apple Picking.

In picking apples a good sack spread is very convenient, says an Ohio Farmer writer. When picking winter apples, as a rule, we take a mill sack and put an apple in a corner in the bottom of the sack and a string through the corner at the top. Then, tying the string around above the apple, one has a shoulder basket, as illustrated.

In order to have both hands free, many apple pickers will cut a short stick and by sharpening both ends push each end through the sack, as shown at the top of the dotted line in



A SHOULDER BAG FOR APPLES.

Fig. 1. This is very good if it does not fall out, but that "measly" stick is continually coming out by wearing larger holes in the sack. To save all such trouble take a piece of heavy, smooth wire, bend it in the shape of the letter U, as shown by Fig. 2, and slip the wire on the outside of the sack, as at the dotted line. Turn the edge of the sack back over the wire and with a darning needle and good cording string commence at one ring end, hem the sack thoroughly clear around to the other end of wire and sew it well, especially at the ring ends. You will then have a handy and convenient sack spread.

Peach Ice Cream.

Scald a pint of cream, add one and one-half cups of granulated sugar and stir not only until the sugar is dissolved, but until the cream looks blue and thin—about five minutes. Take from the fire, add a pint of uncooked cream and cool. When cool add the juice remaining from the can of peaches, a teaspoonful of vanilla extract, one-half teaspoonful of peach extract and two or three drops of orange extract; freeze; when nearly frozen, and after the cream has been beaten smooth, add the remainder of the peach pulp and mix in thoroughly; remove the dasher, pack and stand away to ripen.

Some people would not object to having $1.50 given to them. Here it is. Take it. Just send us $1.50 and we will give you the Woman's Home Companion one year, the Cosmopolitan one year, and the Western Home Journal two years. Four years of the best reading for $1.50. A POPULAR CLUBWOMAN.

A Resident of the City of Roses Who Is Known of by All Clubdom.

Mrs. Frederick Hanger of Little Rock is well known among clubwomen as the brilliant southern woman who nominated Mrs. William B. Lane of Atlanta, Ga., for the presidency of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. It was due to Mrs. Hanger's grace and magnetic power as a speaker that Mrs. Lane was elected the first southern president of the General Federation.

Mrs. Hanger has recently been elected president of the Arkansas Federation of Women's Clubs. She is perhaps the best known clubwoman in Arkansas. Her present distinction has been won by efficient and conspicuous service in club work and she is, besides, a prominent leader of the exclusive society set in the beautiful City of Roses.

Mrs. Hanger has done effective work as president of the Little Rock Aesthetic and Quid Nunc clubs, as chapter regent of the Daughters of the Revolution, secretary of the Colonial Dames and state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She has great executive ability, and a successful year under her administration may be anticipated for the Arkansas Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haveu't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,
Will benefit the wisest men.
And if dyspepsia is their woe.

Reproving a Noisy Dog.

At the sheep dog trials at Troutbeck one of the shepherds lost his temper completely because his dog, a young one, little over a year old, gave tongue when the sheep refused to do his bidding. It is against the rules and regulations for a dog to bark during the trials, and as the young dog broke these rules, his master's voice came ringing through the air. He cried out angrily, "Shoot yo' mouth, will ye! Hae ye nowt better to do than yowl? What'll yon people think on ye, ye miserable yowling tyke! I'll make it proper hot for ye, an' I get ye hame, oor I'm gradely mistaken." Whether or not he made it "proper hot" for the dog is not known, but the people said his anger was to some extent justified.—A. R. Dugmore in Everybody's Magazine.

No less a man than John Wanamaker recently spoke as follows about newspapers: "A newspaper whose columns overflow with advertisements of business men has more influence in attracting attention and building up the town than any other agency. People go where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong to build up a town so well as a paper well patronized and its power should be appreciated. The man who overlooks his town paper injures himself by injuring his town and townsmen.

Ducklings and Ducks.

Ducklings require no water except for drinking until they are three months old, and are better off without any pond at all when young. The best mothers are hens, especially the Asiatic fowls—either Cochins or Brahmas. A hen of one of these breeds will cover nine or ten eggs. An old barrel, with a board at one end to fasten the bird upon her nest, is as good as a more expensive coop. They should be let out regularly—at noon every day—for an hour's range, to get grain, green food and water. The young ducks are usually fed with fresh animal food, bran and coarse Indian meal scalded. This, varied with chopped cabbage, turnips, liver and worms, is the staple food until they are three months old. They do much better on soft food than on grain. If ducks are furnished with a little house or pen upon the shore of any stream or pond, and a variety of grain, they will come home regularly every night. The eggs are usually laid at night or early in the morning, and very few of them need be lost. Of the four varieties—Rouen, Aylesbury, Cayuga and Pekin—the preference is given mostly to the last for early maturity, but the others also have their friends and admirers. The flesh of the duck, in the estimation of some, is one of the greatest delicacies on the farm, and they can be easily kept on a pasture. A large part of the difficulty with ducks is owing to neglect, and the reputation of the bird as a gross feeder is due to irregular supplies of food. If grain or varied food is kept within reach they devour no more than other fowls that mature as rapidly. If in suitable quarters and well fed they get most of their growth in four months, and can be marketed from May to August at high prices.

People Drink Less Now.

James L. Spink, one of the best known traveling men of the northwest, has just returned from a long trip through the country districts of Minnesota and reports the success of rural delivery along a line that can hardly have been anticipated by those instrumental in establishing the system, says the Minneapolis Journal.

In one of the towns where Mr. Spink sold goods he overheard a saloonkeeper discussing rural delivery and advancing arguments why the plan should be done away with. The main point he made was that it ruined business.

"Why," said Mr. Saloonkeeper, "when men came into town every day for their mail they were sure to drop into my place while they waited; everybody drank, everybody treated everybody else and it made trade lively. Now the farmers come into town but two or three times a week, and more often but once, and the worst of it is they don't happen to come in together, for they only come in for groceries or some other supplies, and no two men's supplies are apt to give out at exactly the same time. This, you see, does away with the matter of treating and reduces trade tremendously. It's ruining business, I tell you."

Mr. Spink is an observing man, and the saloonkeeper's point of view interested him. He took pains to inquire of the business men he traded with as to the correctness of the saloonkeeper's judgment, finding to his surprise that it was generally conceded that rural delivery has materially affected the liquor traffic in the small towns and gives promise of being a most effective means of increasing temperance among the farmers.

"Uncle Sam's method of work and its effect, although they were not primarily intended, must give the temperance workers pause when contrasted with those of Carrie Nation ilk and the canteen howlers," was the observation of the leading merchant of one of the largest of the towns visited.

The Old Liberty Bell.

World' Fair Grounds, St. Louis, August 5.—The Louisiana Purchase Exposition management has determined to bring, if possible, the old "Liberty Bell" from Philadelphia to St. Louis for exhibition at the World's Fair in 1904. If the effort is successful it will be the first visit to the territory west of the Mississippi of this sacred memento of the early days of American independence.

A psychic influence is in the prophetic inscription of the bell, "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof," (Leviticus XXV. 10), cast on it a quarter of a century before it accomplished its epochal task of a calling the colonies to the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence, six score and six years ago. There is gratification to the morbid and sentimental hint at the mutability of things in the crack which has parted the sounding lip of Liberty Bell and silenced it forever. Persons who do not know ask with surpassing interest how the bell came by the crack, and are disappointed to learn that it came, not in fire or battle, but from the impact of its own clapper on July 8, 1835, while tolling the funeral of John Marshall. It was cast in London 1752, and it was cracked by a blow of its own clapper a month after it was hung in the State House at Philadelphia. Pass & Stow, Americans, recast it on the same model and with the same main inscription. The first recasting was unsatisfactory and it was recast again.

Contrary to the popular impression, the bell did not ring at Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, after the passage of the Declaration of Independence. Its services to American independence was that it called the colonists to a public meeting at the State House on July 8, 1776, at which the Declaration was first proclaimed.

If the Liberty bell comes to St. Louis it will be the sixth journey which the bell has taken. The bell's first journey was from Philadelphia to Allentown in 1777, to save it from falling into the hands of the British, when the Americans evacuated Philadelphia. The other four journeys of the bell have been to American expositions: To New Orleans, on the east bank of the Mississippi river, in 1885; to Chicago in 1893; to Atlanta in 1895, and to Charleston in 1901.

A CONQUERING CORPS BADGE

And Other Stories of the Philippines is the Name of the New Book from the Pen of General Charles King.

We have just received for review a handsome autograph copy of General Charles King's new book, "A Conquering Corps Badge," and Other Stories of the Philippines. It contains eight stirring tales of love and war, handsomely bound in blue cloth with the stars and stripes embossed in colors on the cover. A fine detached photogravure of General King is enclosed with every copy, which in itself is worth framing. There are 16 fine half tone illustrations, several of which present familiar views. Among them we noticed views of midwinter in Manila, ruins of Guadalupe church, Paco church, Concordia bridge, etc.

Here is the general's dedication: "To the men of Santa Ana, the soldiers of California, Idaho, Washington, and of Light Battery 'D,' Sixth U. S. Artillery, the old First Brigade, First Division, Eighth Army Corps, in admiration of their valor and gratitude for their loyalty, these stories are dedicated."

The book, like all of King's, is bright and interesting and especially so to those who served in the Eighth Army Corps, as all the scenes are familiar and true to life. Special mention is made of the Washington regiment. Every man who served in Gen. King's brigade should read this book. L. A. Rhoades & Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., are the publishers, and will send copies postpaid on the receipt of $1.25.

The Proper Term.

A man who brews, as everybody knows, is called a brewer;
But if your landlord sues you, would you say he is a sewer?
A girl will change the color of the hair upon her head;
It's strange; but still you'll find that, though she's dyed, she isn't dead.
Would a pious man who fried a kipper be a holy friar?
A timid man who lies in bed,—is he a "fearful liar?"
If with mud you find you're spattered from a passing horse's hoof,
And you use a bad expletive, would that be a "muddled oaf?"

—W. Stanford, in London Academy.

Her Name.

'Twas Catharine Mary, once, we guess,
Though now 'tis Kathryn Mae.
Styll thys ys no one's busyness
If she lykes yt that wae.

—Philadelphia Press.

The Modern Up-to-Date-Girl.

Yonder is an old lady; her hair is quite gray, the snow of age has drifted through her one-time raven locks. She is hoeing in the garden, carrying on the war against the plague of weeds. Next Monday she will wash and on Tuesday she will iron. She has a grown daughter who is now beating out the tune of "Just One Girl" on the piano; her mother is endeavoring to keep time with the hoe. The girl could hoe but she will not; she could take a fall out of the washtub, too, but will not, she is too refined; she has the soul of an artist; but she could not sit down at the sewing machine and run up a seam on a "colony blue" apron to save her artistic soul from perdition. Yes her mother will finish hoeing the onion patch in time to get dinner.—Ex.

Not Very Far Wrong.

Recently a pastor was preaching to children. After asking many questions and impressing on the minds of the children that they must be saved from sin, he asked the question, "What is sin?" A bright little boy, 6 years old, quick as thought, replied, "Chewing, smoking, cursing and tearing your pants."

The Chicago Tribune has compiled a list of the accidents due to the use of explosives in celebrating Independence day. The aggregate is enormous. With many cities yet to be heard from the total of dead, including 3 in Chicago, is 21, the injured number 2,172, while the fire loss was $80,155. Philadelphia heads the list with a total of 439 injured.

LITERARY NOTES.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The article contributed by Mr. Robert E. Lewis, of Shanghai, to the Review of Reviews for July on "The Empress Dowager's System of Modern Colleges for China," will be a veritable revelation to most readers. The edicts recently issued by her Majesty have completely upset the ancient educational system of the empire and substituted a structure based on western ideas.

TABLE TALK

The topics in Table Talk are always seasonable, as appears at a glance over the table of contents: "The Table in Summer," by Majorie March, is full of information about the proper food for the summer months and how to prepare it. Too little attention, as a rule, is paid to diet in the heated months. "A Summer in the Rockies," by Mary Heath, is full of interest and information about camping out in the Rockies. "Children's Vacation Occupations," by Helen Raymond Wells, may be read with benefit by all interested in giving the children healthful pastimes during the vacation period. "A Progressive Dinner," and "A Liberty Tea," are timely bits of information. "Camp Cookery" tells what to do for a day, week or month in the woods, and will be valuable to all those contemplating little vacation trips. The publishers of Table Talk, Philadelphia, will send free sample copies to our readers on request.

COSMOPOLITAN

While the press has presented an endless number of illustrations of the Mont Pelee disaster, the illustrations in the July Cosmopolitan, printed on fine paper with the most careful art, give a clearer idea of just what that disaster means than anything hitherto presented.

BUILDING AN ARTISTIC HOME

"The House that Jack and Jill Built," is the title of an illustrated story, the first section of which appears in the August Delineator, will appeal to home lovers everywhere. So cleverly has the author told the various steps in the raising of this roof tree, that the reader enters thoroughly into the spirit of it, and almost feels that he will have some right and title to the same when finished. Unlike the usual house plans and descriptions, the smallest details are here presented, from the first rock laid to the last decorative touch inside.

THE PRECOCIOUS CHILD

The genuinely precocious child is very rare. Parents are seldom justified in attributing to their children powers which are transcendent. The vanity of so doing would be harmless in itself if it did not sow a crop of terrible mistakes in the treatment of the child which tends to its bodily and mental undoing. The signs of brain fag in a child, says Dr. Grace Peckham Murray, in the August Delineator, are easily read, and the warnings should be heeded at once. Parents should ever be watchful that the growth of the mind should not be made at the expense of the body, and the body at the expense of the mind. The child's mind is bound to be active about something; that is its normal condition. The mischief comes from overtaxing it with matters which are beyond its comprehension, or gorging it with impressions that at best the child can only partially comprehend.

THE COAST

The Coast, an illustrated monthly magazine published at Seattle and devoted to the interests of the West, will begin the publication of a serial story written by its editor, embracing scenes and life in the West, particularly Seattle, covering the period of the Klondyke excitement and immediately following, entitled, "The Triumph of Michael Sears." The Coast will be sent on trial one year for one dollar—six months for fifty cents. Address Honor L. Wilhelm, editor and manager, P. O. Box 262, Seattle, U. S. A.

Though it is the busy season it will not pay to skip the advertisements in this paper, for they are very interesting and well worth the attention of every progressive man. So take a day off and read each one.

No brooder will care for chicks unless you care for the brooder.

Cleanliness is the key to success in poultry raising, and proper brooding the first step in its complement.

The person who has a hard row to hoe can usually account for it by the fact that he selected a hard way to do the hoeing.

The backbone of the country are the farmers. When you weaken the backbone you cripple the whole body. Therefore, be careful how you treat the farmers.

Large farms are desirable for a man with large executive ability. What business is grander than to be the successful operator of a very large farm.

The Spokane Newspaper Union now prints on the average 75 papers each week, the Northern Pacific Union of Portland, 117 papers and the Seattle Union 60 papers. These three lists contain a majority of the country papers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho and a large number in Montana and British Columbia. Alexander & Co., Spokane, Wash., are the authorized agents for the lists.

Those wishing GOOD job printing should send their orders direct to the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL, Spokane, Wash.

World's Fair Notes.

Korea has officially accepted the President's invitation to exhibit at the World's Fair.

The Illinois Commission has decided to spend $75,000 upon their State building at the World's Fair.

Elmer N. Ball, formerly in the superintending division of United States Supervising Architects office, has been appointed to superintend the construction of the World's Fair million dollar art palace.

The National Hay association decided by a unanimous rising vote to meet at the World's Fair in 1904.

Philadelphia will have a municipal building at the World's Fair, if present plans carry, and an exact reproduction of Independence Hall, with the Liberty Bell. The room in which the Declaration of Independence was read and signed is the room in which the Articles of Federation and later the Constitution of the United States was adopted. Independence Hall also contains the room in which the first three chief justices of the United States held court.

At the next session of the State Teachers' Association of New York a competitive exhibit of all educational activities of the state will be held, for the purpose of securing a complete, representative, scientific exhibit on which the state's exhibit at the World's Fair at St. Louis may be based.

Begin to Cull.

Naturally when one has paid a good price for stock he would like to sell his surplus cockerels for more than market price, and with this expectation is apt to keep more as prospective breeders than he finds a ready market for. No man can tell with certainty what a bird will be until maturity, but don't see a prize winner in every cockerel from your best pen and save your lot. With an eye especially to vigor, select the best of the males and send the rest to market while you can get from 15 to 20 cents per pound. In November you will get but 6 cents. You cannot advertise and sell a male at $1 profit. Very few farmers have a home market for cockerels at more than $1. Deducting the expense of advertising and postage, and there is more profit in selling fries at 35 to 40 cents.

There are culls from the choicest pens ever mated, and from the average pen a good many more. Cull as closely as you dare while prices are high and make room for the growing stock.—Exchange.

Our Big Offer.

Pay up what you owe and one year in advance on the WESTERN HOME JOURNAL and we will send you the Western Poultry News of Lincoln, Neb., a whole year free. It's a big 32-page illustrated poultry magazine and will help you make more money out of your chickens. Remember it costs YOU nothing.

Feeding the Fowls.

A mixture of about three parts wheat bran, one part ground oats, one part corn meal, one part beef scrap, and to this mixture add one-fifth in bulk of cut clover, seasoned with a little salt, makes a good ration for the average laying hen. Too much grain, whether wheat, corn or a mixture of these with others, will fatten the laying chickens too much. In winter the above ration may be fed warm, in summer cold. This ration is also a good one for growing chickens. Feed at noon or evening.

At Pollard's Poultry Farm they believe in hard feeding, and never let the fowls go hungry when they want lots of eggs. Market birds, or those making market eggs, should be forced all the time, and when they no longer lay, turned off and others put in their places. Animal matter and lots of it is the key to successful egg production. Of course the stock must be natural egg producers to get the best profits. All kinds of grain may be fed; cracked corn, wheat, peas and oats are the best. Corn is a good egg food; and, if the soft food is made up largely of wheat, bran, cracked peas and oats, little other hard food need be used.

Ground oyster shell and clean grit of some kind should be within reach at all times. Good gravel will answer as well as more expensive material. Clean, pure water is necessary, and it should be fairly warm in winter and cold in summer. Any kind of vessel may be used to hold it, and should always be kept sweet and clean.

Don't fuss too much over the feeding; simply give the right kind of birds plenty of it, and they will do the rest.

Critters First.

"Hear the chorus in that tie-up! Runch, ger-runch and runch and runch!
There's a row of honest critters; does me good to hear 'em munch.
Down to our house we wear patches—honest patches, though, and neat,
But we'd rather have the patches than to skinch on what we eat.
Lots of work and grub to back ye—that's a mighty wholesome creed;
Critters first, s'r, that's my motto—give the critters all they need.
And to hear 'em give ye greetin' with their jolly little blat
When yo open up o' mornin's, ah, there's comfort, friend, in that.
As ye've prob'ly sometimes noticed, when his cattle hate a man
Ye'll notice that his neighbors size him up on that same plan.
But for me there's nothin' better than this here: to understand
That a dozen honest critters owe their comfort to my hand."
—Holman F. Day in Everybody's Magazine.

Editorial Remarks from Hillyard News.

If men who receive less than $2 a day would quit patronizing the saloons four fifths of the saloons would quit business.

In Spokane $1000 a day is spent for beer and $900 for meats. Beer seems to rule Spokane—and the county commissioners.

Zach. Stewart, formerly county school superintendent and one of the best as well as the best liked men in Spokane county, is a candidate for auditor on the Republican ticket.

The county commissioners are the legislative body of the county. When they refuse to recognize the right of the people to petition they are usurping the rights of the people. The present county commissioners with the exception of Butler recognize only the saloon element. The county commissioners have two saloons in Hillyard, placed there against the will of the people. It is true only two deaths can be traced directly to these saloons since they were established, one for Bracht and one for Dean if they want to put it that way. Both of these men are candidates for positions on the Republican county ticket. Do the people want them?

Preferred to Haul Her.

Speaking of up hill work, one of the most delightful women in town is a lady who gave up having a waist years and years ago. She is of the tub order of architecture, and that she doesn't mourn about it you may know from the fact that she told me this herself. She has been in the Catskills for a few weeks, staying at one of those mountain top houses that it takes you four hours to drive up to and half an hour to come down from. She was met at the nearest railway station, she and half a dozen others, by a stage that set off up the mountain road. It was hot, and the stout lady has a kind heart. She pitied the horses, and as the road grew steeper she volunteered to get out and walk. The driver helped her down, and she trudged along as far as she could. Then she was helped into the stage again, and at the next steep grade she insisted on being helped out. She had returned to the carriage another time when they came to a still steeper stretch of roadway. The stout lady was just too tired to walk another step.

"Well," she said, "I'm not going to get out again. I'm too tired."

The driver turned to her with a look of gratitude.

"That's all right," he said. "Set still. I'd a lot rather haul you than heft you in and out so often."

And he "hauled" her to the very steps of the hotel.—Washington Post.

Clubwomen and the "Saving Sense."

In a brochure issued in the name of the educational department the Georgia clubwomen have earnestly urged schoolteachers not only to cultivate that "saving sense of humor" in themselves, but to train the boys and girls under their instruction to an appreciation of the funny side of life. Sure enough, this would be an exemplification of the old saying, "Entertain first; instruct afterward." This is splendid, what is more, for people nowadays—that is, people who take hold of life at the right end—believe that happiness is as contagious as mumps and measles. And clubwomen who would have school children learn to laugh, and thus make the world laugh with them, have hit upon an idea that will be worth thousands of theorems in the great school of experience.—Bertha Damaris Knobe in Woman's Home Companion.

In Luck.

"Mamma, do animals know what they are called?"

"No."

Jack uttered a sigh of relief and remarked, "It would have been so unpleasant for the donkey, wouldn't it?" —Jewish Comment.

"LAUGH AND GROW FAT."

Life is such a serious business to the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous short story on the editorial page as well as "Out of the Ginger Jar," noted for its snappy qualities, and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorists in the country. In addition to all these the Sunday issue always includes a comic section guaranteed to produce laughter from the most lugubrious of mortals. Then the inimitable "Bob" Burdette, one of the most noted of American humorists, is a regular contributor to THE SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD, and every issue contains, in addition, other special articles of a delightfully humorous character.

SPOKANE AMATEUR ATHLETIC CLUB

Carnival and Street Fair at Spokane from August 4 to 14.

The Spokane Amateur Athletic Club has arranged a carnival and street fair to be held August 4 to 14 inclusive, Sunday excepted. This promises to be one of the most unique and interesting amusement ventures ever undertaken in this city. The Jabour Oriental Carnival Circus and Menagerie company has been secured, which presents the greatest aggregation of Midway shows that has ever traveled in America. The proceeds of the fair are to go to the benefit of fund for the Club's new building which already reaches the substantial figure of twenty thousand dollars. It is hoped that enough will be realized from the fair to warrant the club in beginning operations at an early date.

The Jabour Midway will include some ten shows given under tents. There is a German village in which a continuous vaudeville performance will be given, some thirty artists appearing. These include the Sigumento troup of Japanese head and feet balancers and acrobats; Halder, the Juggler; Mlle. Zora, the wire walker; the Carlons in an acrobatic sketch; Prof. Donar, a card and coin manipulator; the Middleton marionettes; the Pfeil trio of Tyrolean warblers and several other features.

There will be streets of Cairo, with camels and donkeys and a troup of Marmaluke Arabian acrobats, whirling dervishes and gun spinners. They are headed by Hadji, el Cheriff and are said to be the best performers of their kind now traveling. In an oriental theater will be found La Fatima, a troup of dancing girls. There is a congress of nations with Japanese jugglers, Hindoo fakirs, singaloose silver dancers, Russian fire eaters, Algerians, Turks, etc.; a Moorish palace with some wonderful feats of head balancing by French acrobats, feats of strength, a child contortion act, etc.; a Mexican village with seven lady singers and dancers, who also put on an imitation bull fight said to be very funny.

In another tent is shown the mystery of the flying lady. There is an exhibition in black art by Sam Singer, a renowned Russian magician, a projectiscope, etc. There is a menagerie of fifty animals, Katool's trained leopards, two sensational lion acts; a performing elephant and a hoochie-koochie bear are among its features.

In addition to these shows are a number of sensational open air acts. These include the famous Austin sisters, aerialists, who perform on the flying and revolving trapeze, Mlle. Aimee also walks head downward as a fly would on the ceiling. Charles A. Bigney, who holds the record for high diving in this country, dives eighty-five feet into a tank of water only six feet deep. The seven Grunatho sisters, famous German acrobats and postures, appear upon the platform in some marvelous feats.

HINDOO FAKIRS AND THE WONDERFUL BASKET TRICK SHOWN IN THE MIDWAY

A boy is placed in a basket which is wound with ropes. A knife is afterwards thrust through the basket, and his moans are plainly heard. When the basket is opened, however, he has disappeared, and is found sitting among the audience.

How Cape Nome Was Named.

For several years Prof. George Davidson puzzled over the origin of the name Cape Nome, the point of land in Alaska now famous for its gold fields, searching all charts and records. At length he received the following information from the chief hydrographer of the British Admiralty:

When the manuscript chart of this region was being constructed on board the frigate Herald, sent out in company with the brig Plover (1845-51) to the rescue of Sir John Franklin, attention was drawn to the fact that this point had no name and the mark (Name?) was placed against it. In the hurry of dispatching this chart from the ship this "?" appears to have been inked in by a rough draughtsman and appeared as "Cape Name," but the stroke of "a" being very indistinct, it was interpreted by our draughtsman here as "Nome" and has appeared with this name ever since. This information is from an officer who was on board the Herald when the chart was being constructed.

Some Sources of Slang.

Who would suspect that shabby, common slang phrases have such fine ancestors as a learned German philologist has been finding for some of them? The genealogies of a few are given in the Pathfinder.

The famous phrase, "He's a brick," originated from the reply of the king of Sparta who, when asked where were the walls of his city, replied that Sparta had 50,000 soldiers, "and every man is a brick."

Numerous versions of the origin of "dead head," meaning one who gets something free, have been given, claiming it as a modern phrase, but history shows that the term was used in precisely its present sense at least as early as the palmy days of Pompeii, when those who had free seats at the theater were provided with ivory checks made in the shape of a skull or "dead head." No doubt the expression was ancient even then.

A certain shoemaker, back in the days of "Good Queen Bess" committed suicide. He stood on a bucket, tied a rope around his neck from a beam, and then "kicked the bucket." Hence the obscure periphrase for dying.

It was the custom of the Huns to put a feather in their caps for every Turk they killed, whence the origin of "feather in his cap" is easily understood.

Some people would not object to having $1.50 given to them. Here it is. Take it. Just send us $1.50 and we will give you the Woman's Home Companion one year, the Cosmopolitan one year, and the Western Home Journal two years. Four years of the best reading for $1.50. Ripans Tabules Doctors find A good prescription For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spell which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,
Will benefit the wisest men.
And if dyspepsia is their woe,

Seventh Year. SPOKANE, WASHINGTON, JULY 1902. No. 2.

VIEW OF SPOKANE, LOOKING NORTH.

ILLUSTRATED, STANDARD AMERICAN POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting ot the American Poultry Association Committee on Illustrated Standard, held in Chicago June 16, 1902, it was agreed that Specialty Clubs, through their officers, the Poultry Press, Poultry Artists and all interested parties, breeders, fanciers, etc., should be invited to assist and co-operate in the work.

The committee desires Illustrations, giving form and color, pen and ink sketches, club ideals, photographs, half tones, word descriptions of any and all standard breeds of fowls and pertinent suggestions from every possible source.

While the committee proposes to communicate by letter with all club officials, artists, editors and others interested, it will undoubtedly fail to reach some who should assist and take part in the work. To all such it wishes this notice to be an invitation. It was also agreed that in addition to the Illustrated Standard Committee, a committee of seven, to be known as a reviewing committee, should be appointed to work in conjunction with the Illustrated Standard Committee and to be appointed by them; this committee to be made up of representative breeders and fanciers of the United States and Canada, whose duty it shall be to carefully criticise and review the work of the Illustrated Standard Committee.

All communications may be addressed to Fred L. Kimmey, chairman, 1213-1214 Manhattan building, Chicago, Ill., or to any member of the committee.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

The leading material used for wedding dresses is undoubtedly chiffon, but competing fabrics are crepe de chine, with or without satin face and as a novelty introduced especially for bridal gowns, may be mentioned crepe de Mignon, a light weight quality of the conventional fabric. There is, however, such unapproachable dignity and richness in satin, that it is in considerable favor among brides who can stand the ordeal of princess lines, since this is the usual manner in which it is made up. Delightful softness, too, can be imparted by garnitures of chiffon or lace, or both, to say nothing of the enveloping veil of tulle which, through all changes of fortune, retains popularity, yielding only to the claims of an heirloom in lace or a desire for expense on the part of some wealthy aspirant. For attaching the veil, orange buds and blossoms come first; then appear lilies of the valley and a small minority use white roses in delicate size. As an innovation, may be mentioned some wedding dresses cut low in front and this is in harmony with a present effort to do away with the very high cut necks that have been so universal. Sashes, too, are fashionable for bridal gowns and are in soft Liberty satin or chiffon, the latter at times trimmed with lace. The rage for elbow sleeves has extended into the charmed sphere of a bride's outfit, but in place of long lace mitts, kid gloves meet the corsage material.

For traveling, a long cloak in taffeta silk and more or less elaborately finished, is almost an essential, quite overshadowing in importance the going away dress. As for traveling conveniences, they do credit to an age noted for inventions. Not to mention fitted satchels, tea baskets and the like, trunks come in successive drawers that easily rival the bureau at home and from which maid or mistress can draw forth articles uninjured by jolts or reckless baggage smashers. A pretty idea, too, is to perfume in a delicate way each drawer of the trunk after packing, so that on opening it the articles of my lady's wardrobe will be charged with sweetness, instead of the usual stuffiness caused by packing. The same thought may be carried out with trunks of all kinds and satchels as well. It may be added that no perfume is so well adapted to this purpose as Murray & Lanman's Florida water, which is always carried by experienced travelers who know that after the fatigue of a journey or exposure in the sun, its refreshing qualities are beyond comparison.

Learn to Say No.

It is by far the hardest task we come across to say no. The ability to forego a popular pleasure, the ability to refrain from going with the crowd, the ability to back up and keep from drinking is a sure mark of sterling character. Many a business has been ruined because the proprietor didn't firmly say no when asked to endorse a note.

It requires courage to say no sometimes, but courage is what is required in these days of strife and high pressure methods.

If you say no when an opportunity is offered to take a flyer or speculation, you may lose an opportunity once in a while. If you say yes you may lose a fortune.

It's better to lose an opportunity to possess something you have not than to lose something which you have.

The inability to say no has wrecked ninety-nine men wherefor every opportunity lost by saying no.

Don't be argued into things against your better judgment. Don't be forced to take a lot of extra drinks just because you're afraid to say no. Learn to say no and show people that no means no, and you will find that instead of going with the crowd the crowd will come to you.

TO MAKE HENS LAY.

Feed a variety.

Give breakfast at six.

Exercise is an egg tonic.

Hens won't lay if too fat.

Milk is a complete egg food.

The starved hen is worthless.

Feed the mash warm—not hot.

Underfed hens are poor layers.

The morning mash is imperative.

Let breakfast be only half a meal.

Overcrowded flocks give few eggs.

Cold quarters check egg production.

Feed night meal an hour before dusk.

Green bone, clover, hay and grit are essentials.

Heat the whole grain before feeding in cold weather.

Take the chill off the drinking water in cold weather.

The laying hen consumes more feed than one not laying.

The early pullets are the profitable winter egg producers.

The American and Asiatic breeds are the best winter layers.

A box of crushed oyster shell should always be within reach.

Keep cabbages hanging in the house within reach of the fowls.

The scratching shed is the workshop for the busy hen in winter.

Scatter the grain at noon among litter, so the fowls must exercise.

After the second year the hen's value as a winter egg producer lessens.

Filthy quarters produce sickness, and sick hens will not produce eggs.

Steeped clover, mixed with the morning mash, is a great egg producer.

Cull out the poor layers, and give the prolific hens more room to work.

Hens and pullets will lay as well without the attention of the male bird as with it.

Equal parts, by weight, of a mixture of ground oats and corn meal, with their weight of bran added, and the whole moistened with skim milk, is recommended by Wycoff, the New York egg farmer.

The Serpent in the Glass.

Many of the famous advocates of temperance are dying off, but there is one trumpet-tongued orator who continues to sound his tocsin in every house that contains a Bible. It is the divinely-inspired preacher who utters this tremendous warning: "Look not on the wine when it giveth its color in the cup, when it goeth down smoothly, for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder!" Young man, listen to that loud and loving voice before you touch that glass of champagne; good woman, stop and think what you are about before you mix that big bowl of punch for your party; father, be careful how you put that sly serpent on your table, for some of your boys may get stung to death!

To break the terrible habit, and to shake off the serpent requires such effort that few are permanently reformed. Some surrender to the inevitable and go over the cataract with eyes open to their doom. A young man said to a friend of mine, "This awful drink has used up my money, ruined my health and almost killed my parents. It will soon kill me and send me to hell! I know it, and yet the habit is so strong that I cannot stop." And he did not stop; yet when he began to sip his wine he never dreamed that he would die a wretched sot. Of all the deceivers that betray body and soul to damnation, none is so alluring and ensnaring as the glass.

It is strange that parents—many Christian parents—will allow it to come into their homes, and will provide it for guests. It is strange that, in spite of all the miseries suffered by drunkards' wives, so many young women are willing to marry young men who are in the habit of taking a social glass; they are playing with a viper; if their hearts are stung with agony it is their own fault. If the above mentioned things are strange, it is stranger still that churches, Sunday schools and pulpits do not ring out oftener and more vehemently this heaven-sent tocsin: "Look not on the wine! look not on the wine! it stingeth like a serpent and biteth like an adder!"—The Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler.

Ailments and Remedies.

Kill off the runts.

The busy hen is the healthiest.

Drafts, dampness and laziness cause sickness.

Never show the entrails of animals to fowls unless well cooked.

Beware of red pepper. If fed to access it is apt to produce liver trouble.

LITERARY NOTES.

COSMOPOLITAN

Not to be familiar with those leading figures in the world of finance and production who are denominated "Captains of Industry" is not to be able to read the daily news understandingly. The Cosmopolitan has undertaken to have prepared, by the men most competent to write them, sketches of some sixty of these foremost men in the industrial world. No more entertaining reading has ever appeared in that magazine. The undertaking is exciting wide interest in every part of the country.

FOR THOSE WHO BELIEVE IN SIGNS

Sir Edwin Arnold contributes an entertaining article to the July Delineator on the ceremonies attending the crowning of King Edward, in the course of which he recalls a singular incident that occurred at the crowning of King George III. A large diamond fell from the crown of the king as he passed up the choir to his throne in the chancel, and those who believed in such things as portents and previsions looked for some event presaged by the accident. They found it afterwards, to their own content, in that separation of the American colonies from the mother country which was the beginning of the great United States of today.

EVERYBODY'S

To describe adequately "The World's Great Disasters" is the task set C. Bryson Taylor, in the July Everybody's. He has written in superb style the stories of the destruction of Pompeii, the earthquake at Lisbon, the passing of Port Royal and the cataclysm at Yeddo, picturing the life of these cities at the moment of destruction. Photographs of the ruins of St. Pierre accompany the article. The interest of "A Lost Art Revived" is pictorial—here are reproduced the Leoni illuminations of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. The parchments are set off with fine miniatures of the great men of Revolutionary days and scenes in the history of America. Donald Murray, inventor of the Postal Telegraph's system of Writing Telegraphy, writes "The Strange Story of the Printing Telegraph." "The Delights of Salmon Fishing" are described by Chas. Hallock, and finely depicted by Dugmore and other photographers.

We will send the value of One Dollar and Ten cents, ($1.10,) in booklet, containing twenty-seven pen and ink photo-reduced sketches of Washington life by mail (cash or stamps.) Queen Victoria Knighted Sir John Tenniel for similar artistic work in London. (Your editor has sample of this.) NUTSHELL PUBLISHING COMPANY,

Water Supply and Irrigation Papers.

The Water-Supply and Irrigation Papers issued by the Division of Hydrography of the United States Geological Survey are detailed reports on particular phases of the development and use or water in different parts of the country. The purpose of these publications is two fold: to provide a more extended treatment of the subjects than the limited space of the Annual Reports will permit, and to make available for use as soon as possible information which is of general interest.

The subject matter of these papers consists of reports, usually with reference to a particular locality or section, on the methods and use of water in irrigation; the conservation of water in storage reservoirs; investigation for artesian and other underground waters; together with the results of the studies of the rock formations on which the presence of these waters depends. Windmills, as a factor in the distribution of a portion of the country's water supply, especially upon the Great Plains, are discussed; also the different methods of sewage disposition used in the United States and elsewhere to prevent river pollution. In this series are published the results of the measurements of flow which are being conducted on many streams in different sections, and one of the number is devoted to a record of the profiles or slopes of the most important of the country's river. The pamphlets are fully illustrated with maps, diagrams, and half-tones made from photographs, and may be had on application to the Director of the Survey.

An Important Deep Well in Wyoming.

Recent advices from Wyoming report the completion of the deep well at Cambria, in that state, which has been in progress for several years for the local water supply at that place. This well was started as an experiment at the suggestions of the United States Geological Survey, as water-bearing strata were not definitely known to exist in the reion. Early in 1900 a depth of 1,810 feet was reached without finding water, but recently an excellent supply, with a pumping capacity of 200 gallons per minute, has been developed at 2,115 feet, a distance of almost one-half mile from the surface.

Cambria is a coal-mining community on the western slopes of the Black Hills. The coal measures in which it is located are estimated to cover an area of 10 square miles and to have a productive capacity of 30,000,000 tons. The experiment is, therefore, extremely important, as it not only throws needed light on the underground water conditions in all the older formations on the western side of the Black Hills, but also indicates that water supplies may be obtained in wells over a wide area of surrounding country. The prospects and depths of these waters will be shown on maps soon to be published by the United States Geological Survey.

N. H. Darton of the Geological Survey has spent several seasons in an investigation of the water resources of the Great Plains region and has found that the sandstone strata underlying the plains are upturned on the flanks of the Black Hills and there receive most of the water from surface streams, which finds its way through their porous material and appears in the artesian and other wells in Wyoming and the Dakotas.

The L. A. Rhoades & Company of Milwaukee have just issued a new publication, "A Conquering Corps Badge" and other stories of the Philippines, by General Charles King, which will prove very interesting to all and especially so to those who served under Gen. King in the Philippines. Every member of Gen. King's brigade should read this book.

Since the time New Year was started, it has been the habit and custom for people to make resolutions of various kinds for their guide and conduct for the coming year. We append three resolves, which we suggest that the reader cut out and keep in a conspicuous place, and we can assure him from personal experience that the following out of the rules will bring untold happiness, and even the endeavor to follow any one of them will bring a corresponding degree of happiness. No man can be perfect, but if he is sincere in trying to do better, every effort in that direction will improve him just so much.

The Proper Mating of Buff Leghorns.

BY GEO. F. CURTIS, FENTON, MICH.

Many articles have been written, and many theories advanced regarding the proper mating of Buff Leghorns, but experience is the teacher we must all fall back on in the long run, however, as a slight suggestion often puts one on the road to success and saves much time and many disappointments, I will endeavor to give a brief outline of my system of mating which has produced for me a fine percentage of exhibition and breeding birds, with an occasional cracker.

Could we place our hands on such birds as we picture in our mind's eye, the producers of winners would be an easy matter. But as this is impossible we must take the best we have on hand or can procure. The question that at once arises is, which is the best?

We have, perhaps, half a dozen males to select from, varying in color from lemon buff to cinnamon red. On looking over our females we find a much more uniform lot at first sight, but on closer inspection we find the same variations in a modified degree.

Our first step is the selection of our male birds. Were we to mate up two pens we would select as strong colored birds as possible to head these pens. I do not mean by this red or cinnamon, but of as uniform shade throughout as possible.

For convenience we will designate these pens as No. 1 and No. 2.

For No. 1 we would select a male as near as might be to the standard description, viz., golden buff throughout. He must be vigorous, of good Leghorn type, strong in undercolor, good in combs and lobes. Should a little foreign color appear in wings or tail do not discard the bird. We have seen many prize winners bred from males with a little white, black or gray in wings or tail. However this should be avoided if possible. With such a bird I would put females of a deeper shade of buff than is known as exhibition color. Should the male be weak in any section see that the females are extra strong in that section, (this applies to shape as well as color.)

From this mating we should expect an especially fine lot of females with a fine percentage of good males.

For No. 2 pen we should select a male of a darker shade than the first, as free from red as possible, but of a deep rich buff, both surface and undercolor, with a little chestnut or black tail, and a clear, strong wing. See that the quill as well as web of feathers are buff. He should be large, of good courage, with a moderately low tail. Comb should be rather small, of a fine texture, and perfectly upright, free from twists and thumb marks.

We would mate with him females of exhibition buff shade throughout, clear in wing and tail, and of as good undercolor as possible. For this pen we would select females with as upright a comb as could be found. From such a mating we should expect some grand male birds, fit to show in any company. We would also look for good females, especially good breeders.

One thing, however, must be remembered before you can hope to gain any great success. You must establish your own line of breeding. This may require several years, especially if your present stock is from the yards of several different breeders. The best way is to select some good breeder who has a well established strain and secure your new blood from him. Be thorough and earnest, determined that each succeeding year shall show a marked improvement in your flock, and success will surely crown your efforts.

Brother fancier, if you would win for yourselves a place in the front ranks of your fellow breeders, let me urge you to join the Buff Leghorn Club. It will mark one step on the road to success.

Send your name and dollar today to me or to the secretary.

THE DRUNKARD.

Enjoys Advantages Which Are Denied to Other Delinquents.

There is absolutely no comprehensive legislation against drunkards themselves. No other delinquents enjoy to the same extent the advantage of being "let off." It is easy to give example after example of injuries they can cause to other people by willful drunkenness without being themselves much interfered with by law. What Alsatia was to Captain Peppercul the condition of drunkenness is to the drunkard.

The conventional temperance advocate rather deprecates the idea of punishing drunkards more carefully than at present, although eager enough to punish publicans in any manner which can be thought of, from confiscation of property to increased penalties and forfeitures.

Under his teaching the public, which is merciless toward a thief tempted by the necessities of hunger, cannot be induced to be stern toward a drunkard tempted by the luxury of drink. Accordingly, suggestions for penal legislation against common drunkards instead of receiving any of that careful consideration necessary in order to appreciate their weight are encountered by irrelevant commonplaces which none deny about the advantages of improved homes and other moral influences.—Fortnightly Review.

Flowering the Freesia.

To have freesias in flower as soon as possible, The Florists' Exchange recommends to plant the bulbs in flats as soon as received. Give a good watering and place them under the bench in a cool greenhouse, cover with a cloth or several layers of newspaper and keep covered until they start into growth; then place the flats in a good light, as near the glass as possible, and keep the house moderately cool.

A Significant Utterance.

Coming as it does from Mrs. Ellen Henrotin, for four years the chief of American clubwomen, this recent utterance is significant, "The older I grow and the more I see of the world, the more firmly I am convinced that it is inherent in the divine order of society that the highest intellect among women, the best she has to offer, should be given to the home."—Bertha Damaris Knobe in Woman's Home Companion.

Separable Muff Lining.

An English woman has patented a separable muff lining, which can be fitted to a muff of any size, being formed of a soft fabric shaped into a tube, with flanges at either end, the central portion being provided with longitudinal tension cords to take up the lining until it is the right length.

FERTILIZING WHEAT.

Complete Fertilizer Versus Acid Phosphate and Clover.

The marked effect on the growth of the wheat plant which is usually observed after the application of fertilizers carrying soluble phosphoric acid, such as acid phosphate or dissolved boneblack, together with the low price at which plain acid phosphates can be bought, as compared with fertilizers containing nitrogen and potash, have led many farmers to the use of this material alone, believing that they can supply sufficient nitrogen by growing clover and that potash is not needed. On these points the field tests of the Ohio experiment station are beginning to offer useful suggestions.

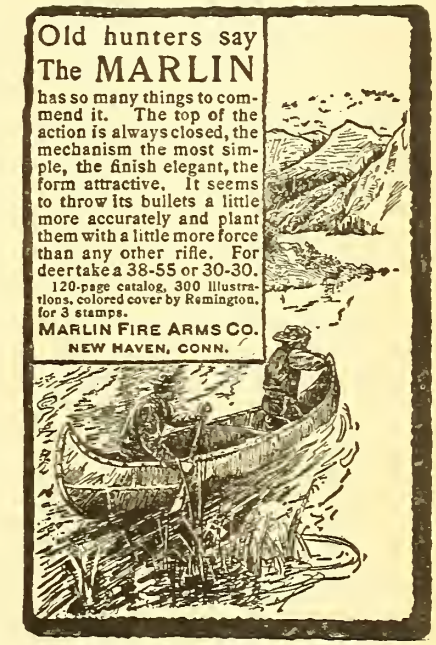
Since 1893 the station has conducted two series of experiments on the light, somewhat sandy clay soil of its central farm at Wooster. In these experiments fertilizers of various composition have been used on crops grown in rotation, the rotation consisting in the one series of corn, oats and wheat one year each, followed by clover and timothy two years, and in the other of potatoes, wheat and clover one year each. Since 1896 both these tests have been duplicated on the heavy, white clay of the northeastern substation in Cuyahoga county. In every case the substitution of tankage for part of the acid phosphate has produced a large gain in the increase of the wheat crop, the average being a gain per acre of 3.78 bushels for the complete fertilizer over the acid phosphate alone.

At $15 per ton for acid phosphate, $19 for tankage and 2½ cents per pound for muriate of potash, these being the prices actually paid for the fertilizers used in these experiments, including freight, we have reaped in the average 3.78 bushels increase of crop for 65 cents additional cost. This, however, is only part of the gain, as the corn and oats crops, preceding the wheat, are showing a large gain in favor of the complete fertilizer, as do also the hay crops following.

It appears, therefore, that the clover is not furnishing sufficient nitrogen to meet the demands of a full crop and that it is more economical to use a fertilizer containing a small percentage of nitrogen (ammonia), even though the cost be somewhat increased, than to use one which carries only phosphoric acid.

The Beer Guzzlers.

Out of every 100 gallons of beer drank throughout the world Germany supplies 28, the United Kingdom 27, the United States 18 and Russia, with all its millions of people, only 2¼.—Union Signal.



One Woman's Work.

For many years there have been matrons and schoolteachers in the Indian service, while of late women physicians have begun to be employed at the different agencies.

A Miss Mary H. McKee is the agency doctor for the Moquis of Arizona. Smallpox has been raging among them, and in the absence of vaccination and with the worst of sanitary conditions in their old houses, built of mud and small stones, filthy and ill ventilated, the Indians have been of late rapidly and unhappily decimated.

Miss McKee, with the assistance of a farmer, undertook to vaccinate the entire tribe. The Indians do not much mind the incision and slight letting of blood, but by their superstitions they believe sicknesses are sent by evil spirits and they look to their so called "medicine men"—that is, the priests—to drive away these evil spirits. They particularly resisted the idea of having their dirty old traps burned and their huts fumigated. It took a heroic and determined spirit on the part of Miss McKee to carry out sanitary rules and to bring these Indians to a condition to save the tribe from destruction by the pestilence.

This she accomplished, and has saved the tribe, while other tribes in New Mexico and Arizona are filled with this dread disease.

Dr. McKee was first appointed physician for the Moquis in 1891. She is now only about 35 years of age.

Neat Shoes.

"Bicycles and short skirts have certainly brought about one revolution," said a man who likes to walk the streets and look at what is going on. "It has forced the women and girls who ride to be neat about their shoes.

"Women with long skirts are inclined to be untidy about their footgear. What is worse than to see a woman holding up her dress to display a pair of button shoes with the holes loose and untidy and all run down at the heel? Everybody who notices such things will bear me out that before the era of bicycle skirts three women in five were careless about this part of their make up, no matter how faultlessly attired in other respects. The short skirt has made them careful."

She Dusts and Arranges.

A young Frenchwoman whose home was the joy and envy of her friends was asked one day by one of them if she would out of pity arrange the petitioner's house, for in spite of many pretty and costly things it had "that stiff look." The success she made in the rearranging of her friend's house was so great that the question was suggested, "Why not make some pin money by putting houses in order?" So she advertised to do dusting and artistic arranging by the hour. Her first customers were so well pleased that they recommended her to their friends, and now she has more than she can attend to.

Pleasing the Baby.

A few days ago two women, one of whom carried a baby, entered a carpet shop and signified their desire to look at some carpets. The shopman cheerfully showed roll after roll, until the perspiration started from every pore of his body. Finally one of the ladies asked the other if she did not think it was time to go.

"Not quite," was the answer of her companion, and then, in an undertone, she added, "Baby likes to see him roll them out, and it is not time to catch the train yet."—Philadelphia Press.

Brilliant Record of a Newspaper Man.

The success which has attended William E. Curtis, the famous correspondent of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD, is rarely attained by newspaper writers. Beginning his career in Chicago in 1872 as reporter he rapidly rose to the position of managing editor. He resigned that position on receiving a government appointment as secretary of the South American commission. Mr. Curtis traveled extensively in Central and South America while in this position, producing several popular volumes as the result of his literary labors. Afterward co-operating with Secretary of State James G. Blaine, Mr. Curtis organized the work of the bureau of American republics, with the result that he was placed in charge of that organization, and at the World's Columbian Exposition he distinguished himself by his labors as the executive head of the Latin-American department. As correspondent of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD Mr. Curtis' travels have carried him into every section of the United States as well as into all quarters of the globe. His China and Japan letters were published in book form; likewise his letters from England, Germany and France, as well as those written during his travels in Mexico and South America.

No newspaper correspondent possesses the facility shown by Mr. Curtis in writing on any of the diversified subjects embraced in his correspondence and making it luminous. Nor is any correspondent followed so closely year after year by the thousands of readers of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. On his recent trip to the Holy Land Mr. Curtis' letters have been read more closely than ever, and his descriptions of that interesting section of the globe as it appears today have been quoted everywhere.

A daily letter from Mr. Curtis appears in THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD.

Did the Pirates Steal?

In a letter received from Sambel, Florida, at the St. Louis World's Fair headquarters; the author expresses a desire to open up a correspondence with the Exposition Company concerning the $15,000,000 paid by the United States for the Louisiana concessions in 1803. "Was not some of this money lost – stolen by pirates?" he asks, and then he continues, "For many years people have been searching for $11,500,000 of gold bullion buried here in the vicinity of Charlotte harbor by old Gasparilla and Lafitte, noted pirates. The survivors of this huge steal say it was the Louisiana Purchase money. Lafitte only acted as a spy; Gasparilla did the stealing. I have searched for it seven years and find considerable evidence concerning it, though it is very difficult to exactly locate.

Don't Always Blame the Editor.

If your daily paper says a good deal that you do not like, or believe, don't always blame the editor, but inquire who owns a majority of the stock. If it is a beef trust, or a leading politician, or a firm of adulterators of food, or an army or navy contractor, or a man who owns mutilated horses, don't blame the editor for what he may feel obliged to write on those subjects. An editor may think the owner of his paper is a rascal or a fool, but he cannot say so.—Geo. T. Angell in "Our Dumb Animals."

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation, and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spell which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I haven't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,

ST. JOE RIVER, COEUR D' ALENE.

Why I Breed Buff Leghorns.

BY MRS. C. W. HARRINGTON, HARFORD MILLS, N. Y.

I am often asked the question why I breed Buff Leghorns. We all like beautiful birds and when combined with utility as we find in Buff Leghorns, I think we have something to admire. I have bred them for ten years, and in that time have found in them many good qualities.

They are very hardy, being easily raised and mature easily, pullets often laying when four months old, while I would rather they would not as it is apt to dwarf their size, and that is something no breeder can afford to do.

Leghorn chicks to attain their best developments should be well fed, kept free from lice and allowed free range, then when you yard them for laying you have a good sized, thrifty, healthy, vigorous bird, willing and able to help fill your egg basket. I hear some one say: "Oh, they are so easily frightened and fly so high I do not like them." I admit they are nervous, but with gentle treatment when they are little chicks they become very tame, and unless something unusual frightens them they are confined with an ordinary park fence. You will find specimens of the heavier breeds that are hard to confine. Dispositions vary in birds the same as in individuals. As producers of large white eggs in winter as well as in summer they keep pace with the heavier breeds, and with smaller quarters, and as a table fowl, any one that has eaten a well fed Buff Leghorn can tell you that for fine flavor and juicy meat they have few equals, as they have a great quantity of breast meat for birds of their size. For broilers I find they make a plump bird at 1 1-2 or 2 pounds.

The Buff Leghorn Club is soon to issue a fine catalogue telling all about the grand breed of fowls. You should be a member of this Club. It only costs $1, and the benefits are double.

Making a Man.

Hurry the baby as fast as you can,
Hurry him, worry him, make him a man,
Off with his baby clothes, get him into pants,
Feed him on brain foods and make him advance.
Hustle him, soon as he's able to walk,
Into the grammar school; cram him with talk,
Fill his poor head full of figures and facts,
Keep on ja-amming them in till it cracks,
Once a boy grew up at a rational rate,
Now we develop a man while you wait.
Rush him through college, compel him to grab
Of every known subject a dip and a dab.
Get him into business and after the cash,
All by the time he can raise a mustache.
Let him forget that he was ever a boy.
Make gold his god, and its jingle his joy.
Keep him a hustling and clear out of breath,
Until he wins—nervous prostration and death.

A Fight Against Temperance.

The Sunday school world has been stirred by a statement that at the coming International Sunday School convention, to be held at Denver June, 25 to July 1, 1902, an effort would be made to eliminate the Quarterly Temperance Lesson from the International Sunday School Lesson Series. We cannot think that such a proposition will be considered for a moment by this distinguished and representative body of Christian workers. While Sunday school leaders may differ as to the best methods of presenting the subject of Temperance in the Sunday School, and some may object to the present plan of inserting a regular quarterly lesson in the series, all will certainly agree, in the presence of the serious liquor problem, that temperance teaching and practical temperance work in the Sunday School, is the duty the church owes to the rising generation.

No better plan, or one that will lead to more positive results, has yet been presented than that of having a Quarterly Temperance Lesson carefully selected by the International Lesson Committee, inserted in the Lesson Series and designated as the Temperance Lesson in their official schedule of lessons. The arguments against such a plan are insignificant, indeed, as compared with its possibilities.

It Pays to Keep Posted.

An agent sold fifty patent flat irons in an Idaho town at $2.00 each and the purchasers afterward found that their home hardware man had the same irons for eighty-five cents. But how should they know it when he didn't advertise the irons? A thrifty housekeeper of the same place, with an eye to saving her money (and she always had enough for her needs), says she has not been swindled in years by a traveling dealer or agent. She is a regular patron of the home newspaper, always reads the advertisements, and says it pays to keep thus posted on both the new lines and bargains offered.

Looking for Business.

A traveling salesman had occasion to stop over night at a Yakima county hotel. While writing his name on the register a bedbug appeared and meandered across the page. "Great Jehosophat!" exclaimed he, "I've traveled in many countries, and put up at many hotels. I've been bitten by fleas and spiders and all sorts of bugs, but this is the first time I was ever in a hotel where the bedbugs looked over the hotel register to find the number of my room.—Ex.

Becomes Valuable.

Whenever the cars run over a farmer's cow, it is always a thoroughbred the company is called upon to pay for. All stock becomes thoroughbred after being run over by a train. There is nothing that improves the blood of stock so much as being crossed with a locomotive..

C. A. Palmer, Grand Chief Templar of Washington, has resigned. He will move to California.

A. A. Anderson of Minneapolis, who organized a number of Good Templar lodges in Washington, has decided to locate in this state. He has opened law offices at 426 Pacific avenue, Seattle.

The I. O. G. T. Grand Lodge will convene at Seattle, July 15.

Saloon men have been indited and fined at Waitsburg for keeping open and selling liquors on Sunday.

Intemperance costs our nation a debauched public opinion. Public opinion is the safeguard of a republic. When it speaks out with a clear voice all other voices are silenced. It has wrought revolutions in a few days for which other agencies had toiled for years without seeing them realized. Whatever tampers with public opinion so that it does not speak out is a foe that costs a nation its very citadel of defense. The liquor interests of this country have debauched public opinion in its sources. By bribes by those who can be bribed, and by threats for those who cannot be, public opinion has been muzzled so that it does not speak out against the saloon. When some man's son is ruined he makes a cry against it, but it does not waken a community like an alarm of fire, as it should. Whatever tends to rouse public opinion is to be hailed and helped. For this country above all others cannot afford to pay the cost of a debauched public opinion on the whole accursed traffic.—Christian Work.

The Maple King.

Hector P. Taylor, who lives near Stamford, N. Y., undoubtedly has the largest sugar bush in Delaware county if not in the state. He has about 3000 trees in one grove which are full grown and in good condition, not having been much damaged by the forest worms. In addition to these, he has fully as many more which were set out by his father 30 years ago, and which are now nearly large enough to tap. For the last three or four years his maples have brought him nearly as much as a 35 cow dairy.

The Latest Music.

Hamilton S. Gordon, the music publisher, has favored this Journal with several choice selections of piano music. A series of nine instructive and pleasing recreation entitled "Our Summer Journey." The three sent are "Rural Pleasures," "Through Daisy Meadow" and "Mountain Echoes." "Ko Ko," a Japanese dance is a unique and interesting production.

LITERARY NOTES.

LEARNING TO SWIM.

The value of swimming as an exercise has been proved by some of the most famous athletes, and the mastery of this accomplishment, moreover, may some day mean the saving of human life. That boys and girls should be taught to swim admits of no argument. As it is, the majority of children fear the water, and much of this fear is due to the misguided anxiety of their parents. The trouble with beginners is that they make too much of the task; provided the effort is made, the slightest muscular exertion will suffice to keep one afloat. How readily one may learn to swim is shown in the June Delineator, by an expert in the art, who describes the various strokes, floats, diving, costume, etc., in the simplest manner possible. Some striking pictures taken from life are shown.

TABLE TALK.

Table Talk, Philadelphia, Pa., brings with it each month so many new and attractive ideas about preparing dainty and nourishing dishes, that with its helpful suggestions the work of preparing the family meal becomes an easy matter. It teaches the art of good cooking and economical living. It illustrates cookery. Recent numbers will be sent free on request, to our readers, or the May number for 10 cents.

One Thousand ($1000.00) Dollars will be paid to any artist or penman, drawing us by the first of July a single line portrait of President Roosevelt, the same being an improvement upon that drawn by Thomas Fleming of President McKinley, a photo-engraved copy of which can be seen in the book "Around the Pan," (at all book stores or post paid $2.00) which is one of the most popular books of the day, the only one giving an accurate account of the Pan-American Exposition, where our late President met his death at the hand of an assassin. Then we'll send you a whole year free the Western Poultry News, which is a big 32-page monthly illustrated magazine published at Lincoln, Neb. It is filled with helpful articles by poultry experts and people of practical experience.

The Chickens.

Almost all writers on poultry recommend keeping only one breed of chickens, and keeping these pure. While this is a good idea, and while a uniform flock makes a much better appearance than a mixed flock, there are many farmers that cannot think of disposing of all their chickens and buying fullbloods at fancy prices. It requires to large an outlay, so they usually abandon the idea and continue to keep mixed flocks. Another trouble comes up. The best layers are not usually the best chickens for poultry, and so a selection is hard to make. Two years ago I decided to work into a fullblood flock, and selected the Silver Laced Wyandottes as the best compromise for both eggs and poultry. I secured some eggs and raised a few chickens. I disposed of all the cocks except the Wyandottes, and kept the hens as before. The Wyandotte hens laid eggs that were easily told from the others, so only Wyandotte eggs were used for setting. I have raised a nice lot of chickens and have sold off the mixed stock, so that we have succeeded in raising as many fullbloods as are wanted on the farm without being out very much money, and without having to pen the Wyandottes up to keep them separate. There are quite a number of other breeds that may be managed in the same way, and a fullblood flock may be obtained with an outlay of only a few dollars for eggs, and occasionally buying a cockerel in order to get new blood. It will not do to keep any halfblood pullets, as their eggs will resemble the fullbloods; they may hatch chickens much like the pure stock, but they will not do for breeders, as the old blood will crop out sooner or later, and the few will spoil the flock.—Epitomist.

Poultry Topics.

(Pacific Poultryman.)

Hens lay better when kept without male birds.

A good, vigorous cock should be bred to pullets.

Every hen should be made to lay 175 eggs per year.

Hens that are too fat lay very few eggs. Eggs laid by fat hens are seldom fertile.

Don't forget that the State Fair at North Yakima will be held the first week in October.

Don't feed the young chicks too much soft food. Sloppy food is the mother of bowel trouble.

Lice will get the best of the chickens at this season of the year. Lice and heat belong to the same company.

New York Fashions.

Boas are undoubtedly the special rage of the season and come therefore in an almost limitless range as to color and style, material ranging from thin silk or net to tulle or chiffon and combinations of several gossamer fabrics, may be inished by lace. Distinguished examples are made entirely of crinkled silk leaves that flutter with every breath. Not unfrequently the boa is made to match the dress and hat, and an excellent example in this style is in pale gray foulard silk, showing black dots. The hat matches in pale gray chiffon with finish in black velvet baby ribbon, but the piece de resis ance was the boa that extremely fluffy at the neck and reaching to the hem of the dress, was in pale gray chiffon edged with black velvet baby ribbon. Boas that do not reach the entire length of the gown are tolerated, but no woman who aspires to an extreme of fashion would have charity for anything much shorter than herself. Of course these accessories are difficult to manage, but apparently for that reason commend themselves, so what with sweeping skirts and sometimes long pendant ends in millinery, locomotion will become difficult, especially when manipulation of the parasol is taken into consideration. There will be abundant opportunity for agility on the part of attendant admirers, since fair pedestrians may find themselves as much or more hampered in their movements than Chinese ladies of quality who totter on tortured feet.

The tailor walking gown appears the sole salvation of the sex. In it, a woman can be fashionable and move with comfort or again she may wear an independent skirt that well clears the ground, with shirt waist according to fancy. Shirt waist hats, too, are quite the go and in a simplicity of stitched cloth, are the extremist of extreme when compared with the extravagant ornateness which characterizes millinery in general. Thus woman will this summer embody two diametrically opposite modes in dress. The one a veritable Lydia Languish array, renderrng her almost a helpless slave to her clothes, the other bespeaking independence in every movement, defiance to weather or the aid of man and causing perhaps uneasy qualm on the part of the latter, as to his future rule in the kingdom of humanity. Tailor suits, moreover, are made in such a wild range of material as to adapt themselves to all weathers and this year, in view of the preference for thin materials, are made in canvasses and etamines sheer and of light weight. In dressy attire, a general drooping is noticeable; hats droop over the face, often finished by a row of pendant lace; corsages droop from the shoulders, frequently covered by lace yokes that sometimes, unlined, cause a shiver to beholders, but apparently bring only satisfaction to the wearers, nor does the exhibition of an arm only lace covered on the streets, seem in any wise to disturb the placidity of some twentieth century woman. Excessive ornamentation is everywhere and different kinds of trimming placed together vie with different kinds of flowers and garniture on hats. Quite ornate effects, too, are produced by richly adorned yokes from which thin skirt materials may hang in rich successive plaits, and recently in Lord & Taylor's famous window was an example in bright red Albatross laid in all around plaits from a lace covered yoke. The waist was in lace with fancy jacket in red. Hat to match laden with red roses. Such brilliant outfits are of course intended for summer resorts, but even in the city the most heavily adorned hats seem quite conventional.

Lace mitts are destined to great popularity, doubtless because in affinity with the present rage for lace. Hosiery has caught the infection even more largely than heretofore and the fancy has extended to hose for men which, lace woven, have a curious novelty in the eyes of conservative people. In hair dressing, the bow-knot is a recent introduction, showing sometimes the figure eight spreading wide at the top and narrow in the lower loop. Three puffs at the nape of the neck and crossing the head, are another style and what has really an old time appearance, are curls pendant at the sides for evening. Another old time revival is the chignon and with it the net, either invisible or showing a finish of jet, pearl or chenille.

"Madame Louise." Flowered silk mull is a very pretty choice for an evening gown and has the advantage of not needing to be laundered.

"Etta C." White linen is a good choice for morning, though of course it soils easily, yet that may be said of all white gowns. But as you are determined on having several white dresses, cheviot trimmed with bands of embroidery and tucked yoke and sleeves is advisable, and for evening nothing is sweeter than sheer muslin and lace finish.

"How About Belts." For service and style nothing is better than black velvet with fancy buckle. New belts are in silver braid and high girdles boned in the front, back and sides, and made in flowered ribbon are a pretty completion.

Rosalind May.

SPOKANE. WASHINGTON,

THE WESTERN HOME JOURNAL is published the first of every month at 50 cents per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

REMITTANCES should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Postoffice and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

REGISTER your letters when you remit by cash.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

THE NAME of your postoffice and of the state you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office.

BACK NUMBERS.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted only for responsible and reliable houses. We must have copy by the 25th of each month.

ARTICLES on subjects suitable for this publication are always acceptable, though no compensation will be given for them. Articles appertaining to any of the departments should be sent direct to the editor of that department.

Letters should be addressed:

THE WESTERN HOME JOURNAL,
521 First Avenue,
Spokane, Washington.

Entered at the Postoffice, Spokane, Wash., as second class matter.

The Palouse Farmer of Moscow, Idaho, is now published weekly.

The Bossburg Journal has moved to Orient, a new town in Ferry county.

The Mt. Idaho Mail is no more. This leaves no paper in this county seat of Idaho county.

The Northwest Horticulturist of Tacoma is one of the best papers of its class we get.

The Cœur d' Alene Press has added a cylinder press, new jobber, etc. The paper is deserving of its progress.

The Seattle Weekly Post-Intelligencer is now published twice a week. The price is the same—$1. With this Journal a year free.

Spinning & Bassett have another paper, the Review. This one is at Coulee City. With their papers at Wilbur and Hartline they ought to be kept busy.

Advertising is a necessity, not a luxury. Men have made great fortunes out of articles that were advertised, without ever seeing a customer face to face. The advertising did it all. Smart men know the value of advertising.

Thomas Newlun is one of the oldest settlers on Moran prairie near Spokane. He thoroughly understands this country and climate in relation to fruit growing. When he grubbed up 550 nice bearing prune trees this spring to replace them with apple trees he knew what he was doing.

Should teachers in the public schools practice what they teach? Special instruction is given against the use of intoxicants and narcotics. A Spokane school ma'am was on a Ross Park car recently and her odorous escort sat real close and blew a stream of cigarette smoke in her face—and the teacher seemed to like it for she did not protest.

With beef prices 30 to 40 per cent. above the average of recent years, and butter prices also on the keen jump, a dilemma is presented to the rural proprietor which is truly painful. Shall the Old Cow be marketed for beef, or shall she be given a reprieve on condition that she be diligent as a butter-maker? That is a burning question in many a family forum right now.

"Oregon will erect a state building and make a big exhibit at the World's Fair," says Alfred Holman, associate editor of the Oregonian, Portland, who visited the World's Fair site this week. Mr. Holman is out for the specific purpose of collecting data on big expositions for the Lewis and Clark Centennial exposition at Portland in 1905. Oregon's great specialties are minerals and native woods, fruits and salmon.

The St. Louis World's Fair management has been advised of an important enterprise by which the readers of history will profit substantially. The Western Historical association, with headquarters at Madison, Wisconsin, has undertaken the publication of a complete history of the Louisiana Purchase in seven large volumes. The work will cost $100,000, as it will be illustrated by numerous maps and portraits. In addition to a general history of the great territory prior to its division into states, the work comprises a historyof each state in its social, political and industrial aspects.

For the Youthful Orators.

If all the little children dear
Who're glad vacation days are here,
Should stand in line with their books and slates,
They'd reach across the United States.
And then if they counted, "one, two, three!"
And laughed, what a long, long laugh 'twould be.

"Cluck, cluck," cries the hen,
"Summer time has come again;
Corn a-plenty, sweet fresh grass,
In the truck patch, garden sass."
"Quack, quack," cries the duck,
"Did you ever see such luck?
Summer time with nice, cool rain,
I can dive and swim again."
"Buzz-z-z," hums the bee,
Flitting round so merrily,
"Summer's here, with honeysuckle,
Do you wonder that I chuckle?"

Free Homesteads.

We are indebted to the Washburn, (N. D.), Leader for the following very briefly and clearly stated points concerning homestead laws:

THE HOMESTEADER.

Any head of a family or person who has arrived at the age of twenty-one years, and is a citizen of the United States, or has filed his declaration of intention to become such, and who is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land, is entitled to enter one quarter section (160 acres) or less quantity of unappropriated public land under the homestead laws. The applicant must make affidavit that he is entitled to the privileges of the homestead act, and that the entry is made for his exclusive use and benefit, and for actual settlement and cultivation,

The following fees and commissions are required:

WHEN ENTRY IS MADE.

For 160 acres	$14 to $22
For 80 acres	6 to 11
For 40 acres	2 to 6

WHEN FINAL PROOF IS MADE.

For 160 acres	$4 to $12
For 80 acres	2 to 6
For 40 acres	1 to 3

WOMEN.

Any unmarried woman, of age, can enjoy the benefits of the homestead law. If she marries before she has acquired title, and continues her residence on her claim she can proceed to prove up at the proper time. the same as if she had remained single, but husband and wife cannot secure separate tracts by maintaining separate residences at the same time. All the sons and daughters of the family, who are of age, are entitled to take up land.

HOW INITIATED.

The right of homestead may be initiated either (1) by entry at the United States land office, or (2) by making an actual settlement upon the land. If the former method is adopted, the entryman has six months within which to make a settlement and establish his residence upon the land. If the latter the settler has three months within which to make his entry.

PROOF AND TITLE.

Within six months from the date of entry the settler must take up his residence upon the land and cultivate the same for five years. At the expiration of this period, or within two years thereafter, proof of residence and cultivation must be established by two witnesses. Final proof cannot be made until the expiration of five years from date of entry, and must be made within seven years. After the expiration of fourteen months from date of entry the law allows the entryman to secure title to the tract, if so desired, by payment for it in cash, at the legal rate, $1.25 per acre, or $2.50 if within railway land grant limits, and making proof of settlement, residence and cultivation for that period. The law allows only one homestead privilege to one person, and does not recognize the sale of a claim before final proof is made.

CREATING PROPERTY.

To occupy and begin the cultivation of a homestead means the creation at once of a property worth $1,000 or more, and every year thereafter the equivalent of a laboring man's wages back East will be added to the value of the farm.

Sheep Pasture.

More sheep are needed to supply the market with both mutton and wool. On our many small farms there is room for thousands of sheep where only hundreds now exist. A few sheep on a 50 or 100 acre farm may be kept at a very little expense. The annual wool crop in the spring, an occasional mutton sheep during the summer and the crop of lambs to be sold in the early fall, are all extra dew drop returns that cost very little to produce.

Unless a man has a preference for some particular breed, a thoroughbred mutton sheep will prove the most satisfactory when kept in this way. The lambs pay well, the wool brings a good price and the mutton is the finest. When the family is small arrangements may be made with neighbors to help use up a sheep even in hottest weather, but usually a farmer's family, with the extra farm help that is often required at times during the summer, can make away with it. It is a very acceptable change in the usual farm bill of fare and as such it is no small item in the profit that should be credited to the sheep department.

A few sheep will run with the cattle and pick up most of their living during the summer months between cow bites, but too many sheep spoil a cow pasture by biting too close and too often. In all pasture lots there are tufts of grass that cattle will not eat; sheep eat these patches in preference to the cattle grass. There are also many fence corners and other places that cattle leave, because they prefer the more succulent grasses in the cultivated portion of the field. Sprouts sometimes grow up in these places. If left to themselves a thicket soon forms that must be grubbed out. Sheep will often browse such places down until the roots die. Sheep differ in this respect, some prefer browse to the best artificial pasture, but a great deal depends upon the kind of feed they have been accustomed to.

The Northern Newspaper Union of Spokane now prints on the average 60 papers each week and the Northern Pacific Union of Portland, 117 papers. These two lists contain a majority of the country papers in Oregon, Washington and Idaho and a large number in Montana and British Columbia. Alexander & Co., Spokane, Wash., are the authorized agents for the lists.

Brilliant Record of a Newspaper Man.

The success which has attended William E. Curtis, the famous correspondent of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD, is rarely attained by newspaper writers. Beginning his career in Chicago in 1872 as reporter he rapidly rose to the position of managing editor. He resigned that position on receiving a government appointment as secretary of the South American commission. Mr. Curtis traveled extensively in Central and South America while in this position, producing several popular volumes as the result of his literary labors. Afterward co-operating with Secretary of State James G. Blaine, Mr. Curtis organized the work of the bureau of American republics, with the result that he was placed in charge of that organization, and at the World's Columbian Exposition he distinguished himself by his labors as the executive head of the Latin-American department. As correspondent of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD Mr. Curtis' travels have carried him into every section of the United States as well as into all quarters of the globe. His China and Japan letters were published in book form; likewise his letters from England, Germany and France, as well as those written during his travels in Mexico and South America.

No newspaper correspondent possesses the facility shown by Mr. Curtis in writing on any of the diversified subjects embraced in his correspondence and making it luminous. Nor is any correspondent followed so closely year after year by the thousands of readers of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD. On his recent trip to the Holy Land Mr. Curtis' letters have been read more closely than ever, and his descriptions of that interesting section of the globe as it appears today have been quoted everywhere.

A daily letter from Mr. Curtis appears in THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD.

She Did not Keep a Horse.

The young woman who entered the grocery store the other day had but recently entered upon the sea of matrimony and, like all sensible brides, had begun housekeeping at once. But she did not know a little about either housekeeping or shopping, and she was giving her first order. It was a crusher, but the grocer was a clever man and was used to all kinds of orders and could interpret them easily.

"I want two pounds of paralyzed sugar," she began, with a businesslike air.

"Yes'm. Anything else?"

"Two tins of condemned milk."

"Yes'm."

He set down pulverized sugar and condensed milk.

"Anything more, ma'am?"

"A bag of fresh salt. Be sure it is fresh."

"Yes'm. What next?"

"A pound of desecrated codfish."

He wrote glibly, "desiccated cod."

"Nothing more, ma'am? We have some nice horseradish just in."

"No," she said. "It would be of no use to us; we don't keep a horse."

Then the grocer sat down and fanned himself with a patent washboard, although the temperature was nearly freezing.

Rouen: In the Prison of Joan of Arc.

She laid her head upon the straw,
She who had crowned a king of France,
And angel shapes, whom no man saw,
For her deliverance.
Knelt at her feet—less pure, less sweet!—
A blessing in each glance.

She laid her head upon the straw,
She who gave France her liberty,
And angel shapes, whom no man saw—
Ah, me! how could men see?—
Watched till the day, then bore away
Something the flames set free.

Tongue-Twisters.

The Christian Register propounds the following, upon which one should practice diligently in private before venturing upon a public performance:

Ask a person "What kind of noise annoys an oyster?" After the victim has given up, he is told, "A noisy noise annoys an oyster."

"How much wood would a woodchuck chuck, if a woodchuck could chuck wood? He would chuck as much as a woodchuck could if a woodchuck could chuck wood."

"I say, Teddy," said one little newsboy to another, "What are them things those fellows were talking about?—'bacteria,' they call them." "Them are French things. They come from Paris: that is why they call them 'parisites!'" "No," said another, "they come from Germany: that is why they call them 'germs!'" "Not at all," said a third. "They are Irish: they come from Ireland for I heard Dr. White call them 'Mikerobes!'"

The Orchard.

(Taken Bodily from the Farm Journal.)

Some one planted trees for you,
Maybe, years and years ago;
Don't forget to plant some trees,
Sun and shower will make them grow.
Yours may be the power to give
Bowers of shade and fruitage rare,
And others coming after you
Will bless your thought and care.

Let the orchard receive careful, constant and shallow culture until July.

If you did not get the young trees mulched last month do it after the next soaking rain. Use strawy manure.

Make your trees root deeply by plowing and cultivating the orchard the first, second, third and following years and by keeping the surface clean.

M. G. K.

This is the time to prune your fruit trees if not done before. Wounds heal over a June cut better than that made any other time of year. The larger the scab the slower the healing.

Look out this month for the seventeen-year locusts if you are in the locality where they appeared seventeen years ago. But do not be afraid, they will not hurt much. They are due this month.

To protect cherries from birds make a scare-crow and hang it by a fine wire or fish line from a pole so it will swing and turn around with the wind, just free from the tree. We won't guarantee this, but you might try it.

A good farmer I know of says that May or June is the best time to trim out the suckers which grow on apple trees. It is his experience that when removed at this season they do not sprout as they will if done at any other time of the year. E. L. V.

Fertilize the orchard—fertilize, fertilize, fertilize. Do not use much dung. Instead 300 pounds of ground bone or phosphate rock and 300 pounds of muriate of potash to the acre will keep the orchard in good heart.

If likely to be troubled with the apple tree tent-caterpillars or the forest tent-caterpillars, send for Bulletin 152 of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, at Geneva, giving description and remedy. To Our Folks it will be sent free, we presume.

To improve the color of peaches, plums and apples, apply steel or iron filings liberally to the soil, cultivating it in like fertilizer. One secret of the fine color of the red apples raised in Missouri is that the soil is so impregnated with iron that it has a great effect on the color of the fruit.

IN "DIXIE" LAND.

Hot Springs, "Uncle Sam's" Garden Spot of the South.

In a previous article written for the Western Home Journal on a southern railway train we said that we would not attempt to describe Hot Springs, but would leave that till we could procure cuts which would speak for themselves. The ride over the Iron Mountain route, which is part of the Missouri Pacific system, prepared us to enjoy Uncle Sam's Garden Spot of the South. The scenery along the line is beautiful. The moonlight ride along the precipitous banks of the Mississippi river for several miles below St. Louis was enjoyed by everyone. The Ozark mountains, the beautiful Arcadia valley and famous Pine Knob were all viewed with intense interest.

Hot Springs is undoubtedly the best equipped city in the Union for holding large conventions. Its hotel accommodations are the finest in the land. The N. E. A. took headquarters at the Eastman. It has the most modern equipments and can accommodate one thousand people. It is open from January till April 15, but owing to this meeting, the closing was deferred until the 22d. There were probably seven hundred guests there during our stay. The newspaper men went into convention the morning of our arrival and stuck closely to business until the program was completed. These sessions were of great interest.

Not less interesting were the hot water baths which were thrown open to all visiting editors free of charge. The Northwestern Agriculturist has described the bath so well that we quote it as authority:

"The baths are patent adjustable. There is one kind for weak hearts, and no fat man should go there. There is another kind for fat folks and no enlarged heart should go there. I went to the Hale Bath for I felt the need of bracing my nerves, and they have a cave there dug into the steaming rock thirty or forty feet, where nerves are remodeled while you wait.

It is a curious experience. I left my valuables in a locked box at the counter and carried the key to the box fastened to my wrist clear through the bath. The clerk rang a bell and called forth a colored attendant who conducted me into the first room. There were stalls shorter than horse stalls—a fair size for goats—and bade me enter one and disrobe and assume the garb of the 'Blanket Indians.' Next he led me to an inner room, where 'I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls' for all was marble except the enameled white tubs. The attendant filled a tub with water and dipped a thermometer in to see if it were at cooking temperature. It must be at 90 degrees; that is law. After parboiling me, he sprinkled soap powder over me and went to work with a spring curry comb, or something that felt like it. His was the true specimen of the 'big mitt' game we read about in city papers. How he scrubbed and soaped and scrubbed again! Then he soused me around in the tub, and next wrapping the sheet around my quivering, palpitating form, bade me 'stand dar, sah!' I stood."

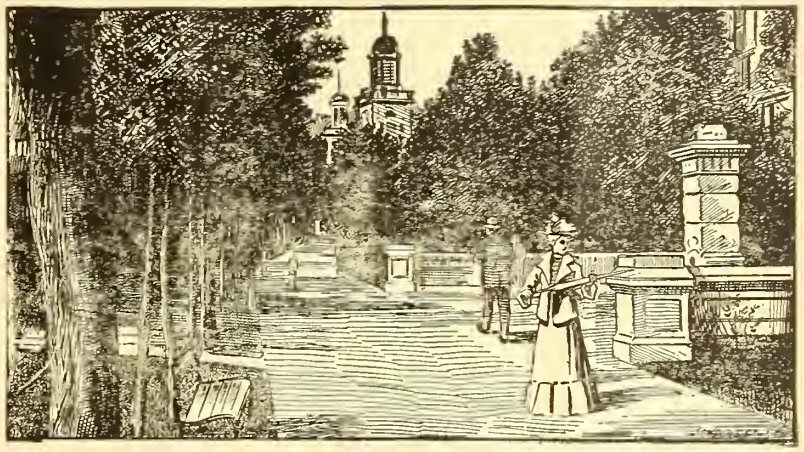
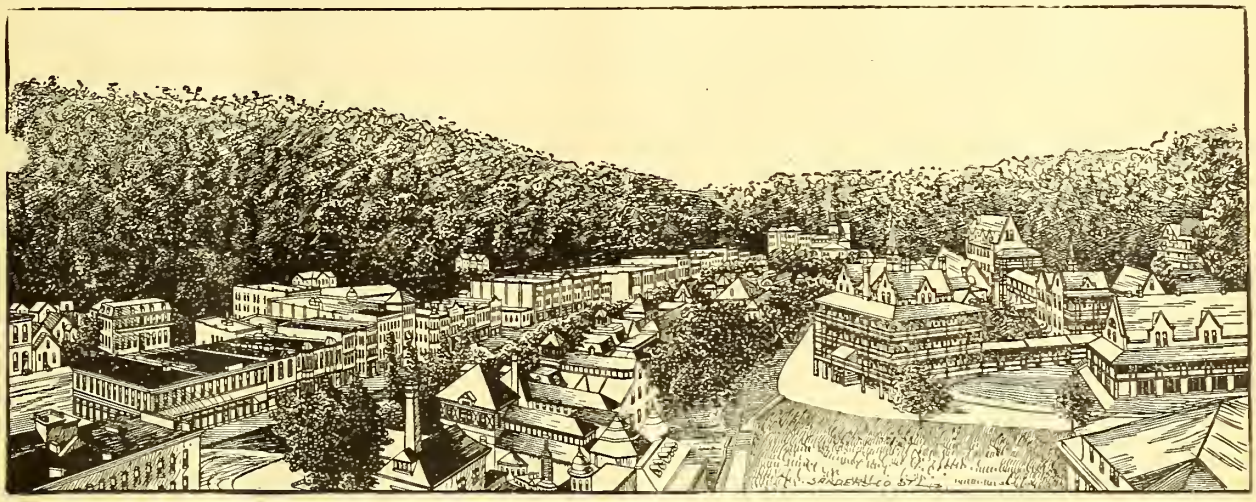
All this is experience which makes life interesting in Hot Springs. That the water possesses curative properties cannot be doubted, for hundreds and thousands come here with all sorts of maladies and go home partially or entirely relieved.



To say that the people of Hot Springs are hospitable would be putting it mild, for the banquet, the drive over the Government road and the hearty welcome received everywhere was far from being artificial. We would recommend those who are looking for a health resort to write to the superintendent of the Hot Springs Reservation, Hot Springs, Ark.

We have already spoken of our pleasant day in Little Rock and St. Louis in a previous article. We hope to have space in a future number to speak of Charleston, S. C., and the Southern Interstate and West Indian Exposition. Also of Washington, D. C., and its beauties. Suffice it to say that no one can travel across Uncle Sam's country without being proud that he is an American citizen.



WE WANT THE FARMER.

This is a farmer's poultry paper, and we wish to talk farm poultry. While we advocate pure breeders and believe breeders are doing noble work, we also believe that every farmer can improve his flocks and make money from poultry if he will turn his attention that way.

Ripans Tabules
Doctors find
A good prescription
For mankind.

Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.

A MEDICINE WHICH PROLONGS LIFE.

"I have used Ripans Tabules for a number of years and would not be without them. I was troubled with indigestion and constipation and have noticed since I have been using them that I am getting rid of those terrible bilious spells which confined me to bed on account of the dizziness. Of late I have not had any. I had just got over a bad spell of bilious fever and was sitting on the step, when a neighbor came to me and remarked how bad I looked. I told him I had just got over the fever and that I was afraid to eat anything on account of indigestion, from which I had suffered since I was quite young. He advised me to take Ripans Tabules. I said I would try them, and from then I have n't been without them. I can eat anything, providing I finish with a Tabule instead of dessert. I feel very thankful that I have found something that will prolong my life."

GASTRIC TROUBLES.

"I had suffered three years at least from gastric troubles. I could not sleep at night. My head ached and my feet would be cold as ice. My bowels were not regular and I would have such cramps from gases forming on my stomach that I would faint away. I was in such distress that I would have sooner died than live. About three months ago I was suffering and felt as if my body was tied up inwardly. My brother recommended Ripans Tabules to me. My husband obtained some for me from the nearest drug store and I would not now be without them. They relieved me of all the foul gases that formed in my stomach and they move my bowels regularly, for which I had been taking physics all the time. I have no more gases, my bowels move regularly, I have no more headaches and can sleep well; in fact, I feel as light as the air which I breathe, and that is saying a good deal for a woman who weighs 190 pounds. I am sorry that I did not commence using the Tabules a year ago, for they would have saved me a great deal of pain and suffering."

One gives relief

A Ripans Tabule, now and then,
Will benefit the wisest men.
And if dyspepsia is their woe,

At druggists.
The Five-Cent packet is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.
